One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package--- Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a scaly humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week.

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

L. M. YEATON.

Nov. 3, 1874.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose took away the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be terra in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Billousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and has for Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did. am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

Daily Chronicle.

—The New York correspondent of the Baltimore Bulletin tells the following story:

While Mr. Raymond was playing "Micawber" in Boston, a couple of years ago or so, he found, on one occasion, that the "punch" (really lemonade) was impregnated with salt, thanks to Mr. Peakes and Mr. Willie Seymour. He determined that revenge was sweeter than the stuff he had been made to simulate the growing intoxication of "Micawber" on. Accordingly, through a discreet arrangement at the telegraph office, he got two blanks such as are used for messages for delivery and wrote on one of them a message to Mr. Peakes purporting to be from Miss Carlotta Leclercq, then at Booth's Theatre, asking him to telegraph his lowest terms to come on and prompt at Booth's, and to bring Willie Seymour with him to play a part in "A Scrap of Paper," in which he had made quite a hit. This was delivered duly and caused no end of excitement. Peakes was naturally flattered, and Willie Seymour's mother proudly exclaimed, "See what Miss Leclercq thinks of my boy. He was call boy at Booth's Theatre once, and now they want him to come on specially and play a part for them." But the stage manager wouldn't hear of it, and Peakes telegraphed Miss Leclercq, "Impossible." She was naturally surprised and telegraphed back, "What is impossible?" Peakes rejoined, "I can't come on." Miss Leclercq responded, "Who wants you to?" Peakes was about to send another message requesting an explanation, when Mr. Raymond disillusioned him. He turned pale, and Mr. Seymour's mother failed to see the joke. But Mr. Raymond enjoyed the "after-taste" of the lemonade immensely. As for Miss Leclercq, she vowed she never would forgive the mystification. One day, however, she and Mr. Raymond were dining at the same hotel. Unperceived by her, he got up and took the place of the Irish waiter behind her chair. "Hev yees finished your soup, mem?" he asked. "No." "Will yees hand me over that plate, mem," he said. "I am not done yet." "Give me that plate, mem," he cried; "it's enough you've had." She turned at that and reluted straight. "Oh, you man, you man," she said; "there, sit down, I forgive you."

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Scalds, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is on the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves, by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors. It completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a cure for the prevailing use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

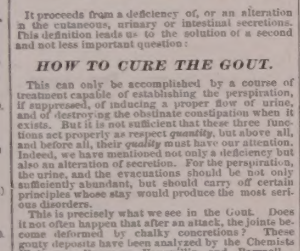
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquelin and Barrodi. Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place also by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that public sense should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these bases before the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the,

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a perfect Easy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F. L. B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and,

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than ten dollars nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vendor of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scatter the same, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier of the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode, shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, so privy, over either of the small ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other nuisance or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Models of the claims of every patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring them that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unanimitakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $25,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocin Cordial.

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Culture of Peppermint.

Dr. E. W. Sylvester of Lyons, New York, at a recent meeting of the American Institute, read a paper on the culture of peppermint which contained much interesting information. He said that in Wayne County they raised and sold about half a million dollars' worth annually. The price of peppermint oil fluctuates from $2 to $6 per pound. In 1875 the Doctor planted five acres, which yielded 30 pounds per acre and sold for $5.11 per pound, amounting to $766.50, or over $150 per acre. There is money to be made in the business when the oil sells for $3 per pound. The method of culture is given as follows:

I have no doubt that peppermint may be grown either from the root, stem or seed, but the most desirable portion of the plant is the rooted runner from last year's growth. Perhaps you will be unable to understand 'rooted runner.' For instance, in the Spring I plant an acre of mint roots. These grow, are kept free from weeds, and in July or August the tops have grown from one to two feet high, and when in blossom the tops have been mowed off and converted into peppermint oil by distillation. About this time small shoots or runners are seen growing from the neck or collar of the mint and remaining on the surface of the ground. These runners take root and each for himself becomes a living plant, though still clinging to his mother's breast. It is these plants, full of life and vigor which you must plant if you would grow mint successfully. I once planted seven acres with these runners in November, and the mint was as productive as other mint in the same field planted in the Spring; but the general practice is to plant the runners in the Spring. Just at this juncture comes the important question: How shall we protect these infant runners during our cold and often inclement Winters, so that they shall possess sufficient vitality to be separated from the parents and commence a vigorous, productive existence in the new field to which they are removed? If snow falls on the ground before it is much frozen and remains on until Spring, covering the runners with a white soft blanket, they will come out of the Winter as bright and smiling as a tottering infant; but if, as too often happens, we have severe weather, without snows, and the ground is frozen a foot or more in depth, fierce winds sweep across your mint field, and in the Spring they look brown or black, their young rootlets are dead and they are unfit for planting. "How shall we obviate the effects of the Winter and have fresh, healthy runners?" I answer by relating my own experiments. Last Autumn I divided my new mint fields into three unequal sections, which I numbered 1, 2, and 3. Section No. 1 was plowed in November very carefully about five inches deep, the surface laid flat and not lapped, so that the runners were by this process covered with soil about five inches deep. Section No. 2 was covered to the depth of five or six inches with buckwheat straw early in December; the straw was spread evenly from a wagon driven over the field and was not pressed down or rolled. Section No. 3 was left unprotected in any way; just as the runners grew so they were left to care for themselves during the very severe Winter which has just passed.

The result was that the runners on the section covered with straw came out in the Spring bright and healthy; those left without any attention were the next best, and many of them used in planting; while section 1, which was plowed over, was very much injured by the Winter, and none of the runners were used in planting, but they have come up through the soil to some extent and now promise a fair crop of oil this season. The method of plowing over is not always so successful. In some seasons the very best results are obtained by this plan. It depends much upon the nature of the soil and the vagaries of the Winter. I am of the opinion that a light covering of straw is the best method, and that wheat or rye straw will answer as well as buckwheat; what is wanted is some light application on the surface of the ground to hold the light snows, if there are any, and practically protect the young rootlets from severe cold. But, the novice asks, why the anxiety about roots; after you have planted a field can you not mow the mint year after year, as we do meadows? I answer no; the mint is usually cut for two years and then replanted; in very rare instances three crops are gathered. How many roots do you plant to the acre? This is a fair question, and I should much prefer to answer it than count the runners we plant on an acre. When the runners are numerous and well rooted, and all alive, from ten to twenty square rods will afford sufficient for one acre; hence you perceive, then, one acre of runners will plant from eight to sixteen acres of new mint.

"A Little Farm Well Tilled."

F. K. Kinney, near Worcester, Mass., commenced, in 1867, the cultivation of two acres of land, used until that time for pasture, within the limits of that city, but three and a half or four miles from the business centre, and adjoining the line of the town of Holden. This was one of the stoniest and most uninviting of hillsides for cultivation, but favorably located for building and marketing purposes, it being on Olean Street, and in an excellent neighborhood. The first year he subdued the sod by cultivation of a crop of potatoes, found a market in the city f r the rocks, for cellar walls, and return" ing home took loads of manure to compost for future crops. That Fall and the following Spring he set three-fourths of an acre to strawberry plants and commenced building. The third season he realized $1,000 for the crop of strawberries from the three-fourths acre, and, having received enough from other crops to pay for cultivation, completed his buildings, etc. Since that time he has taken the lead in the cultivation of strawberries, and realized large profits on his investments in that branch, besides originating some new varieties which promise to be valuable additions to the list of that delicious fruit. At present he has over two acres of strawberry plants, in a fine state of cultivation; and, having added land from time to time till his fruit farm contains more than fifteen acres, he has set two acres of grape vines of choice varieties, which he has also cultivated quite extensively and successfully, constantly keeping the ground among them, and all square corners, and newly ploughed up land covered with vegetables for market, which yielded a paying income.

The expense and difficulty of procuring a sufficient supply of fertilizers, and the want of employment upon the land during the Winter, suggested to Mr. Kinney, the expediency of breeding and keeping fowls on an extensive scale, and in the Spring of 1870, he commenced raising Brown Leghorn fowls from a small stock of that breed, which he had for many years kept purely bred from imported stock, secured by him at the time of their first introduction into the country. In this enterprise the same remarkable success has crowned his efforts. Intelligent and careful breeding has gained for him fabulous prices for his best specimens—from $50 to $100 each—and last year his sales of fowls amounted to over $1,500. He has raised 1,000 chickens this year, and is in a fair way of realizing nearly double that amount for them.

Another interesting feature of productive industry has been added—that of bee keeping—and even the sweets of the wild flowers, white clover pastures, and the blossoms of the cultivated fruits and flowers, are gathered for the market by those faithful little servants. Four years ago last Spring, he procured a small swarm, and now has twelve well filled hives, which he has raised from them, besides having received over $250 for bees and honey sold. Being thus favorably situated and well cared for, his bees have produced during the past season large quantities of honey of the very finest quality, which has sold as high as a dollar a pound.

News and Notes.

A leading lawyer in this State says he has often known democratic judges before, but never knew what a democratic Court was until now!

David Murray, Esq., of Newmarket, writing of Merry Meeting Pond, in New Durham, a sheet of water about three miles long and one mile wide, says it received its name from a party of pleasure seekers from Portsmouth and vicinity, probably 120 years ago. It is wholly fed by springs, and has an outlet into Merry Meeting Bay, in Alton. At the eastern end the laws of acoustics are so much affected by the adjacent mountains, that people on one side of the pond can hear others on the other side of the pond, about 1 1-4 miles distant, converse in ordinary tones of voice. It has been a favorite resort for bathers for more than 125 years, and no person was ever known to be drowned in its waters.

Helmbold has been released from the insane asylum.

At the conclusion of a circus performance at Jackson, Mich., a hot air balloon was sent up, and in descending the aeronaut, Wm. Doyle, jumped out, when some distance up, and alighted in a mill pond and was drowned.

Six murderers were hanged at Fort Scott, Arkansas, last Friday.

Thomas H. Stevens committed suicide by hanging, on Saturday night, on Deer Island, Salisbury. Rum and excitement over the Noyes suicide was the cause. He was 35 years old, and leaves a wife and three children.

A new hotel with accommodations for fifty persons is to be erected on the summit of Mount Kearsarge, in season for the entertainment of company another season.

The Annual Convention of the American Pharmaceutical Association will be held at Boston in Odd Fellows Hall, September 7th to 10th. An extensive and interesting exhibition of pharmaceutical preparations will be held in the elegant hall of the Odd Fellows building. An immense attendance is anticipated.

A petition for the pardon of Edward S. Stokes has been sent to Gov. Tilden.

Edwin W. Major, the Wilton wife-poisoner, is to be tried for murder at Nashua, next week, commencing the 13th inst. It is rumored that the body of his wife's sister, which was exhumed some time since, has been subjected to an analysis and found to contain strichnea.

Hon. Thomas Talbot has withdrawn from the contest for the republican gubernatorial candidacy in Massachusetts.

An official investigation has been commenced in the Charles E. Carr poisoning case at Candia. The Selectmen of the town, on receipt of a petition frem the citizens asking an examination of the matter, have ordered the body to be exhumed and a complete analysis of the stomach of Mr. Carr made. The excitement over the matter continues unabated, and the result is anxiously awaited.

A Defunct Devil.

[South Bend Union.]

We had a devil once, but the place that erst while knew him knows him no more forever. He was a devil fair to look upon. When he took off his rings to wash rollers, and stood aloof in a faultless shirt and dove-colored pants, it watered the envious soul of the looker-on with admiration. He was a devil of a fellow, and his name it was Brooks. By profession he was a lady killer, but he had a fair practice at the bar, considering his youth, being drunk on every holiday with as much dexterity and eloquence as an old practitioner. He was bred in the dry goods line, but having been blighted by his employers, he resolved to embrace one of the learned professions. Having already made considerable progress, he naturally gravitated toward the devil, and chose that of a printer. As he sat before us in the office, gently and artistically settling his tie with a delicately gloved hand, while he explained the convictions which had sent him to wrestle with letters and rollers, it stirred our soul with pity.

We said come. He came. That is, he came occasionally, other engagements permitting. He smoked cigars, with feet on the table, brought his friends in on Sundays to take a hand at cards, amused himself with dropping quads from a three-story window and whistling for the edification of the compositors, and otherwise disported himself as a young, devillish, high-toned devil should be expected. On holidays, when he was sick, he could be seen taking an airing behind a livery team. He got $2 50 per week, but never walked. At the races he shone; except, possibly, for the brief time he lay under a tree, drunk. But the brightest stars do not shine always; so the bluest devils anon happily hide their rays from motal ken. He is no more. An engagement at a festival one evening unfortunately conflicted with running off the paper, and the fashionable young devil pulled on his tight boots and walked out, leaving us to mourn his untimely loss. It will be a long time before we shall look upon his like again. We unhesitatingly challenge our brethren for a devil fit to unlace his suspenders.

How to Can Corn.

Mrs. Emma Moody, lady assistant steward, Mt. Vernon (Ind.) Grange, communicates to the Hoosier Patron the following plan for canning corn:

1. I get the best sweet corn, scald it on the ear, and cut it off while hot; put a pan over a kettle of boiling water, to keep it hot until you get enough to fill a can. Have some weak brine boiling in a porcelain kettle. Fill your can within an inch of the top with corn; cover the bottom with brine, leaving room for it to swell; seal the can while boiling hot.

2. Dissolve one and one-fourth ounces of tartaric acid in one-half pint of water; cut the corn from the cob, put it in a vessel over the fire, and bring to a boiling point; to each pint of corn allow one table-spoonful of the solution. Boil one-half hour, stirring occasionally, then put the corn in quart cans and seal tightly. When wanted for use, put the corn into a bowl, and stir in two-thirds of a teaspoonful of soda to each quart of corn. Let it stand one hour before cooking.

3. Cut the corn off the cob and pack closely in quart cans; then solder so that every particle of air is excluded; set the cans in a kettle of cold water and bring to a boil; let the corn boil two and a half hours in this sized cans (larger cans will require more time); when done, pour cold water into the kettle to cool the cans and enable you to remove them carefully.

—Among the marrels which excite the admiration of the student of Nature, not the least strange is the group of phenomena known under the name of Animal Phosphorescence. We are so accustomed to associate light with heat and to consider that fire of some kind is necessary to its production, that the imagination is appealed to with unusual force when we find light proceeding from the body of a living animal. Yet, it is well known that the emission of light is not an uncommon characteristic among the members of the invertebrate divisions of the animal kingdom. Travelers have often expatiated on the beauty of the scenes which they have witnessed in the topies, when the seas or lorests have seemed to be illuminated by innumerable sparks of fire; and recent discoveries have shown that the luminous quality is even more common than was previously supposed. During the dredging expeditions of H. M. S. Porcupine, in the years 1869 and 1870, so many of the deep-sea animals were found to bephosphorescent, that Professor Thomson has suggested that the light necessary to the development of the eyesight which some of the specimens possessed may have had its origin in that source. In animal phosphorescence, as in all her works, Nature exhibits an immense variety in the forms in which she displays her power; in one case the luminosity will be visible in a fluid secretion; in another it will manifest through the action of a minute and complicated organ; one species of animal will shine with a yellow light; a second, with a brilliant green; a third, with a pale lilac; and we are acquainted with one instance in which the light changed successively to the chief colors of the solar spectrum. The causes which produce these phenomena are still very obscure. Although many forms of life are known in which the luminous quality is present, scientific men are not yet agreed on what quality it depends; and the purpose which the light serves in the animal economy are also little understood. But the phenomena themselves are often very remarkable.—Popular Science Monthly for August.

—The steamer Fanny was coming down the upper Mississippi loaded with pig lead. As she was going over a shoal place the pilot gave the signal to heave the lead. The only man forward was a green Irishman. "Why don't you heave the lead?" "Is it the lead, yer honor? Where to?" "Overboard, you blockhead?" The Irishman snatched up one of the pigs of lead and threw it overboard. The mate, in endeavoring to prevent him, lost his balance and fell into the river. The captain, running to the deck, asked: "Why don't you heave the lead, and sing out how much water there is?" "The lead is heaved, yer honor, and the mate's gone down to see how much water there is."

—As the 6:40 L., C. & L. train to Chicago was rounding the curve at Maryland street, the engineer suddenly discovered a little child, only able to crawl, playing on the track but a short distance in front of the engine. He immediately applied the air brakes and stopped the train about fifteen feet from the baby, which dug its pudgy fists into the gravel in blissful ignorance of danger. Just as the train stopped, the excited mother of the infant rushed from her house by the side of the track, and gleefully pressed her darling to her breast as the engine moved past. The child had crawled out under the gate and on to the track.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

—A Boston editor said he wrote as plain as could be, "The sacred heavens around him shine," when the blasted printer went and made it, "The scared hyenas around him shine!"

It is the first prompting of every well conditioned mind to wish to share its pleasant discoveries with friends and neighbors. And I well remember the enlarged sense of "neighbor" my church catechism used to inculcate. I learned that to "love thy neighbor as thyself" meant to love the whole community. Now I hope I have raised the curiosity of friends to the highest pitch to know what I have discovered—whether a quick and easy road to wealth, perpetual motion or some delicious morsel of food!! Ah! that is it! a nice little tid-bit for a hungry soul. That is all—nothing but a little book. But such a little book—so full of good sense, good heart and good wit,—dealing with people and things not "too good for human nature's daily food"—no cant—no prig-ism about it. I have seen nothing so bright, crisp and natural since Mrs. Gospell's "Cranford." I know neither the name, sex, age or condition of the author. I only know the book has beguiled me of a lonely, tedious day—I never received a cent for writing a book-notice, but I deserve the gratitude of my neighbors for telling them to beg, borrow or buy "One Summer." Mrs. G. C. Howard will appear at Franklin Hall on Friday evening next in her inimitable character of "Topsy," supported by a strong company for the production of the well-known drama of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," each member having been especially engaged for the superior rendition of the character assumed. Mr. Geo. Kunkel will appear in his original character of "Uncle Tom," the favorite comedian, Yankee Weaver as "Gumption Cute" and W. H. Henderson as "Mark," which nodoubt will make the entertainment a rare treat.

The Westminster Hotel, New York, is one of the the most select and comfortable of the first-class hotels in the city. It is conveniently located, being but one block from Union Square and Broadway, convenient to the great stores, churches, and places of amusement. A wood payment covers the streets around, thus relieving its guests of the annoyance incident to other hotels on the stone-paved and crowded thoroughfares. Persons who would enjoy all the luxuries of a first-class hotel, with that homelike ease and quiet so desirable to the wearied traveler, will find the Westminster the place to stop. It is kept on the European plan. See card in advertising columns.

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF PROBATE FOR THE COUNTY OF ROCKINGHAM.

Respectfully represents Benjamin Plumer of Portsmouth in the said County of Rockingham, that by appointment of said Judge he is Guardian of Lucy D. Plumer a minor and heir at law of Cyrus Plumer, late of Portsmouth in said County deceased; that his said ward is seized of one ninth part in common and undivided of two certain tracts of land with the buildings thereon situate in Portsmouth in said County of Rockingham, bounded and described as follows, to wit: one tract of land with the buildings thereon, situate on the westerly side of Church street, in said Portsmouth, beginning at the northerly corner of said tract and running southerly by Church street, thirty-seven feet to the land of the heirs of Nathaniel Folsom deceased; thence westerly by said Folsom land fifty feet to land of Main & Winchester, thence northerly thirty-seven feet by and to land of said Main & Winchester, thence easterly by land of said Main & Winchester fifty feet to the northerly corner of said tract begun at, the same being the homestead house and lot of the late Cyrus Plumer ,deceased. Also one other tract of land with the buildings thereon situate in said Portsmouth, and containing two acres more or less and bounded northerly by land of the heirs of Levi Woodbury, deceased; easterly by land of Cantie, southerly by a brook and westerly by a common passageway twenty feet in width, and that it is necessary for the support of his said ward and will be conducive to her interest that the same should be sold. Wherefore he prays that he may be licensed and authorized to sell the same at public auction agreeably to the statute in such case provided.

Dated this 23d day of August, 1875.

Local Matters.

Abolishing a Nuisance.

Criddles' mother-in-law had left the family mansion for a few days' respite from the cares of life at Rye, and Mrs. Criddles realized that on her dwelt the responsibility of the household's peace. When the midnight hour tolled, sleep had conquered her and she was sweetly dreaming of the time when first she "heard those evening bells." A Dover street cur of diminutive proportions selected that hour as the season for one of his nocturnal serenades. He first addressed the lamp post on the corner; then he trotted along to a tree opposite Criddles' front door and continued his remarks. Mrs. Criddles' appearance at the window was a signal for him to go home, just to see if things were as he had left them, "for," thought he, "I've got an audience in Mrs. Criddles, and she'll listen to my oration." Mrs. C., thankful that the disturbance had ceased, was returning to the pleasurable contemplation of those evening bells, when the yapping cur appeared once more under the window and Mrs. Criddles nudged her husband and sprang into the middle of the room, saying:

"Go home! Go home! I do wish some one would kill that dog."

No response except from the cause of all this woe, who increased the volume of noise till every one in the neighborhood was awake, except Criddles. The dog kept on and the latchets of Mrs. Criddles' tongue became unloosed.

"Criddles! Trueworthy Cornelius Criddles! Do you hear that dog bark?" A grunt, presumed to be in the affirmative, and Criddles snored on.

"I wish I could sleep like that. Why don't some of the neighbors shoot that dog!" No response.

"There he goes down to that large tree. What can possess him to bark so every night?" No response.

"There! There!" in a tone of sarcasm, "did you ever hear anything equal to it? This is the noisiest neighborhood I ever was in."

Criddles rolls over and snorts, and says; "Eh?"

"That dog has been barking these ten minutes. Come to the window and see the fool sitting over opposite, barking at nothing! I don't believe there is a thing stirring."

And Criddles, exasperated, shouts: "Come along to bed, Deborah, and let the dog alone. You are two nuisances togeth—"

A sharp pistol shot from the direction of Neighbor Hersey's front window puts an end to the conversation, and the cur dashes home silently, but with speed.

At early morning, Deborah has a friend to see off in the cars, and Criddles, finding the coast clear, goes into the attic and takes down a queen's-arm that his paternal predecessor had valiantly rallied with for the attack on Fort William and Mary in the war of 1812. He finds it empty and rusty with age, but revenge is in every lineament of his countenance, and he drops in two fingers of powder, a handful of buckshot, a piece of chamois skin which he finds on the kitchen mantel, two lead sinkers from a fishing line, and a handful of grass. "Justice shall do its own perfect work this night," thinks Criddles, and he hides the weapon in the mother-in-law room behind the door.

At midnight, he is on the alert and Deborah doesn't call him the second time before he is treading about the room like a warrior bold, while the dog howls cheerily on. Deborah sees him go into the room of the absent mother and thinks he is after a piece of coal from the grate; and as he is balancing the gun in his hand and peering into the darkness in the direction of the barking dog, she also is endeavoring to discern the author of all this commotion from the bay window in the entry. Thinking she hears a movement in the next house, she is fearful that Criddles may frighten the dog away before the Hersey pistol answers the bark, and whispers as in a tragedy: "Don't disturb him. I hear —" and then there is a crash, a bang, a shriek, a yell, another crash, and—all is still.

Neighbors come flocking into the street, and wonder if it was an earthquake, and go back home still wondering and shivering. Criddles' mother-in-law's room is twenty feet wide, with windows opposite. When Criddles again returns to consciousness he is of the opinion that he has been bound to a fugitive Mazeppa, who after a hundred and fifty nine miles' gallop has leaned up against a tree and is resting. For fear that the frightened beast may start off again, he dares not stir until dawn reveals to him the situation, and the dog business recurs to his slowly gathering wits. It is no Mazeppa that he is astride of, but the ridgepole of a pitch-roofed addition to the family mansion. The rear window in the mother-in-law room is carried away, and he crawls painfully in. An inspection of the premises shows a general musseduped-ness in the room, the gun in pieces and the front sash wrecked. Then he looked for the dog, and lastly for his wife. The former was not to be seen, but there in the street lay an inch of his tail. A beautiful young shade tree is shattered and is no longer an ornament to the house, although it is proof to the neighbors that the lightning did strike somewhere.

Mrs. Criddles was found all in a heap on the floor in a protracted swoon, and takes no interest in dogs. There is one mystery, however, which she cannot solve, and that is: What has become of that piece of chamois skin? Criddles is out of gun and out of ramrod. Squire French says it will take $9.63 to repair the window sashes and Ned Coffin has the contract for furnishing glass and putty. Criddles goes limping about with a porous plaster on, which he obtained at Thacher's on credit; and the dog is nursing his abbreviated anatomy and rehearsing a new oration for his first reappearance. Criddles seems to have nervous spasms as he hears across the way the prolonged monotone of the canine rehearsals—but declares that he will kill that dog if he is obliged to do it by inches!

Road Improvements.

The Lyre says, in endeavoring to parry the home thrust of the Journal, as to the great number of workmen just now employed on the streets for electioneering purposes—that Ex-Mayor Miller kept men at work in the vicinity of his residence last year up to the day of election, to improve his own property. So he did, and has kept men at work on the public highways there ever since and a long while before, at his own expense,—thereby benefitting not only his own property, but constantly adding to the taxable value of the city and promoting the comfort and safety of citizens and strangers.

We are informed that Mr. Miller has himself expended $4000 or $5000 on the new streets adjacent to his estate, which have been given to the city for public highways; and every reasonable Board of Aldermen would naturally want, and any sensible editor would approve as necessary for the public accommodations.

Mr. B. F. Webster also has expended, and is still expending, a large sum in the same manner on his new purchase of the Rundlett lands; and he is likewise entitled to, and will doubtless receive, the fullest co-operation of the city authorities, whoever they may be, at any requisite time.

Monument Association.

The first meeting of the grantees of the Dover Point Monument Association was held at Point Cottage Saturday afternoon. The members of the City Government and a large number of prominent citizens were present. Hon. S. M. Wheeler presided and remarks were made by Rev. Dr. Bouton of Concord, Hon. John D. Lyman of Exeter, Rev. Dr. Quint of New Bedford, and others. Hon. S. M. Wheeler, Rev. C. O. Libby and Hon. John D. Lyman were chosen as a committee to draft by-laws for the Association, to be reported at the next meeting to be called by the chairman. The first permanent settlement in this State was made in 1623.

Jottings.

City election next Monday.

The Direct United States Cable was completed on Sunday. The managers announce that the cable is working perfectly since the steamship Faraday completed the task of repairing the lately discovered flaw. The cable has been tested with most satisfactory results and pronounced in good condition. the signals being perfect. The managers also state that the line will shortly be opened to the public for business and a tariff that will be issued with rates at a figure that will ensure the new company a large portion of the public patronage. The new cable will work in connection with the lines of the Atlantic and Pacific and Franklin Telegraph Company.

The Plumer estate on Church street has been purchased at private sale by Messrs. Main and Winchester.

At least nine-tenths of the paupers and convicts being democrats, so called and so calling themselves, and every democratic vote being needed at the city election next week, the cards issued for Brentwood at this juncture will not be numerous.

There will be grand trots at Rockingham Park on the 21st, 22d and 23d insts., for purses amounting to $1800.

The natives of Newcastle resident in Portsmouth propose to hold a basket picnic, Thursday afternoon and evening, Sept. 16th, at the Wentworth House, Newcastle.

The democratic caucus for nominating a candidate for Mayor will be held on Thursday evening at the State street ward room.

Twenty vessels arrived in this port on Sunday and Monday, bringing in the aggregate 8720 tons of coal. Eleven of the arrivals are large three-masted shcooners.

The Philosophy of Disease.

The philosophy of disease is a subject which is well worthy the attention of mankind, but is, unfortunately, more generally neglected than any other under heaven. Decidedly the most important fact that an examination of it discloses is that, in nine cases out of ten, the originating cause of disease is debility, either general or local, and that the earliest manifestations of its approach are identical with those which evidence a lack of vital power. Such being the case, it is perfectly clear that tonic treatment is what is required in the first instance. As an invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has received the most positive endorsement from eminent physicians, and has long occupied a foremost rank among standard propriety remedies. Its properties as an alterative of disordered conditions of the stomach, liver and bowels, and a preventive of malarial diseases, are no less renowned, and have been accorded professional recommendation equally emphatic.

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.
REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 59 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.
S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.
Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.
Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.
Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.
MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.
MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.
MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.
N. B. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.
ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting them my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section.
MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.
A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.
JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others.

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz. a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

—We may judge a man's character by what he loves—what pleases him. If a manifests a delight in low sordid s—the vulgar song and debasing uage, the misfortunes of his fellows—we may at once determine the complexion of his character. On the contary, if he loves purity, modesty, truth—if virtuous pursuits engage his heart and draw out his affections—we are satisfied he is an upright man. When we see a young man fond of fine clothes and making a fop of himself, it is a sure sign that he thinks the world consists of outside show and ostentation, and he is certain to make an unstable man, without true affection or friendship, fond of change and excitement, and soon weary of those objects and pursuits which for a time gave him pleasure.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over-indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are guaranteed to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that every to day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is on the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and tobacco; both combined and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, the Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in curing a great Nervous Debility and Prostration, by a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health.

MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

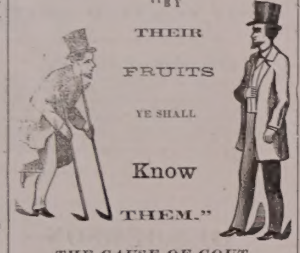
FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE.



THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vauquilin and Barruel. Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts precipitating, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its remedy. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that pubic nce should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the cause with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By suffering a longer or shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any professor can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it in your town, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

-USE-

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Phonographic Wonders of Congress.

There are two systems of short-hand writing in reporting Congress, says the Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times, and one has been carried to such a pitch of completeness as to merit especial notice.

The system of short-hand reporting in the Senate has become by long years' training entirely uniform, so that each reporter can read the other's note with perfect ease. This is not true of probably any other band of short-hand writers in the country. Every short-hand writer may be taught the same general system of writing, but the practice of his profession introduces so many personal peculiarities of the writer's abbreviations, known only to himself, that it is a generally accepted fact that the average short-hand writer can not accurately read the writing of any of his associates. The Senate system has for years constantly weeded out anything of personal peculiarity, and has maintained a strict adherence to the Pitman system, in such accuracy of detail that the copy of the one is always open print to any of the writers. The Senate has for a long time been reported by three Murphy brothers and one assistant. Last December one of the Murphys died, and all last Winter the Senate was reported by the three remaining. The reason of this was that it is impossible under a short time to fill the vacancy. A man has to be trained for the position. The chief, D. F. Murphy has an excellent writer in training, and hopes within two years or more, to make him a worthy member of the famous quartette. In general, the elder Murphy takes the greater part of the notes, and in turn gives his notes to some of his associates to read out more slowly in the retiring room to an inferior order of short-hand men, who ultimately have to do all the transcribing.

In the House there are five reporters, who receive a salary of $5000 a year for their services. They each have a separate system of writing, and could no more read one another's notes than they could translate Sanscrit. They work independently of one another, "goes" of twenty minutes each, and have no authorized chief. In the Senate the elder Murphy is paid $25,000 a year in bulk for reporting the Senate, and he regulates the salaries of those under him. The pay is very good, notwithstanding the fact that the cost of transcribing has to come out of the general fund paid them, as they are free to work for whom they please during the vacations of Congress. Very few of them, however, do much. The absence of the wear and tear of exciting debate leaves them in such a flabby condition that they do little but stagnate during vacations.

There is the most intense rivalry between the staffs of the Senate and the House; and each is convinced that his side of the Capitol is the hardest to care for. The Senate reporters claim that the conversational tone employed in the Senate is the hardest to follow, while the House reporters claim that the noise and scenes of confusion over there so complicate matters that none but the highest order of reportorial talent could meet with any success. The Senate men retort by pointing to the pages of the record, where it is true they average more matter than the House men, while they charge that the House upon uproarious occasions is not ever much more than half reported. This would not seem at all wonderful to any one at all conversant with the situation. In the first place, the hall of Representatives possesses very bad acoustic properties. Then there must be taken into consideration the fact that a reporter must bear in mind the names and faces of over 300 men, of which probably one-half have no distinguishing feature of originality. When the confusion reaches its highest, some twenty or thirty men shouting, "Mr. Speaker!" at the top of their voices, and a dozen or so talking all at once, one can realize some of the difficulties that surround the Congressional reporter charged with the duty of furnishing a verbatim report.

In spite of the jealousies between the two bodies, it is quite generally conceded that D. F. Murphy, of the Senate, is the best short-hand reporter in the United States, if not in the whole world. This man has reported at the rate of 300 words a minute, and made copy that could then accurately be read by any of his brothers. This would seem like the greatest possible feat of reportorial skill, but there is another feat told of the elder Murphy, that has never been equaled. The bare repetition of this story in private circles, by the writer, has earned him a character for romancing entirely undeserved, for it is borne out by the statement of officials of high position who witnessed the feat, and who ever knew officials of high position to lie? Any one can see after this how absurd and unjust it would be to doubt the story.

Some time ago a certain Indian chief came on here with a pack of red beggars at his back to smoke a pipe with the great father as a preliminary to butchering all the frontier people near his reservation. As the story goes, the chief is represented as a Choctaw. The Choctaw language is fully as complicated in its wonderful range of gutterals as any of the barbarous frontier dialects. The noble Choctaw chief made several speeches in the council at Washington. The elder Murphy was present at one of these councils with a friend. This friend had often discussed with Murphy the beauty of phonography, the art of transmitting sounds into translatable shape upon paper.

Murphy had always insisted that a highly trained phonographer should be able to report any language, whether he understood it or not, from the mere following of the scale of its vocalization. The friend seriously doubted this and at the council challenged Murphy to report the Choctaw chief by taking the sound of the original speech. The Choctaw language, when fluently expressed, is a combination of sounds represented by a chicken eating corn off from a board, and the moaning and growling of a sick terrier. Murphy was a little dashed at the proposed experiment, but he showed no hesitation. He took out his note book and dashed after the crazy vowels and volcanic utterances that came rumbling from the Choctaw's bowels. After the confusion of the first moment Murphy succeeded admirably in catching every inflection of the Indian voice, and when Murphy read his notes to an interpreter, so clearly were they taken that the interpreter was able to easily translate them so that the report thus made corresponded with the official interpretation.

There are sad cynical people who believe in nothing that never occurred before who say that Murphy had a combination with the interpreter to sell his friend, but this story is rejected with scorn by the trusting people, who have a confidence in the sublime advancement of the noble art of phonography.

News and Notes.

Gen. N. P. Banks will deliver the annual address of the Connecticut River Valley Agricultural Association at Claremont.

Gen. L. P. Walker has been elected president of the Alabama constitutional convention the republicans and democrats all voting for him. His father was president of the convention which adopted the constitution in 1819, under which Alabama was admitted into the Union.

The North Carolina constitutional convention met on Monday, every member being present, 119 in all, the vacancy caused by the death of Ex-Gov. Graham not being filled. Two ballots for president resulted in Ransom, independent democrat, receiving 59 votes, and Dockery, republican, 58, the two candidates voting scattering, leaving the result undecided.

Gen. Garfield is hopeful that the republicans will carry Ohio by a "comfortable majority." He thinks the vote in October will be the largest ever cast in the State. In fighting against inflation, he says the republicans are running against both wind and tide, but with a full vote he is confident they will win.

The success of the democrats in California will give the democratic party a majority of States in the next Congress—a very important matter, should the election of the President be thrown into the House.

John Hackett of Brookfield shot a white-headed eagle, which measured over six feet from tip to tip of wings, and weighed seven and one half pounds.

Beecher's modesty shows itself on all occasions. The Vermont Chronicle, a Congregational paper, published at Montpelier, thinks the services in the circus tent at the Twin Mountain' house are sensational and unwholesome. A man of the world, being criticized by a newspaper, might curse the editor; but Mr. Beecher merely remarked to his congregation: "I do not know who wrote that, but if we ever meet it will be in this world; for unless he repents, he cannot go where I go." Perhaps, however, the editor referred to would prefer to go elsewhere if his lady friends were to be subject to Beecher's peculiar paroxysms.

The New York and Erie Bank of Buffalo, and Hengehold, an extensive coal dealer of Cincinnati, have suspended.

The season at the White Mountains has been a rushing one all through August, and promises to continue through September. The Fabyan House has not had less than seven hundred guests for three weeks, and has been obliged to turn many away. Next year a pair of wings, each a hundred feet long, will be added to the house.

A syndicate has been formed for the future control of the Bank of California. The liabilities are found to be $11,000,000, and the nominal assets $20,000,000. Of this $20,000,000, $13,000,000 are good and $7,000,000 doubtful. On the day of opening the bank there are assurances that its vaults will contain from three to five millions of gold coin. Business will be resumed by the Bank of California between the 15th and 30th inst.

Manchester is having a holiday on account of the New England and New Hampshire Fair. The mills have closed for the week and the streets are thronged. A large number of strangers are arriving on every train. The list of exhibitors represent every New England State and the Canadas. The entries of sheep, swine, working oxen and horses are unusually large. It is probably the finest exhibition of blood cattle ever shown in New England. The horticultural department is extensive, but the fruits are light on account of the season.

The assignment made by Ralston of his property to Mr. Sharon on the morning of his death will cover all his indebtedness in every direction and leave to his family about $2,000,000. The indebtedness charged against Mr. Ralston was not personal, but that which has grown out of the aid the bank had already given his loans to other industries throughout the State, and which are to day worth more than the indebtedness to the bank.

Miss Annette Pottle, of Jefferson, attempted her life with a pistol at the Plaisted House, in Lancaster, Saturday. She missed her aim and further attempts in that line were intercepted by her friends. On Sunday she attempted poison herself but was not successful. Low spirits occasioned her rashness.

A storm signal station is to be located on Kearsarge mountain, a spot having been selected for that purpose, and a building 20x40 feet is to be erected within thirty days. It will be finished into three rooms. The poles are being cut for the erection of a line of telegraph from Warner Village over the mountain to Potter Place, with an office at the Winslow House.

George Clark, aged twenty, was drowned in Dublin Pond, Sunday, while bathing. His clothes were found in the boat, which had drifted ashore.

The wife of Mr. Ira Goldthwait, of Nashua, widely known in New England as a peddler of Yankee notions, committed suicide, Sunday night, by drowning herself in the Nashua Company's canal, while insane.

Abigail Weare of Dover started from the house of Mr. James Guptill in Rollinsford to return to Dover, and when near the house of a Mr. York, a man came out and assaulted her, it is supposed in the hope of getting some money. He kicked her down and tore her clothes, but she struck him on the nose with a stone which demoralized him so that she got away.

The manly letter of Ex-Lieut.-Gov. Talbot of Massachusetts declining to allow the use of his name in the republican convention as a candidate for Governor shows that the republicans of Massachusetts committed a great mistake in not electing him last year.

Here is the San Francisco Alta's obituary on Mr. Ralston: "W. C. Ralston—His faults we bury with him; his many good acts we have not space to record."

The Canaan Reporter says as C. H. Swett was coming from Dorchester, when near Elkins' hill, he came across a man in the road who asked for a ride. He stopped to let him get in, when the fellow aimed a blow at his head with a club. He warded off the blow with his arm and also received another on the back of his hand. He then gave the fellow a left hander, which laid him out, and drove along. Also that L. E. Follansbee of Dorchester met two men near the same place. He met Swett who told him to be on his guard, and he therefore armed himself with a club. Going down Elkins' hill, a man jumped into the back part of the wagon, and Follansbee dropped his club on his head. The fellow acted as if he had ridden far enough, and got out. Another man stepped out from the side of the road, but Mr. Follansbee started up his horse and left him.

An Inter-Ocean special from Jackson, Miss., gives an account of the conflict between the blacks and whites in Clinton widely different from that already sent through the press. Warren and Hinds counties are in a state of insurrection. The Sheriff of Hinds county, in his official report to Gov. Ames, says that he summoned a posse to quell the riotous proceedings. On arriving at Clinton he found the town quiet, but bands of white men were marauding in the country, shooting peaceable and innocent colored citizens within the town limits; even detached squads were wandering around, driving colored men from their homes. He found it impossible to protect the colored men against these parties. The blacks are unarmed and defenceless. The slaughter of the colored men was fearful, and nobody knows where it will end, should the Governor not interfere. A gentleman from Raymond says it is believed that over 100 negroes have been killed within three days. This is merely hearsay, but it is certain that fifteen to twenty have perished about Clinton. White men bearing arms stand at all the depots and, under the pretence of self-defence, shoot down the negroes in cold blood. Massacres are reported at several points, but none of these reports are authenticated.

A Villain Caught.

George Miles, one of the Barre, Vt., robbers has been arrested. The morning after the robbery a deputy sheriff of Vermont boarded a train passing through New Hampshire in search of some of the bank robbers whom he had reason to suspect were on board. Such proved to be the case, and one of the robbers, while the train was passing Rumney, at a speed of twenty miles an hour, jumped from a car and fled through the woods. The train was immediately stopped, and the fugitive, who had become disabled through his leap from the train, was found near the railroad track and arrested. He was indentified as the notorious burglar Pete Alfonsos, one of the perpetrators of the Barre Bank robbery, for which offence he is now awaiting trial in Vermont. While the chase for Alfonsos was being conducted, his companion on the train, who was no less a personage than Miles or Meyers, taking advantage of the excitement, quitted the train and escaped, leaving behind him a valise containing a dirk, which had been stolen from the residence of the bank cashier on the night of the robbery, and a cap and blouse, identified as those worn by the desperado while engaged in his unlawful operations. The detectives of New York and Boston have since labored diligently for the arrest of the cracksmen, and three at least of the desperadoes are now in the clutches of the law, Joe Tyson, alias Kingsley, alias Fullerton, having been arrested in New York, and sent to serve an unexpired term of nine years in Sing Sing Prison, the Court deciding that New York had a prior claim to Vermont. For the past four weeks detectives have been tracking George Miles, or Meyers, night and day; but the accused, especially since the arrest of his confederate, Tyson, exercised the utmost caution, and scarcely ever ventured out doors. He is said to be the owner, or part owner, of the Brecvort stables, on University place, and considerable other property in New York. He lived in a first-class style, and is said to have amassed a fortune in his discreditable business. The authorities in Vermont state that they will be able to prove, beyond all doubt, that Miles was the man who conducted the cashier from his house to the bank and compelled him to open the safe, from which he took the $13,000 worth of unsigned bills of the bank. They also state that Miles would never have been involved or engaged in the Barre Bank job only that he and his confederates expected to be able to take at least $500,000 from the safe. The capture of Miles was well executed by the detectives having the case in hand, and reflects credit on their sagacity and perseverance. They renewed the search for their man at four o'clock Sunday morning, and having discovered that his residence was at No. 306 West Fifty-fifth street, kept watch until midday, when Miles, in his shirt-sleeves and wearing his hat over his eyes, ventured out to purchase a newspaper. He was immediately pounced upon and ironed almost before he was aware of the fact. At first he affected surprise and demanded the nature of his offence, but soon changed his tactics, and asked the detectives to name their own price for his release. Failing in this direction also, he attempted to resist, but was speedily put in a coach and driven to Police Headquarters just as he was, the detectives not deeming it prudent to allow him to return to his house.

A Plucky Woman.

Clara Morris, New York's favorite actress, has been treated for spinal disease by the famous Dr. Ball of Paris. She refused to take chloroform and sat down on a low chair with bared back, pale yet determined. A friend who was with her writes: "She spoke calmly, requesting me to hold her head, not her hands, and as she sat looking up at me as if to read in my face what was going on behind her, I believe I suffered the more of the two. Then Dr. Belvin lit his furnace, and the roaring of the flame that was to heat the iron to a white heat in a few seconds was dreadful to hear; and while this was going on Prof. Ball marked with a pencil the line the iron was to follow on either side of the spine. Every touch of the pencil sent a thrill through the delicate frame of the poor victim; but the professor had scarcely ended making the pencil marks when, with a flash, the iron was applied. It was dreadful. The white point seemed to sink an inch into the quivering form, with that sickening sound of burning flesh: but beyond a writhing of the body, accompanied by deep, heavy breathing, there was no response—not a shriek, not a sigh or groan. The doctor had nearly completed his dreadful task when Clara starting up cried out in a voice that even moved Prof. Ball: "My God, I cannot, cannot bear it." It was all over, however; and do you know she helped replace her clothes after the wounds were dressed, and walked calmly down to the carriage. The doctors said it was a wonderful exhibit of nerve. She is quite prostrated to-day, and suffers from a violent pain in her head, but the Doctor says it is all right and she will be up and well soon.

—A dirtdauber and a doodlebug have had a deadly encounter near New Orleans. It should be understood, at the outset of the narration, that dirtdaubers are wasps that build mud nests and that doodlebugs are a sort that burrow in the ground. There was a buzzing, and the chronicler saw a wasp had gone into the bug's hole and been caught by his head in the bug's grip. Upon getting loose the wasp rubbed his head and danced with pain. Then, after a moment of apparent close consideration, he cautiously approached the hole and began to scratch dust into it. Occasionally he peeped in to see the effect of his strategy. Thus the hole was slowly filled, and the bug, compelled to keep on the top of the dust or smother, was gradually brought near the surface. At length the bug's head appeared in sight, and the wasp, quickly pouncing upon it, killed his antagonist.

—It was easy enough to get up mornings in the hot weather, but the change of the seasons brings every upright citizen to consider the question, Autumn man spring now winter his clothes in a summary manner?—Norwich Bulletin.

Our City Election.

By order of the democratic minority, Portsmouth is again to go through the farce of pretending to elect city officers on Monday next. We say pretending, because it was well understoood when the democrats got control of the wards and manipulated the checklists to suit themselves, that they meant not to leave the republicans any chance to carry the city, no matter how large a majority they might really have with fair play. So that with many republicans, another "democratic" victory, so called, is a foregone conclusion already; for, say they, no matter how many votes we may throw, the democrats will outvote or outcount us in the wards they control.

If this be true, it would indeed be a farce to go through with the forms of an election, were not the whole matter too serious for joking or tampering. But it cannot be true, unless the republicans have lost all the spirit of their fathers, who refused to allow any masters but the will of the majority, or any law but right. If republicans say true when they repeat the above tale, then are they are mere slaves and vassals, and it matters not who are their rulers or what their form of government—for far better no election, than an unfair ballot.

But this certainly ought not to be the truth, for with three-quarters of the wealth and business, a great preponderance of the intelligence and respectability, and a numerical majority of voters, in the republican party, there ought to be no doubt about our majority at this juncture, and no difficulty in getting them out. At all events, any voter who is not ready, willing and anxious to do his best on this occasion to redeem the city from democratic misrule and partisan corruption and extravagance, —no matter what his own real or imaginary petty personal causes of complaint—is not worthy the glorious name of republican, and almost deserves forever to forfeit the precious right of suffrage.

But let us not despair of the republic, no, rather let every republican do his duty, and win a victory worthy of its better days, as Mayor Goodrich hath it in his inaugural.

Pure Water.

An editorial on this subject, in the Boston Globe, has the following:

From the days of the old Romans down to the present time, political economists have sought for an abundant supply of pure water as the first great need of any great city. The question, to-day, when railroads and manufactures concentrate humanity at so many points, is of more importance than when settlements were made merely where nature has provided a full supply of the true water of life. Our great cities are all seeking an additional water supply, and in many the water now received is expensive and unsatisfactory in quality from the immense waste and sad deterioration consequent on a faulty system of piping. Many different materials have been used for the conveyance of water long distances. The old Roman acqueduct brought water of only the purity of ordinary streams, open to sun, air, dust and like minor evils, a style not feasible in this day or country. The first American aqueduct of which we have cognizance, that at Portsmouth, in operation in 1790, brought water through heavy pine logs, and so continued, up to a year or two since. Lead has proved dangerous for piping, and lined with tin has been found enormously expensive, for a doubtful result; while plain cast and wrought iron rust and corrode; iron lined with cement, glass or porcelain has been found impracticable on account of a lack of elasticity; and galvanized iron, which it was hoped would solve the problem, has been found seriously affected by the various salts and alkalies held in solution by the water conveyed therein. Again, the dependence of a city or large town on a single main of great size has been a cause of disaster from any defect therein, and the future water supply will be doubtless through a number of smaller mains, each independent of the other, thereby precluding the possibility of a general failure. The National tube works company of Boston, Mass., and McKeesport, Pa., seems to have solved the problem as to a perfect pipe, furnishing a seamless, lap-welded, wrought-iron pipe, of from one-half to fourteen inches' diameter, coated inside and out with an indestructible elastic enamel, and capable of withstanding a pressure of 1000 pounds to the square inch. The coating resists all known corrosives, and is elastic enough for all working purposes, while all the connections are made by a sleeve joint that prevents any leakage. This subject is worthy the attention of every person, public or private, desiring a full supply of pure water at the most reasonable rate.

Jottings.

Charles Hayes & Son have fifteen entries of Ayrshire cattle at the State Fair.

The Portsmouth correspondent of Foster's Democrat says: At Jones' brewery, 2000 barrels of ale are brewed every week, and it is said there is a clean profit of three dollars on each barrel.

One of the democratic ward officers, being under indictment for the crime of arson, has been forced to resign, and is succeeded by Mr. Michael R. Perkins.

"About this time," as the old almanacs used to say—that is, it being now about election time—"look out for" democratic lies and misrepresentations respecting republican candidates and republican policy.

See to it, every republican, that your name, and those of your friends, neighbors and acquaintances are on the check-lists, correctly and in season.

There was literally music in the air, Monday evening, and a Chinese kite in the hands of the boy of the period could not have produced more astonishment among the uninitiated. An old darkey tramp who chanced to pass through Penhallow street with a companion, a feminine of the same color, gazed up and down the street, and then at the stars, finally ejaculating to his mutually interested companion: "'Fore de good Lord, honey; de angels am a hummin', suah. Gabriel'll soon sound his trump for de grand awakenin' and we'll all go to glory togedder. Dar ar signs and counter-signs to happen, de good book says, and dat's one ob 'em. Mind you what I say, honey, for de troof will bear its own weight and de day of Pentecost will 'stablish it;"—and tucking her arm under his ragged coat sleeve he shuffled off toward Kittery in a happy frame of mind.

In consequence of the hard cider crusade at South Seabrook, the potato patch of Rev. William A. Rand was entered, one night last week, and fifty hills were wantonly destroyed; but the crusade will go on. As evidence of the need of reform, one man has retailed eighteen barrels of cider lately, and at a serenade to a newly married couple on Rock's Road, near Seabrook depot, two barrels and five gallons of cider were drank.

"Is you gwine down to dat meetin' at de church to-night?" asked Si when he met Pete at the Kimball House corner.

"What meetin' is dat?"

"De cents-tenyal meeting'."

"Is dat some new-fangled kind o' pertrackted meetin' day's a gittin' up 'round hyar?" asked Pete.

"No, you ig'nant nigger! Dis hyar is a meetin' about the selebration of the Fourth o' July Indemancipation Declyrashun next year at Fillimundelfy, and dey calls it de cents-tenyal kase all de niggers isn't suspected to gib more'n 10 cents to'rds de ixpenses!"

"No, dis nigger aint gwine kase dat's some more ob dat tom-foolishness whar swindles a nigger on sibil rites and gits um into dese hyar inskurreptions! I'd rudder spend my dime fur a prize-box wid a tinbres-pin in it. I would!"

Si thought a minute, and then said:

"I b'leeve you's got me on de hip, Pete."

And they both went their ways.

The Most Popular Excursion of the Season.

PORTSM'TH to CRAWFORD'S and FABYAN'S
THROUGH THE
WHITE MOUNTAIN NOTCH.
Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1875,

A Special Train will leave the E. R. R. Station, Portsmouth, for the Mountains, at 7:15 A. M., (stopping only at Kittery and Eliot for passengers,) passing through the famous White Mountain Notch, whose towering Cliffs, Cascades and grandeur of scenery has no comparison east of the Rocky Mountains.

RETURNING, LEAVE FABYAN'S AT 4 P. M.

The Company desirous of making this the most popular excursion of the season and yet place it within the means of all, have made arrangements with the Proprietors of the Mountain Houses for a liberal reduction from their regular rates to those holding excursion tickets.

Also, have arranged with the Mt. Washington Railway Company to take those wishing to visit the Summit of Mt. Washington, at reduced rates. Don't fail to take advantage of the low fare, as it will be the ONLY CHANCE of the season.

TICKETS FOR THE ROUND TRIP, $3.

Return Tickets good from the 15th to the 18th, inclusive.

Tickets for sale at the following places, up to the afternoon of the the 14th, after that at the Ticket Office of the Eastern Railroad. Wm. H. Preston's, Butler & Laighton's, Hutchinson & Connell's.

The Philosophy of Disease.

The philosophy of disease is a subject which is well worthy the attention of mankind, but is, unfortunately, more generally neglected than any other under heaven. Decidedly the most important fact that an examination of it discloses is that, in nine cases out of ten, the originating cause of disease is debility, either general or local, and that the earliest manifestations of its approach are identical with those which evidence a lack of vital power. Such being the case, it is perfectly clear that tonic treatment is what is required in the first instance. As an invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has received the most positive endorsement from eminent physicians, and has long occupied a foremost rank among standard propriety remedies. Its properties as an alterative of disordered conditions of the stomach, liver and bowels, and a preventive of malarial diseases, are no less renowned, and have been accorded professional recommendation equally emphatic.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

—FOR—

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called cure cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly, for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are now smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 5, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTH WOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have used a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these Pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent us, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.

ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and find Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section.

MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.

A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended to be. I have not enjoyed so much health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM B. FELLOWS.

—During the recent moving of the bridge in Holland, one of the traverses, 460 feet long, was misplaced on the supports. It was an inch out of the line, and the problem was how to replace it. Experiments proved that the iron-work expanded a small fraction of an inch to every degree of heat received. It was noticed that the night and day temperature differed by about twenty-five degrees, and it was thought this might be made to move the bridge. In the morning one of the pieces was bolted down securely and the other end left free. In the heat of the sun the iron expanded, and towards night the free end was loosened. The contraction then dragged the whole mass the other way. For two days this experiment was repeated, and the desired place reached. The contraction and expansion of iron bars by fire heat has frequently been used to move heavy weights over short distances. Broken walls and strained roofs and arches have been brought into place by heating iron rods until they expand and then taking the slack by screws and nuts and allowing contraction by cold to pull the wall or roof into place.

—A witness in the Tombs Police Court described a man as an Electric David's Dabber.

"What do you mean?" demanded Justice Duffy.

"Mean?" said the witness, with animation, "he is the soonest ink slinger I ever knew."

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility.

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines unrivalled for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Nodes, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because these medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that ay by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is on the highest importance, then, that individuals should be able to judge for themselves by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are attacked by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial result from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, to a member of our family who had been under treatment by different doctors for nearly three years past without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE!

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vauquilin and Barmeller. Every first-class physician should know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing in themselves around the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is therefore not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it; in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the nodes will be seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, mention the Proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to one of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON. Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about such stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such a nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—he said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal or city constable, enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 18. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with the office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurry trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all this afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Fishing on Horseback.

Fishing with a trolling line on horseback is a novel sport. A correspondent of the Forest and Stream tells how he did it in Florida:

Some seven years ago I was living in Bradford county, of this State, and partly for pleasure and partly for business found occasion to visit an acquaintance some fifteen miles distant in Alachua county. Near my friend's residence were several well known lakes, which swarm with the Southern black bass or, as the natives here misname them, trout. I intended on leaving home to have some sport in that line, and took along a common spoon hook and a jointed bamboo rod. My friend doubted its usefulness.

He looked upon that group of three rather small hooks with a smile of incredulity. Bass are usually caught in this country with live bait, and when the natives use artificial it is composed of a bunch of gaudy feathers and rags, with a half dozen large cod hooks, the whole thing as large as one's two fists, and made fast to a stout cord three or four feet long, and this in turn fastened to a stout spruce or cane pole. A man stands in the bow of a skiff, and as he is paddled along the edge of the lily pads bobs this "fly" upon the surface. When he gets a bite (as they do rise to it freely), he pulls the fish in by the rod, main strength, hand over hand. Knowing, as I did, this style, I really could not blame him for having doubts of my little spoon. He was undeceived, however, the same evening, when I astonished the natives, and myself as well, by having all I could attend to in the shape of bass.

The next day we were riding along the bank of the lake near his house, which, like many others in this region, has sunk partially, so as to leave a strip of beach some thirty or forty feet wide around it; firm footing for a horse to the very edge, and even into the water anywhere. In the bright light I could see many bass, and an occasional pickerel, called here jack fish, lying eight or ten feet from shore. Of course I wished for my rod, as any fisherman would under the circumstances, and the thought instantly flashed through my mind, why dismount to fish, why not fish from horseback? Nothing more easy, certainly, and as soon as I returned to the house I extemporized a gaff, fastened a grain sack to the pommel of my saddle and set out.

I rode along the edge of the water with from forty to sixty feet of line trailing behind me, and it was perfectly astonishing to me to see the way in which the fish struck at a spoon. When I fastened one, of course I halted, and rode out into about three and a half feet of water. Then the fun began, for at first my horse was not inclined to allow an eight or ten pound bass to be splashing about in such close proximity; but after two or three reeled in and were safely deposited in the grain bag, he seemed to take almost as much interest in it as I did. After that day's experience I never was dependent on a boat for good bass fishing, and even tried it by moonlight with excellent success.

A Heavenly Study.

[San Francisco Chronicle.]

The young man, who had always manifested an interest in the heavens above him, paid his quarter and was told to pick out any star he pleased and feast his eyes on it. He glued his optic to the small end of the tube, and after shoving the machine about for some seconds, suddenly became wrapped in the study of something which appeared to give him the highest satisfaction. For several minutes he stood as immovable as a statue.

"Guess he's going to grow there," growled a man waiting for a chance.

"Perhaps he never saw a telescope before," said somebody else.

"Young man," remarked the owner of the tube, "it you propose to monopolize the instrument you must pay more."

The only answer made by the fellow was to quietly put his hand into his pocket, and, without taking his eye away from the opening, hand the man four bits. For nearly fifteen minutes the student of astronomy kept up a raptured and uninterrupted gaze upon the heavens, and paid his regular assessment every time he was called on. The owner of the telescope was taking a rich harvest. Suddenly there was a long-drawn sigh, and, rising from his stooping position, the young man stood up.

"Mister, that's a good telescope and I am satisfied with the show." Then he walked on, and the next man who went to look at a heavenly body didn't see it, from the simple fact that the house on Telegraph Hill which had been in the focus of that telescope for the past fifteen minutes was no longer illuminated, and the girl whose chamber had been peered into so steadily had gone to bed.

A Terrible Story.

[St. Louis Times.]

Our readers may possibly recollect the circumstances of a fatal duel, widely published at the time, which occurred on the 3d of April, 1874, on the old duelling ground on the sandy stretch of shore fronting Bay St. Louis. The participants were Artélie Bienvenue, a broker, and Andrea Phillips, a lawyer, of New Orleans. It was on the same spot where the fatal bullet of Rhett of the Picayune sped to fight the gallant spirit of the intrepid Cooley; the ground on which the rifle shots of Badger and Carter were exchanged; where Scott and Campbell met; and where many a previous bloody episode had expiated a real or imaginary fault.

Aside from the fatal termination of the meeting, the contest between Phillips and Bienvenue would not have been unusually remarkable but for the fact that it was the final scene in the tragic wedded lives of three women—sisters—whose husbands fell by the hand of violence, incited by the evil courses of their wives.

Born of reputable creole parents these sisters were inheritors of vast wealth and a stainless name, and distinguished for personal beauty in a land where the loveliness of women was proverbial. Tenderly reared and brilliantly educated, with possessions that rivalled in extent and excelled in value a German principality, it is not surprising that they became the flattered belles of society, and were the boast and pride of the merchant and planter beaux in all the wild coast country. That these brilliant proteges of the haughtiest aristocracy of the old regime should be destined to exercise the fatal influence they exerted on the men who loved them, and made them their wives, is indeed surprising. But they were flirts from their cradles. Born to admiration, their lives were spent from youth to maturity in an atmosphere of fictitious sentiment and unreal passion. They looked upon men as merely the ministers of pleasures, and as the mediums through which their flattered vanity might grow and expand, as the flower blooms in the warmth of the sunshine. All the aims and duties of life were bounded by the ambitions of society. Admiration to them was appreciation. Taught to regard their individual pleasures as superior to all considerations of convenience to others, it is not surprising that selfishness, indifference and folly became the mainsprings to their actions.

Nor is it astonishing that they exercised the fatal influence they did upon men. Their beauty was glorious. The youngest was the living type of the other two. As the writer saw her but a little over a year ago, she rises before his vision now, a tall, graceful, slender woman, a lithe, willowy form of splendid contour and exquisite symmetry. The oval, tinted face glows with health, and is radiant with intelligence. Deep, slumberous black eyes, unfathomable in their depths, which a word can kindle with excitement or make aglow with passion; a queenly woman, regnant in youth, grace, and the empire of men's hearts. The rich coils of hair, black and intense, were wound above the low, broad forehead, and formed a raven-like crown to the dusky splendor of the dark Egyptian face. Men paused to look at her, and women sighed with envy as she passed. What she was in her youthful bridehood has been imperfectly described; what her sisters were in their matured and splendid womanhood the enthusiast's imagination alone can picture.

And now for the story of their lives. The eldest sister was married to Dr. Sharp of Tuscaloosa, Ala., a polished, graceful gentleman, whose love and devotion might have contented any woman less prone to the allurements of society and the admiration of men. It was in the first year of the war, and the most brilliant society in the South was gathered at Mobile and New Orleans. With an appetite whetted to fever heat by a few months' abstinence from social pleasures, she plunged recklessly into a whirlpool of gaiety. The married flirt wears no armor of innocence. Her love of admiration is pitted against man's duplicity and cunning She staked and lost. From folly there is but one step to imprudence, and that step was taken, despite a husband's jealousy and sense of honor. The end was inevitable; a challenge and a duel, and her husband fell pierced to the heart by the bullet of her seducer. There was no pity for a woman like this; society repelled her, her friends discarded her, and she fled to New Orleans to lead the life of an adventuress.

The second sister shortly afterward married the son of a distinguished journalist in Mobile. The fate of her elder sister was no bar to a career of similar folly. Society received her with open arms. Wealth, influential connections and alliances with a distinguished family obscured for a time the recollections of a sister's imprudence. But gossip soon grew busy with her name. From one folly to another she passed with fatal haste and seeming indifference, until in a fatal hour her husband learned that the woman he loved, the wife that he idolized, was a thing to be scorned. It broke his heart. With the downfall of his idol, his reason wavered, and he perished by his own hand. For all his brilliant talents, and the promise of a splendid woman, he died the victim of a woman's perfidy.

The younger sister became the wife of Bienvenue, a young broker of New Orleans. Rich, beautiful and accomplished, she was at once a leader in society. Courted, flattered and caressed, she plunged headlong into the vortex. Men lavished praises upon her—women hated and smiled upon her. What cared she? beautiful, reckless, heartless and indifferent to all alike, she cared only for that social admiration which was the sunshine of her life. Her large fortune gave her an income in her individual right. This gave wings to her extravagance and enabled her to contract bills in her own name. One of them—a milliner's bill—was overdue, suit was brought and execution issued which Mr. Phillips, the lawyer, had levied for satisfaction upon her carriage and horses. In an interview subsequently had with the lady, regarding the settlement of the bill, words which she construed into an insult were charged upon the attorney. Her husband resented it—a challenge ensued—and then the fatal duel on that sad April morning, when a husband's life ebbed away its purple tide upon the lonely beach, the last unhappy victim of the fatal sisters' folly and extravagance.

—Old Prob. has hit it every day for six weeks.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1875.

Ralston's Last Day Alive.

After the meeting with the directors and the interview with the reporters on Thursday afternoon, Mr. Ralston, when all outside parties had left the bank, called the clerks around him and made them a little speech. He complimented them upon their industry and devotion, told them that he recognized the fact that each in his place had labored for the interest of the bank, as he had, and assured them that, though the time had come when they must separate, he would still maintain a watch over their interests, and would, to the best of his ability, assist each and every one of them to obtain a new an honest living. At a meeting of directors, Mr. Ralston remained in the outside room with Col. W. H. L. Barnes, his attorney. After a while one of the directors came out and made a request for his resignation as President of the bank. Without moving a muscle of his face Mr. Ralston signed the resignation and handed it to the director. Rising from his desk he approached Col. Banes and entered into conversation with him, the latter repeating to him the proverb that nothing is so bad but that it may be mended. He appeared undisturbed and possessed, and again repeating what he had said yesterday about his ability to commence again and live on $100 a month, taking his hat, he slipped in among the clerks so quietly that no one noticed he was going out, and passed into Sansome street by the side entrance. He went up Sansome street to Clay, meeting on the way Christopher Reis and exchanging a few words with him, and then walking up Clay to Kearney, he took the steam railroad, and reaching the summit of the hill walked at a brisk rate to the bath house.

About midday there was a meeting of the trustees. Pending the arrangement of details, Mr. Ralston went out into the banking room, and while seated there in a dejected attitude, with his head bent forward, James R. Keene, the wealthy broker, entered. He came up to Mr. Ralston, touched him on the shoulder, and said pleasantly, "When we get the affairs of the bank straightened up, I am going to get together a capital equal to that which it has been swinging, and we'll start another." To this bit of kind-hearted facetiousness Mr. Ralston simply replied, "I shall never be engaged in another banking enterprise."

The keeper of the bath house, where Ralston was drowned, says: "You see, Mr. Ralston has been in the habit, for the last three or four months, of coming to my house and bathing out there in the bay. He used to ride down there on a fine, spirited horse, but didn't to-day. The last time he was here was on last Monday, in the afternoon—he used to pay me four bits every time he came, and always refused change, and I gave him extra towels and extra mat for his room. To-day he came in about half past three o'clock. He went into one of them small rooms to undress, after giving me another four-bit piece. I went into the room to bring him an extra carpet for the floor. When I went in he was undressing, and his face was covered with sweat. A short while after he came to the door and handed me his clothes, saying: 'Keep these for me, Mr. Richards: there are valuable papers in my pocket.' He'd never left his clothes with me before. Then I saw him swimming beyond that pile out there. He was a splendid swimmer, and every time he came here he used to swim out as far as that. In a few minutes afterward a man, whose name I have since learned is Mr. Giamboni, came running up to the house and said, 'Mister, that man who went in a few moments ago, swimming—we can't see him.' That alarmed me, and I went out upon the beach and looked all around the water, but couldn't see him. Some one said that he had gone on down past the smelting works. I said to myself: 'That's bad; he never used to do that,' and I hurried up and got my boat out, and rowed down by the smelting works."

That Mr. Ralston has long been struggling with pecuniary difficulties is now evident. All the vast property which he once possessed has been sold piecemeal, and turned into the maelstrom which beset him. It is said that, with the exception of life insurance policies amounting to some $65,000 in the Mutual, Charter Oak, and Equitable companies, he leaves his family absolutely penniless. The magnificent mansion which he had recently built was turned over to the bank, his wife leaving it for the residence of her father, Col. Fry. In the midst of his difficulties, Mr. Ralston has been morbidly sensitive to the newspaper attacks to which he has recently been subjected, although to the outside world he bore them with the stoicism of an Indian warrior at the stake.

Singular Case of Suicide.

The jury in the case of the late General W. K. Kimball, who was found dead last Thursday, has returned a verdict that he came to his death by a pistol shot fired by his own hand. The Eastern Argus says:

It has long been known by those intimately connected with the family that the domestic relations were not all of the happiest nature, but at the urgent and oft-repeated request of the General, nothing was said of it outside the family, his strong affection for the children making him desirous that no mention be made of it. Last Monday his mother-in-law died, and Wednesday he attended her funeral. She had always borne a great affection for him, and her death seemed to be the severance of the last tie that bound him to earth. He spoke but little to members of his family after that, but kept his room for the most of the time. Thursday the family sent to his room to call him to dinner, when they found him lying upon the bed with a pistol wound in the right temple. A physician was summoned at once, but the General continued to breathe only forty minutes. A very carefully written and punctuated note in the General's handwriting was found upon the table. It was directed to the coroner, Mr. Austin, who is also a son-in-law of the General. It said: "There is no need for a coroner. I know what I am about, I am a sorrow stricken man, of no use to myself nor to my family. I go to the front as a volunteer, not waiting to be drafted by the grim messenger. God forgive me the sin, if it is a sin."

Diamond Cut Diamond.

"'Says he, 'Ain't your name, Bill Johnson?'

"'Not much it ain't,' says I. 'Well, says he, 'it's the strikin'est likeness I ever seed. 'Theu,' says Rocky, 'I knowed he were a lyiu', 'cause I knowed there wern't another chap in the world so ugly as me.' 'Never mind,' says he agin, 'come and take a drink for the sake of my old chum; well, I'd picked you out for him among ten thousand.'

"'Would you?' says Rocky, quite simple. 'Now that's strange, ain't it, that there should be two of us with only a starboard eye apiece, and a swivel eye at that?'

"'Strange,' says the chap, 'why it's wonderful.' 'Well,' says Rocky, continuin,' 'we goes up to the bar and we has a drink. He probably thought I were a lookin' at a picture of "Black-Eyed Susan" which were a hanging up behind the barkeeper, whereas I were a lookin' at them glasses all the while, and when he took his grog, then I then I took mine. 'Cause, so long as we both drank out of one bottle, turn and turn about, I didn't care for him. Well we went out together and went a rollin' down town, both on us a pretendin' to be a little in the wind. I think we had six drinks on the way down to the Battery, and every time I see that he took his grog from the same bottle as I did, and that he drank fair. At last we gits down in Whitehall street, and says he, 'I've got a boat down in the slip here, and I'm goin' out for a row to work this ere rum out o' me. We'll go in and take another drink, and you shall stand treat, and then we'll go for a row."

"'All right,' says I, and we goes in. He pours out his grog, and as I was a-pourin' out mine he kind of surged up again' me knockin' me a little ways off from the bar, and I seen him drop somethin' into my glass. 'With that,' said Rocky, goin' on, 'I kind of recovered myself, and fetched up agin' him with such force that I knocked him three or four feet away from the bar, and when we both of us recovered ourselves and come up to our liquor again, them glasses was changed and he drank my dose. He were in a great hurry, then for to be off, and I went along of him knowin' I could manage him at the last, and I went staggerin' down to the boat. I don't know if he were a pretendin' or not, but he staggered jist as much as I did, and so tack and half tack, we works down the street, got into the boat and pulls out of the slip. I kep my eye on to him all the time, to see what game he would be up to, but for all he knowed I were alookin' at Governor's Island. The tide were jist on the last of the ebb, and says he, "We'll pull down and come back on the flood." His tongue was very thick when he said this, and I could see he weren't a pretendin' no more, for he kep a gettin' more and more groggy, and at last I seen him tumble backwards into the bottom of the boat as dead as a log. I got hold of him and dragged him aft into the stern sheets, and then a idee struck me. All along I had been intendin' for to hammer him, but now I seed what he'd been up to. There were the old Cambridge jist off Bedloe's Island, and I says, "I'll send you to sea, my hearty, instead of your sendin' me." But first off, I done for him what I know'd he would have done for me. I went through him from clew to earin'. He had a gold watch, and I know'd if I didn't take that some one else would, as soon as he got aboard, so I takes that, and, says I, "I'll keep this to remember you by." He didn't have much money—only a little over $9—but there was two due bills for $75 each, for two chaps as he'd took off to this very ship. Then there was some printed receipts for sailors for the mates to sign, one of which were filled up with the name of "John Wilson." I'd seen the cuss writhin' as we come'd along, in one of the places we stopped into, and, says I, "You choosed that name yourself, my hearty, and your'n it shall be." Then I took the oars and pulled alongside of the ship." "On deck, there, says I; "send a bow-line down for this 'ere chap; he's been overcome by the motion of the boat." Well, the mate he laughed, and I bent him on and they pulled him up. Then I handed up the printed receipt, and the mate he signed it. How many more do you want?" says I. "Only one, says the mate; "and if we don't git him we shan't wait, but shall git under weigh at half-flood, if we can git enough of 'em sober for to have the anchor up."

"That there chap I jist brought off," says I; "You'll find a first-rate man when he comes to, but he's bowsed his jib up a little too taut this mornin', but he'll soon sleep it off. When he wakes up tell him his old chum, Bill Johnson, seed him safe aboard, will you?" "All right," says the mate, and I pulled ashore. I landed on the North River side, and then I went over to Burlin's slip, where the shippin' office were, and handed in the receipt and got a due bill, which I put along with the other two. Then, arter I'd had somethin' to eat, went down to the battery. I didn't have but one eye, and that were badly a-cockbill; but if I had a hundred of the best eyes that ever were I couldn't have enjoyed the sight more than I did when I seed a steamer go alongside the old Cambridge and tow her down the bay."

"And that, sir, were the way Rocky Moore sarved a land-shark."

Jottings.

There was quite a frost in some localities on Tuesday night.

The Grangers of Rockingham County are to have a clam-bake at Boar's Head next Tuesday.

Temperance meeting this Thursday evening at the chapel of the North Church on Middle street at half-past 7 o'clock.

Herman Carpenter, the young man who was accidentally shot in the breast at the Wentworth last Saturday, is very low, although his physician has hopes of his recovery, if mortification does not ensue.

A superb flowering plant, well worth a visit, is the scarlet and white Clerodendron, now in full bloom at the greenhouse of Mrs. Pearson, on Broad street. It has been examined and admired by hundreds of visitors.

Wolfeborough has been designated as the place for holding the annual meeting of the State teachers' meeting, the time to be announced hereafter. J. G. Edgerly, Esq., of Manchester, and Prof. Walker of Pembroke have been engaged to deliver addresses during the session.

The picnic at the "Bay Side," under the supervision of those whose knowledge in the arrangement of such affairs is too well known to need comment passed off to the satisfaction of all present Tuesday, Sept. 7th. We were not only regaled with clams, sweet potatoes, corn fresh from an oven, independent of bricks and mortar, sufficient to satisfy the most egregious appetite, but in addition, a seeming aggravation, coffee, various kinds of cake, flies, fruit and other viands, showing that Greenland is not far behind her sister towns in culinary knowledge. Fain would we have lingered till evening, in her compassion, had thrown around us her dewy mantle, had not home duties become imperative. Leaving the younger portion of the company enraptured with the beautiful game of croquet, we returned home more than ever convinced, that for healthful location, beautiful scenery and sublime thoughts, no place can excel Bay Side.

Where the water so lucid, in abundance is seen,
As we rove through the trees or sit on the green,
And think of that River, which ever doth flow,
Giving Life, Strength and Vigor to all here below.

Illness of Father Walsh.

Rev. Canon Walsh of the Catholic Church stated to his congregation last Sabbath that he was about to make application to the Bishop of his diocese for a six months' leave of absence in consequence of the severe attacks of pain in the head that he experiences from time to time. Since making the above announcement the Bishop has granted the request and the pulpit will be for the present supplied by Father O'Donnell of Nashua, a clergyman who took a conspicuous part at the dedication of St. Mary's church.

The departure of Father Walsh from among us is greatly regretted by his many friends. He has, by a conscientious performance of duty, won the esteem of Protestant as well as Catholic so that he numbers hosts of friends among all classes of society, and in all denominations, without regard to creed. It will be remembered that once upon a time Father Walsh was selected by Judge Doe at the opening of a term of the Supreme Court to offer the prayer, and an eloquent effort followed that was greatly admired by all present. The result was his subsequent appointment by the Governor and Council as Magistrate of New Hampshire.

The health of the reverend gentleman was greatly impaired by the herculean efforts made by him in erecting the fine new church on Summer street. Few Catholic priests in these times, are ever called upon to make such sacrifices of health, labor and money as Father Walsh has done since the commencement of the new church edifice; but he has to congratulate himself that his efforts have been crowned with triumphant success, which, to him is doubtless, a sufficient reward. His physician, Dr. Osorio, admonished him that it was quite impossible for him to recover without at least, six months' rest. He has therefore decided to visit Cuba this Winter, returning in the Spring. We trust that his stay abroad will be limited and that he will return to his parish perfectly renovated and improved in health, as his church can ill afford the absence of so valuable a priest.

Pharmaceutical.

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 7th, 1875.

Dear Chronicle: The twenty-third annual meeting of the American Pharmaceutical Association began to-day at three o'clock in the Odd Fellows' splendid building on the corner of Tremont and Berkeley streets. The attendance is large, members of the association being here from every considerable city in the country.

The Boston druggists spare no pains in their efforts to make the occasion one of interest and pleasure to their visitors, many of whom are accompanied by their wives and sisters.

This, the largest scientific association in the United States, was founded in Philadelphia in 1852, to promote the interest of the drug trade and establish it on a scientific basis. The success of the enterprise exceeds the anticipations of its early friends and projectors.

The association maintains correspondence with kindred societies in Europe, and has been ably represented in many foreign and international conferences. Next year the Convention will be held at Philadelphia during the Centennial celebration and many European societies will send delegates.

The association is rapidly increasing in membership and influence. Quite a number of it active members are natives of Portsmouth, former apprentices to Kimball, Hutchings, Preston and Thacher. It has been my good fortune to meet several druggists here from distant cities who first handled the "pestle" in old Portsmouth. Conspicuous among the elegant medicinal preparations displayed in the spacious hall is a case of Marvin's Cod Liver Oil, a product of Portsmouth industry and enterprise.

The facilities for the despatch of the regular business of the association and the display of chemicals and drugs are perfect. The arrangements for the entertainment of the visiting members and their ladies reflect great credit upon the reputation for generous hospitality which Boston druggists have always maintained. The social part of the programme includes a reception at the St. James' Hotel this evening, banquet and promenade concert Wednesday evening; Thursday, the visiting ladies will be taken to the places of interest in and around the city; Friday, a grand steamboat excursion to the islands in the bay, to conclude with a grand ball in the evening. The weather is very favorable, and a grand time is anticipated. Yours, R.

News and Notes.

Mr. Frank Colbath, of Middleton, attempted to murder his wife and to commit suicide Monday night, but failed in both attempts. Having become intemperate a few years since, his wife became afraid of him, and lately went to the house of a neighbor to live. Colbath visited her Monday and was admitted to her room, the family fearing nothing; but they soon heard a scream, and the husband was discovered in the act of shooting her. A desperate struggle followed, in which Colbath was disarmed and locked up, while parties hastened to procure a warrant for his arrest. In the interim he cut his throat and was found lying in a pool of blood when an officer arrived. He was not badly hurt, however, and was put under $2000 bonds to wait the action of the Grand Jury. Colbath's age is 60 and he was formerly a highly respected citizen.

A very spirited and agreeable family festival was held at the residence of Mr. Otis Warren in Worcester, Mass., last week, it being the birthday of the mother of Mrs. Warren, Mrs. Ruth C. Willard, widow of Capt. Aaron Willard of Charleston. There was quite a large representation of the family connections of two, three, and even the fourth generations. Among the guests were Rev. John G. Adams and wife (who is a daughter of Mrs. Willard,) of Cincinnati, Ohio. Among the exercises of the occasions, Mr. Adams read a fine original poem on the Willard family, which being from his own facile pen, was, of course, well received.

Mr. Kent of the U. S. Detective Force arrested on Tuesday evening, at Clinton Me., Nathaniel W. Randall, who has lately been living at Winslow. He is charged with altering one dollar bills to fives and passing the same as genuine fives. He denies the charge. Mr. Randall is somewhat noted in this vicinity as a revival preacher, and a short time ago was appointed a trial justice, but a few days since his commission was revoked. Detective Kent took him to Portland Wednesday.

Gov. Ames of Mississippi has appealed to President Grant for means of giving that protection to which every American citizen is entitled. He says the necessity of immediate action cannot be over stated.

Owens, the comedian, is delivering lectures upon agriculture to the benighted farmers of Maryland, among whom he is as a missionary among savages; and to hear one of these lectures is worth a year in the penitentiary.

PORTSM'TH to CRAWFORD'S and FABYAN'S
THROUGH THE
WHITE MOUNTAIN NOTCH.
Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1875,
A Special Train will leave the E. R. R. Station, Portsmouth, for the Mountains, at 7:15 A. M., (stopping only at Kittery and Eliot for passengers,) passing through the famous White Moutain Notch, whose towering Cliffs, Cascades and grandeur of scenery has no comparison east of the Rocky Mountains.
RETURNING, LEAVE FABYAN'S AT 4 P. M.
The Company desirous of making this the most popular excursion of the season and yet place it within the means of all, have made arrangements with the Proprietors of the Mountain Hotels for a liberal reduction from their regular rates to those holding excursion tickets.
Also, I have arranged with the Mt. Washington Railway Company to take those wishing to visit the Summit of Mt. Washington, at reduced rates. Don't fail to take advantage of the low rate, as it will be the ONLY CHANCE of the season.

A Popular Error Committed.

It is an absurd but very common error to suppose that a disordered condition of the liver can be remedied by a simple cathartic. Such is, however, far from being the case. Cathartics do not touch the liver at all. It is only when (as in the case of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters) the laxative principle is combined with tonic and stimulative elements, that the great secretive gland is directly acted upon. The Bitters, although sufficiently laxative to relieve the bowels moderately, do not owe their anti-bilious effects to purgation merely, but to their power of rousing the liver from its inaction and impelling it to secrete and distribute the bile in sufficient quantities for the purposes of digestion and evacuation. Its effect upon the stomach and bowels is such as to ensure the regular discharge of the functions named and prevent abstraction or vitiation of the biliary fluid—In other words, to secure entire co-operation with the liver.

THE NEW TOWN HALL AT AYER. This elegant structure is now complete. In beauty of design it surpasses anything of its kind in the State. Constructed of brick and dark marble it is as permanent as it is charming. The English architects have adorned it in subdued colors, which please without tiring the eye. Dr. J. C. Ayer built and gave it to the town in acknowledgment of the distinction they conferred upon him in taking his name. Although it is a generous gift, still the hearty good wishes of a whole people are of greater value, and the generous donor has doubtless secured them.—Groton (Mass.) Journal.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $15, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."
LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.
T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.
EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.
REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.
I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.
S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.
NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.
T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.
NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.
Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.
WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.
THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.
Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week.

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS,
ROLLINSFORD, N. H.
THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.
Nov. 5, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.
MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.
MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.
MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.
N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Compaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $3.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.
ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be seen in that section.
MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Billiousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.
A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.
JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.
CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.
MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others.
WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

—"Well, bub," replied Bijah, as he finished hanging up the broom, "this currency question bothers many besides you, though it's clear enough to me. You see that twenty-five cent scrip, don't you?" The boy remarked that he did, and Bijah placed it on the window-sill, weighed it down with a peach-stone, and continued: "That bit of paper is marked "25 cents,' but is it twenty-five cents? Is it anything more then a piece of paper?" "I dunno," solemnly replied the boy. "Has that bit of paper any real value beyond its being a promise to pay?" demanded Bijah. "What paper?" "That 'ere twenty-five ——" He stopped there. Some one had sneaked up the alley and slyly stolen both scrip and peach-stone. "Never mind," condoled the boy, "it hadn't any intrinsic value." "It hadn't eh?" growled the old janitor; "I just want to catch the wolf who absorbed it!"—Detroit Free Press.

An English Remedy

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS,

For Nervousness and General Debility,

PREMATURE decay, mental and physical prostration, fear, despondency, over indulgence in the use of opium or alcoholic drinks, tobacco, &c., &c. Medicines prepared for their wonderful properties and remarkable cures of all Nervous Complaints. Their efficacy is equally great in the treatment and cure of Cancers, Scalds, Ulcers, Pustules, Pimples, Tetter, Fever Sores, Ringworm, Erysipelas, Scald-Head, Barbers' Itch, Scurvy, Salt Rheum, Copper Colored Blotches, Glandular Swelling, Worms and Black Spots in the flesh, Discoloration, Ulcers in the Throat, Mouth and Nose, Sore Legs, and sores of every character, because the medicines are the very best Blood Medicine ever placed before the people, and are warranted to be the most Powerful Alterative ever originated by man. They impart Strength to the Body and Vigor to the Mind, removing Morbid Sensibility, Depression of Spirits, Dementia and Melancholia.

NERVOUS DEBILITY.

However obscure the causes may be which contribute to render nervous debility a disease so prevalent, affecting as it does, nearly one-half of our adult population, it is a melancholy fact that day by day, and year by year, we witness a most frightful increase of nervous affections from the slightest neuralgia to the more grave and extreme forms of Nervous Prostration.

It is of the highest importance, then, the individuals should be able to judge for themselves by their own feelings, if and to what extent they are affected by this insidious enemy to ill health, comfort, and even life itself if left to run its course unchecked by the early and prompt application of curative remedies.

DRUNKENNESS.

THE CORDIAL BALM OF SYRICUM AND TONIC PILLS is the only remedy that has ever proved by practical experience a benefit to those who suffer from over-indulgence in alcoholic liquors; it completely destroys the taste for them, and restores the victim of intemperance to health and vigor. A single trial will prove it to be just what it is recommended to be.

Price $2.50. Large size, $5. Each package of the Cordial Balm contains one box of the Tonic Pills, which may also be had separately at 50 cents per box.

RECENT TESTIMONIALS.

FREWSBURGH, Nov. 12, 1874.

I have used the Cordial Balm and Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills as a preventive and cure for the use of ardent spirits and habitual intoxication, and find them actually specific in such cases. I regard them as most invaluable medicines, and nothing could induce me to be without them.

JACOB MESERVE.

TIPTON, Dec. 3, 1874.

We take great pleasure in informing you of the surprisingly beneficial results from the use of your English Remedy, The Cordial Balm of Syricum and Lothrop's Tonic Pills, in a case of great Nervous Debility and Prostration, of a member of our family who had been under continued treatment of doctors for nearly three years, but without any apparent benefit therefrom; but your medicines have produced a most wonderful change for the better and the patient now enjoys comparatively excellent health. MRS. HARRIET STURGISS.

P. S.—We tell all with whom we are acquainted who are similarly afflicted to try your medicines.

FACTS PROVEN

BY THE

TEST OF EXPERIENCE!

THE CAUSE OF GOUT.

It proceeds from a deficiency of, or an alteration in the cutaneous, urinary or intestinal secretions. This definition leads us to the solution of a second and not less important question:

HOW TO CURE THE GOUT.

This can only be accomplished by a course of treatment capable of establishing the perspiration, if suppressed, of inducing a proper flow of urine, and of destroying the obstinate constipation when it exists. But it is not sufficient that these three functions act properly as respect quantity, but above all, and before all, their quality must have our attention. Indeed, we have mentioned not only a deficiency but also an alteration of secretion. For the perspiration, the urine, and the evacuations should be not only sufficiently abundant, but should carry off certain principles whose stay would produce the most serious disorders.

This is precisely what we see in the Gout. Does it not often happen that after an attack, the joints become deformed by chalky concretions? These gouty deposits have been analyzed by the Chemists Wallaston, Fourcroy, Vanquilin and Barrnell.—Every freelance physician would know their composition, then there would remain to find a means to prevent these salts spreading, and, as it were, condensing of themselves throughout the system. The receipt from which is compounded the will produce this desirable result, because it gives to the products of the body the quantity and quality necessary.

CHRONIC GOUT having been engendered insensibly during a certain lapse of time, time is necessary for its removal. Its elimination must take place atom by atom. It is, therefore, not surprising that patience should be required for a complete cure. We must be careful not to confound the acute with the chronic condition; if the latter, it requires weeks to remove it, in the former, a few doses only are necessary to effect a complete cure.

By persevering a longer or a shorter time, according to the severity of the case, the joints will gradually recover their suppleness, and the deposits are seen to soften and diminish insensibly. This last is an infallible test of the wonderful properties of the

DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

To this unerring proof we can, by the aid of Chemistry, add another, equally palpable and convincing:

The articular concretions are composed principally of uric acid, waters of ammonia, of soda, and of phosphate of lime. These are precisely the salts which we find in the various excreta, particularly in the urine; so that chemical reagents which showed scarcely a trace of these before taking the DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE, will demonstrate an enormous proportion after its use.

Thus the concretions, the principal components of which analysis has shown can be again reproduced, and will thus furnish the most convincing proof any medicine can offer. This, then, is the most rational plan of proceeding, and which enabled us to answer the question of a certain English M. P., "WHAT HAS BECOME OF MY GOUT?" We told him that "it followed the course of the evacuations," since chemical analysis, as has been said, finds in them all the principles which produce it. Henceforth it is clear that this medicine is and ought to banish not only all ideas of retrogressions, but should inspire the most perfect confidence. It cannot be too often repeated, these are no hypotheses, no vain theories, but palpable truths, material, physical facts, confirmed over and over again by twenty-five years' practical experience in the leading hospitals of England and France, as well as by thousands of testimonials held by every one of our agents, freely offered by sufferers restored to sound health and continued use, furnished through the means of the world-renowned DIAMOND RHEUMATIC CURE.

It is styled as above for the reason that its great efficacy in rheumatic complaints is just as apparent as in gout, and thousands of sufferers in Massachusetts to-day, cured of rheumatism by its use, endorse the proprietor's name with benedictions of praise.

This medicine is for sale at all Druggists throughout the United States, and Canada. If it happens that your Druggist has not got it in stock, ask him to send for it to any of the Wholesale Druggists in Boston. Price $1 a bottle.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurrying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

John Chinaman In New York.

The New York Tribune describes the haunts of the Chinese in that city as follows:

"In the Sixth Ward is a small district where most of the Chinese in New York live. A visitor to their opium smoking dens may go to Baxter street, just below Franklin, where was formerly Donovan's lane, the resort of the most desperate villains in the city, but which is now a Y shaped court shut in on all sides by high tenement houses. On the ground floor of one of these buildings is the establishment of 'Old John,' a Chinaman 74 years old, who has been in the United States for forty-seven years, and was the first of his race to become naturalized. His quarters comprise three rooms. By the door is seated his assistant, who gives out the drug. Upon one side of the room is a low platform or dias, sometimes there are two, one above the other, like berths, upon which men are to be seen reclining in the different stages of opium intoxication. The proprietor furnishes his customers with pipes and a place to lie down. The drug is weighed out upon a rude pair of reed scales. The weight used is a silver coin. Each smoker is provided with a small horn box, which will contain about fifteen cents' worth of opium—enough to last an average smoker all night. The preparation is undoubtedly adulterated, since it costs the druggest $23.50 a pound

The pipe consist of a bamboo stem and a porcelain bowl about two inches in diameter, in the centre of which is the receptacle for the opium. A small piece of the drug is taken up on an iron rod and heated until it is dried to a proper consistency. Then it is inserted into the pipe, and the smoker slowly draws the smoke through, soon filling the whole room with a peculiar smell.

A few doors below, on the same side, is another place where smoking is carried on, which does not differ materially from 'Old John's.' There is, however, a temple in connection with it. On the wall is hung a gayly painted picture of some Chinese god, at whose shoulder, on one side, man's good angel is represented, and on the other his live angel. The faces are very grotesque, and resemble those painted upon tea chests.

Hanging upon the picture are numerous tinsel and paper flowers, with faces painted upon the petals, and a little below the picture is a shrine, upon which stand two candles, to be lighted only upon festival occasions. In the middle is a dish containing sand, in which are the burned fragments of numerous joss-sticks. The pious Celestial lights one of these, and, placing it in the sand on the altar, prays to his deity. From the ceiling hangs two Chinese lanterns, and there is also a glass vessel containing some kind of vegetable oil in which floats a burning wick. A cup of the same oil is placed in the shrine for the especial use of the god. Upon the walls are hung bulletin-boards where the news which agitates the Chinese world is pasted. A curious scroll, resembling the red cover on a pack of fire-crackers, attracts attention, and proves to be a dictionary of the places of business of the principal Chinese merchants in San Francisco."

—A strange story is reported from Spain. A detachment of Alfonsist soldiers recently discovered in a secluded part of a mountain chain a cavern which was inhabited by robbers, who had taken advantage of the civil war in order to ply their criminal avocations. An alcove was attached to this subterraneous dwelling, the door of which the soldiers broke open. They were astonished to find the department decently furnished, and provided with books, flowers, and even a piano. In an easy chair sat a venerable old man. The soldier interrogated him, but obtained only incoherent replies. It has since been ascertained, from the confession of one of the robbers, that the old man was the cashier of a banking firm at Burgos; that they had broken into the bank, stolen the safe and taken the cashier with them, in hopes that he would assist them to open the safe. During their retreat, which was marked by many adventures, the intrepid old man succeeded in evading the vigilance of his guardians for a short time, and secreting the safe in a place where he would be able to recover it afterward. When the booty was missed, and the robbers failed to induce the cashier to reveal to them the place where it was concealed, they revived the proceedings of the famous chauffeurs by roasting the feet of their victim in order to extort a confession. But the inflicted tortures had a different effect. The man got mad; and it was with the object of restoring him to reason that the robbers bestowed the utmost attention on him, in hopes that when he recovered his reason he would reveal to them the place where the safe was concealed.

—Col. Baker has been interviewed in prison by an American correspondent, and he talked about his fate in a very despairing sort of a way. As to the sentence he said: "It is a very severe one, more, perhaps, in its effect than in itself. I have believed all along that the clamor made about my case would prejudice it in the minds of a common jury. I am still of that opinion. Had it not been rumored that the Prince of Wales and others were exerting influences to save me, I believe that more consideration would have been taken of my services, and that simply a fine would have been inflicted. But Mr. Justice Brett, who evidently wished to spare me degradation when he said by brilliant deeds I might rehabilitate myself, did not realize that imprisonment was fatal to me. Many indecent assaults are not punished by imprisonment. He obeyed the popular clamor, and no doubt thought he would be accused of partiality did he not condemn me to the extreme penalty of the offence. In this way I was made a sacrifice to the cry of 'One law for the rich and poor alike.' I do not accuse my judge, and I foresaw this. It is the reason why I wanted a special jury and a higher court. I should no doubt have been found guilty but the disgrace of imprisonment might have been spared me."

Ohio.

The nomination of Geghan, in Cincinnati, by the democrats, for member of the legislature, and the mode in which it was accomplished, may be the turning point which will give the State to the republicans. At the last session, Geghan introduced a bill which was, perhaps, in itself harmless, but as there was some doubt whether it would be passed by the democratic legislature, the Catholics through their papers insisted that it should pass because they demanded it, and, reciting the fact that the Catholics had adhered as a unit to the democracy, threatened to withdraw their allegiance and suffer the republicans to carry the State in October. Upon this open and determined threat the bill was passed. Whether or not it gave any present or prospective advantage to the Catholics as such, they made it a test of subserviency to their wishes and carried the day. The question at last was not what the bill amounted to, but whether the democracy would yield to the demands of the Catholic. The question was answered in the affirmative. At the convention held for nominating candidates for the county of Hamilton, including the city of Cincinnati, for the legislature, the better portion of the democracy attempted to defeat the renomination of Geghan. They did not succeed. Of the result the Cincinnati Enquirer says: "In this we see either the blind folly of a religious organization or the cunning work of the republican party." The Enquirer repudiates the nomination.

A Tribune correspondent writes: The contest is growing more interesting every day. The strong feeling of the people is shown in the large and enthusiastic meetings which greet the leading advocates of both parties. Wherever prominent speakers go they are besieged to address all manner of semi-impromptu meetings, and to speak two or three times a day. That this is the case on both sides will not be denied by any one who sees facts as they are. The spirit of communism and repudiation is very strong in Ohio, but the spirit of honor, loyalty and conservatism is still stronger. The democratic party, with 250,000 voters who indorsed Pendletonism in 1868, is now fired with recent successes and with the hope of national triumph, and is an antagonist not to be despised. But the republican party which polled 266,000 votes even against all the exertions of the liberals in 1872, is now strengthened and encouraged by the support of thousands who then opposed it, and realizes not less clearly that the result in Ohio will powerfully influence the Presidential election. Indeed, both parties realize that victory may bring the Presidential honors to Ohio. True, Allen is egregiously befooled, but Mr. Pendleton is not, and he still has the same corps of workers who made it so hard to beat him in the democratic convention of 1868. The next National convention, they calculate, will not be held in New York. On the other hand, there are many republicans who feel that Gov. Hayes has as pure a record, and one as honorable in war and in peace, as any candidate likely to be named, and they know that a man who can carry Ohio will not be altogether overlooked in their next National convention. Nor is Gov. Hayes the only man in Ohio who might be nominated, with prospects of success. Thus the battle is fought for greater stakes on either side than are usually involved in a State election.

The Cincinnati Commercial predicts: "If the democratic party is not beaten in the State of Ohio and Hamilton County this Fall, all the signs of the times will fail. Wet weather can't save it." Just what can help it, the Commercial tells as follows: "Two events within the next ten days might help, and even save, Wm. Allen in his struggles to save the liberties of the people. The first is a blighting frost throughout Ohio; the second, a tremendous panic in New York. The destruction of one of our cities by fire might serve him some, but would hardly be sufficient. This is a singular state of affairs, too, when we remember that Wm. Allen is Governor of Ohio, and has been preserving our liberties in that capacity for more than a year."

News and Notes.

A despatch from Granville, Ky., reports that the bank of J. B. Hancock & Co. was robbed of $34,460. The combination-lock safe was opened, but was uninjured in any way. Five thousand dollars of United States bonds, $7000 in currency and $1500 in gold were taken.

A new building on Main street in Jackson, Mich., fell, burying eight men in the ruins. None were seriously injured.

The schooner Mary E. Douglass, from Para, lost the captain, John C. Sherlock, C. H. Steam, the mate, and Richard Gaspar, steward, by yellow fever at Para; also Thomas Scott, a passenger, at sea, of the same disease. Advices from the schooner Maggie Abbot, at Para, state that the cook of that vessel had died of yellow fever, and that the wife and child of the captain were very sick, but improving. The Maggie Abbot lost her mainmast by lightning.

The Massachusetts republicans owe it alike to themselves and their brethren in the closely contested States, of which New Hampshire is a sample, to nominate a man for Governor whom they can elect. The influence of the old Bay State in New England politics has been potent, and if she falter by the way, her brethren can hardly be expected to stand firm elsewhere. Gaston may have made a good Governor for her, but so did Weston for New Hampshire during his first term—only to betray her in his second. New Hampshire republicans beseech their Massachusetts friends to act wisely at their convention and ensure the defeat of the democrats in November. The anomaly of the existence of an honest democrat in Massachusetts does not warrant his continued exhibition as a centennial curiosity. Where there is one such in Massachusetts there are scores of republicans who have kept better company and set better examples. The most earnest republicans in New Hampshire in 1875 are those who were led to vote for Weston in 1871, and the condition of things in 1875 in Massachusetts is not at all unlike New Hampshire's experience four years ago.

The N. H. Press Association will make their annual excursion October 11th, visiting Newport, Claremont, Bellows Falls, Keene, Mt. Monadnoc, Hoosac Tunnel, North Adams and Fitchburg, and occupying the week.

The New York republicans have nominated an excellent State ticket, with Hon. Frederick W. Seward for Secretary of State and Gen. F. E. Spinner for Treasurer.

The democrats have organized the North Carolina constitutional convention.

There are 19 democrats, 5 independent democrats, 9 Independents and 7 republicans in the California Senate; and in the Assembly, 60 democrats, 1 independent democrat, 7 independents and 11 republicans.

The democrats of Wisconsin have renominated Gov. Taylor.

Capt. John C. Jones, of New York, for many years Surveyor of the Great Western Marine Insurance Company of New York, jumped into the rapids and was carried over the American Falls in the sight of several hundred visitors. The cause of the suicide is unknown.

Postmaster Merrill C. Forrest of Berlin Falls has been removed for selling postage stamps at a discount.

When Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee was in Boston, receiving the apologies of the "federals" who had resisted the modest wish of Jeff. Davis to be "let alone," it was recorded that one man, bursting out from the enthusiastic crowd of repentant sinners, grasped the confederate chief by the hand and welcomed him to Massachusetts, adding that two of his sons had been killed by him, and seeming to regret that he had no more sons to share the honor. That man should go to meet Jeff. Davis, on his triumphal march through the country which he has vilified with his pen and his tongue, and desolated with his sword. The inhospitable conduct of the Winnebago Agricultural Society is effaced in the honors that are paid to the "Ex-President" of the southern confederacy. No law prohibits men from making fools of themselves.—Prov. Jour.

A Nashua man sang, "Don't be angry with me, darling," while he larruped his wife with a stirrup strap. But she got the bulge on him, and stood on his stomach, while she strewed his hyperion curls about the kitchen floor, and warbled while she twined her lily fingers in his auburn locks, "Darling you are growing bald."

An extensive Indian outbreak is reported in Eastern Nevada and Western Utah. A number of settlers and miners have been killed. The women and children are being removed to places of safety. Troops and volunteers are going to the scene. The military commander at the West has been asked for arms and ammunition. Orders have been issued for infantry and cavalry to proceed at once from the frontier cities to Eastern Nevada. The rising is attributed to Mormon influences.

Antonio Flores, Minister of Ecuador to the United States, left secretly for his country, where it is conjectured he may become President, as the successor of Moreno, who was recently assassinated.

Some of the inflation journals in Ohio are trying to make democratic votes by saying that if the republicans carry the State, Judge Alphonso Taft will be made Secretary of the Interior. If that report could be proved true it would make a good many thousand republican votes in other States than Ohio.—N. Y. Tribune.

The watch of Mr. Noe, who was murdered in New York, has been found in a pawn-broker's shop.

Captain Thomas Card, the well known centenarian of Dover Point, died Wednesday night, the 8th. He was 100 years old August 17, the oldest man in the county and probably the oldest in the State. He was never ill until his last sickness and has voted at every election since coming of age.

The registration of voters has ceased in Zazoo county, Miss. The Registrars assert that they cannot perform their duties in safety.

Edward Lee, three years old, and Lewis Masser, aged five years, were buried in the sand while playing in a sand bank near the Concord Railroad yard, Thursday morning, at Concord, and killed. Another boy, Alfred Dernome, was buried to his shoulders but got out without injury.

The details of a fatal quarrel between a couple of little boys, aged 12 and 14 respectively, in Baltimore, should serve as a warning to children who let their tempers get the better of their discretion. Louis Faupel, with a brother two or three years younger, was passing the house of Frederick Rapp with a play-cart, when young Rapp ran up and made an attempt to take the cart from Faupel, who resisted and sought to repel the interference. A struggle took place, Rapp hitting Faupel with his fist, and the other defending himself, when a sister of Rapp rushed out of the house and parted the two boys, catching hold of her brother and pushing Faupel away. Rapp broke away from her, and rushing upon Faupel struck him in the stomach. Little Faupel fell over senseless, clutching his hands as if in great pain. He was removed into his father's house and laid on a sofa where he died in a few minutes, never exhibiting any consciousness after receiving the blow. One of the neighbors ran for a physician, but the poor lad died before he could get to the house. The boy Rapp, after the fight, went into his house, and had just been punished for fighting when some boys came and told Mrs. Rapp that Louis Faupel was dead. The family were incredulous at first, not thinking death could have been caused from so slight an assault. Young Rapp became frightened and ran off to the house of a relative, where he was soon afterward arrested. It is stated he was in such a state of terror from the consequences of his act that he had obtained a piece of rope to put an end to his own life. Louis C. Faupel, the lad who died under such unfortunate circumstances, was very highly spoken of by the neighbors as an amiable and inoffensive youth.

Florida,

FEDERAL POINT, Fla., Sept. 3.

Editor Chronicle; It is only within the past five years that people of the Northern States have discovered that within a distance of one thousand miles of them and within the limits of their own government there lies a land possessing a climate unsurpassed by any of the favored countries of the old world that have been so much sought for health and pleasure; and also possessing resources that only require developing to make it second to none in point of wealth and influence. It is not surprising that such is the case, for the land has seemed to lie under a curse invoked by bigotry, superstition, slavery and ignorance until the surprise is, that it should be found at all. Olney's Geography in its description of Florida says: "Florida is a peninsula, forming the extreme Southern State; is inhabited by a tribe of warlike Indians called Seminoles. Its streams and lakes are filled with noxious reptiles and its atmosphere filled with innumerable insects and deadly miasma." This quotation may not be exactly correct, as I quote from memory, but that was the idea conveyed to my mind by his description of Florida; and I presume the most of your readers have formed similar opinions. It will be useless for me to attempt to mention in an article of this kind all of the causes that have served to hide the knowledge of this climate and country and repel emigration from its shores—keeping it in its pristine wilderness and savage beauty. Suffice it to say, that I find Florida to-day possessing a territory of 59,268 square miles or 37,931,520 acres,—an almost unbroken wilderness. There remain of the public lands unsold 17,262,459 acres, and not one acre in one hundred that has passed into private hands is under cultivation. The census of 1870 decides the number of inhabitants to be 187,748. Since that time there has been a steady and increasing emigration here, which will probably amount to 50,000, making to-day a population of 237,748,—hardly enough to equal a thrifty manufacturing city of New England. The assessed valuation of the property for taxation is $30,000,000. Thus you will perceive that here is a new territory or State offering as inducements to emigration, a climate exempt alike from the piercing winds of the Arctic Circle and unscorched by the heat of a tropical season. Its soil is variable, as to quality, but is called light, and was unsuited to the old slave system of large plantations and exhaustive agriculture; but with the present system of small farms and honest dealing with mother earth, truly gratifying results are obtained.

East Florida, or the St. John's River country, seems to be the most attractive portion of the State, and it is here that the most of our increase in population is made. The attention of most of the new comers is turned to fruit and vegetable raising, as we find that nearly all the fruits and vegetables known to civilization can be grown here with some degree of success without the aid of artificial protection, like the cold frame or hot house. It is only since the war that any particular attention has been paid to fruit culture, as under the old system of ignorant and slave labor it could not be made a success, the business requiring more care and skill than could be given at that time; and consequently but few full bearing orange groves are to be found, and the superior flavor of the fruit is but little known outside of our State limits. But this state of affairs is fast disappearing, and with our steadily increasing population and material prosperity we are rapidly coming up to a fair standard of civilization with its attendant benefits of improved facilities of all kinds.

The agricultural interests are always those of the most importance in a new country, and Florida is clearing up her forests of pine and oak as rapidly as may be, and is just beginning to produce a surplus. The fruits raised here are the orange, lemon, lime, guava, banana, fig, plum, grape, pomegranate, and peach, besides many other fancy varieties that will probably never become known as fruits for shipment. For small berries we have the strawberry, dew (or as is called here black) berry, huckleberry, blueberry, etc. The staple or field crops, are cora, cotton, sugar cane, sweet potatoes and rice,—and I will add, carara (of which tapioca is made), taro, ginger and other roots known only in tropical climates. It must not be inferred that those vegetables that are indigenous to colder climates can be grown here in the same perfection that they can be in their native soil and air, for such is not the fact. They will grow here and do very well, but not to perfection. The seed must be procured from the North every year, and the cultivation must be careful, as the growth is a forced one, like it is in a hothouse. We can make up the deficiency, however, as we are able to have some kind of a crop growing on the ground the entire year. In the Fall season, we plant vegetables, like turnips, cabbages or English peas. These are followed with early beans; then Irish potatoes, to be followed with sweet potatoes. The field crops, like sugar cane and cotton, require nearly a year's time to mature. In this section but little attention is paid to the growing of field crops, but the time is nearly all devoted to the production of fruits and garden vegetables. The business of fruit raising seems rightly to possess peculiar attractions for almost all who attempt it, yet those who have never engaged in the pursuit fail to realize many of its perplexities. All fruit bearing trees, in whatever climate they may be grown, afford peculiar attractions for numerous insects who prey upon their tender twigs and delightful juices, so that the fruit grower's life is one continuous battle with the insect tribe. We are no exception to this rule, and especially is this the case with the orange tree. We have also suffered a good deal from lack of experience, yet I am happy to say that the young orange groves on the banks of the St. John's are, as an average, doing well, and I predict the day is not far distant when the people as far away as New Hampshire will be able to enjoy the eating of our truly excellent oranges. At the present time the production is so small that very little of it finds its way much beyond Charleston, S. C. New York gets a few, but not enough to be hardly recognized. The fig is a very rapid growing tree, provided it has proper cultivation, and is a profuse bearer. To illustrate: I have three trees of the purple variety that are forty-two months old from the cuttings. They have a diameter of top of fourteen feet, height of top, twelve feet, diameter of trunk, seven inches. (The three are so nearly of a size that the eye fails to detect any difference). The banana is simply a rank-growing plant that attains a length of ten feet, when it throws out a centre bud on which the fruit is formed. After the fruit ripens the whole plant dies. It is only propagated by shoots or suckers growing out from its roots near its base. It grows and matures its fruit in two years' time. The other varieties of fruit that I have mentioned can be grown here to perfection, but not all over the State, as the Northern part of the State is too cold for even the orange tree to be raised, except in well sheltered localities. The soil of the Northern section is somewhat richer than here, and it is there that you will find the large plantations of the old slavery times, and the attention of the inhabitants turned to the cultivation of field crops, almost entirely. South of us, you soon leave the region of frost even and find a perpetual Summer, where the pine apple, cocoa, custard apple and other purely tropical fruits are indigenous to the soil.

This whole country is healthy; more so than the New England States, and its climate is as much superior to yours as New England may be to Greenland. That this is a perfect Paradise I do not claim, as the emigrant finds many things here to annoy him and has many hardships to endure before he can finally call his home complete. Yet if the people of New England must emigrate either to Florida or the West, I say by all means come to Florida. I say this advisedly, as I am somewhat acquainted with the West. Florida presents all the inducements of a frontier State, and its 800 miles of sea-coast and its innumerable navigable streams and lakes, afford us its pioneers, rapid and cheap transportation for ourselves and our surplus productions that the West never can afford. The climate being warm and damp, is sufficient with the aid of slight fertilizing applied to our light soil to produce satisfactory crops. Nature has seemed to provide for this, as the swamps afford an inexhaustible fertilizer, ready placed for our use. In concluding this article I will say that I have written nothing but what I am positive of, as matters of fact, gained by a residence here of several years, coming here first, seventeen years ago. Having no sympathy with the effort to perpetuate the curse of human slavery upon this country I availed myself of a convenient opportunity to leave here and spend the days of war and blood shed among my native hills of New Hampshire. FOR MAYOR.

Dr. Jeremiah F. Hall.

Jottings.

The republican mayoralty caucus, Thursday evening, was presided over by Oliver S. Loomis, Esq. George W. Green, James A. Waterhouse, Edwin H. Leslie, Alonzo Wise and C. Dwight Hanscom were secretaries. Hon. Jeremiah F. Hall was nominated for Mayor, there being 365 votes cast, of which 11 were scattering, 121 were for Col. William H. Sise, and 233 for Dr. Hall. On motion of Col. Sise the nomination was made unanimous.

Retrenchment and economy used to be the watchwords of the democracy when the republicans had control of the city; has anybody heard anything of them lately? They appear to be among the lost arts. Intrenchment (in office) and phlebotomy (of the city treasury) seem, rather, to be in favor with them, just now.

Thursday's Boston Globe has very fair likenesses of Dr. Geo. B. Loring, Col. Geo. W. Riddle, Col. Daniel Needham and Gen. Natt Head, but its representation of Aaron Young, Esq., is wretched to the last extreme. The people of the whole State have an interest in the genial and popular Secretary of the State Fair, and his fellow citizens of Portsmouth and Dover have too intimate relations with him to meekly submit to such an outrageous caricature at the hands of the Globe's artist. The picture impels the spectator to the belief that our Aaron has been suffering from a superior kind of mumps and has but just doffed the suggestive white bandage; that he is just preparing to burst into a flood of tears like a school boy expecting to feel the effects of the teacher's rod; or is on the verge of an evidently dangerous delivery of twin quids of tobacco from the rear of that abundant moustache. We are of the opinion that a verdict for a handsome sum for damages could be obtained from any jury in the land for the publication of such a burlesque by the publishers of the Globe.

If all reports are true, there is not the best of feeling among all the democratic city officials. Be that as it may, a prominent politician and wirepuller remarked, not long since: "We (the democrats) ought to have known enough to put in a politician for Street Commissioner, and not to put a f—— in charge of the C. F."

Where now is all the talk about Citizens' tickets for Mayor and other city officers, which the democrats were wont to have over so glibly at each election, before they stole the city? Who hears any desire from them now to "nominate our best citizens for office, without regard to party?" And would anybody expect to find any democrats green enough to join such a suicidal movement, while they believed they had a majority of their own, as certain (or uncertain) republicans did on a like occasion? But every republican ought to see to it that their democratic opponents shall no longer retain their dishonest possession of the city.

Mrs. G. C. Howard, whose famed impersonations of "Topsy" have made her a welcome visitant all over the United States, appears at the Temple, this evening, in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," assisted by a talented company.

At the democratic caucus last evening, Hon. Moses H. Goodrich was renominated as a candidate for Mayor.

Query, whether several male paupers whom the County is legally bound and entirely ready and willing to support, are kept at Portsmouth city farm, so that they may again illegally vote at the election next week?

Persons wishing to make a noon-mark, can do so any clear night by hanging two plumb lines out of doors in such a position that on sighting from one to the other the North Star will be exactly in range; then drive down two stakes exactly in the places of the two lines, and the shadow at noon will be near enough North and South to make a very accurate noon-mark.

At the annual meeting of the Apollo Club, Sept. 1st, the following named gentlemen were elected for the ensuing year: A. F. Pfeiffer, President; M. Crowley, Sec. and Treas; C. W. Varrell, Chief Marshal; C. N. Thompson, J. H. Hazel, Assistant Marshals; A. F. Pfeiffer, M. Crowley, C. E. Akerman, A. N. Wells, Reception Committee. The club are making preparations for a grand ball to come off at an early day.

Visitors at the State Fair were delighted with the music of the Naval Band.

Theodore Alfred Bingham, son of Rev. Dr. Bingham, has entered the United States Military Academy at West Point, having been appointed by the President a cadet at large.

The republicans of Wards 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 meet this evening to nominate candidates for city and ward officers. See advertisements elsewhere.

The Wolfe Tone Club will have an excursion to Newburyport next Sunday, in steamer Appledore, leaving Portsmouth at 8:30, A. M., and return in the evening. Tickets for the round trip, $1; children under 12 years half-price.

The Summer season at the Rye Beach houses broke off short on Monday, the 6th, by the departure of nearly all the guests.

The article regarding Canon Walsh which we published on Thursday, was a communication from a correspondent, and crept into our editorial columns during the editor's absence from the city.

The cars of the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad go daily crowded through the White Mountain Notch.

Tug William Kemp, Capt. Gould, from Camden, Me., arrived in the lower harbor Wednesday evening, the 8th, having in tow the dredge and scows of A. R. Wright & Co., who are contractors for dredging the channel at Dover.

When politicians catch your sleeve and lead you off to beer, the fall election days have come—the drunkest of the year.

It is the duty of the republicans of Portsmouth, even if their hands are tied, to "carry the city" next week, at least so far as to elect the Mayor. To do this, their best men must be nominated for the various offices.

A Popular Error Committed.

It is an absurd but very common error to suppose that a disordered condition of the liver can be remedied by a simple cathartic. Such is, however, far from being the case. Cathartics do not touch the liver at all. It is only when (as in the case of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters) the laxative principle is combined with tonic and stimulative elements, that the great secretive gland is directly acted upon. The Bitters, although sufficiently laxative to relieve the bowels moderately, do not owe their anti-bilious effects to purgation merely, but to their power of rousing the liver from its inaction and impelling it to secrete and distribute the bile in sufficient quantities for the purposes of digestion and evacuation. Its effect upon the stomach and bowels is such as to ensure the regular discharge of the functions named and prevent abstraction or vitiation of the biliary fluid—in other words, to secure entire co-operation with the liver.

THE NEW TOWN HALL AT AYER. This elegant structure is now complete. In beauty of design it surpasses anything of its kind in the State. Constructed of white and dark marble it is as permanent as it is charming. The English architects have adorned it in subdued colors, which please without tiring the eye. Dr. J. C. Ayer built and gave it to the town in acknowledgment of the distinction they conferred upon him in taking his name. Although it is a generous gift, still the hearty good wishes of a whole people are of greater value, and the generous donor has doubtless secured them.—Groton (Mass.) Journal.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Per order.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT"

PANTOSCOPIC

SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F. L. B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

Paralysis,
Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,

J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called Ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,

MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,

JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,

ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week.

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are now better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scatter over night, or any time to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The privilege is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, &c., &c.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the stupendous erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,329,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the fogs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc..

-USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

"Country Journalism."

Henry Watterson, the talented editor of the sprightly Louisville Courier-Journal, recently delivered an address before the Tennessee Press Association, which we would gladly republish, only its length would overcrowd our columns. We, however, give the pith of this witty and sensible discourse, commending the suggestions and observations of this experienced and successful journalist to general consideration.

Mr. Watterson truly remarks that with too many the profession of "county journalism" is made a mere "make-shift," having no code of professional ethics, laughing at itself, and accepting the coarsest familiarities with a grotesque shrug which invites contempt. Holding itself cheaply, it is cheaply held, despite its clatter of pots and pans, the poor blazonry of its unbelief. Any man may put on a dress coat, may regale himself with a ruffled shirt, may stick a rose where a button ought to be, and may set up for a fine gentleman, just as every man may vociferate and swagger without these visible symbols of superior quality, donned so often by thrifty fools or worthless charlatans to hide the mental and moral nakedness within. If we would be respected we must set the example and respect ourselves. He thinks that, while within the last five-and-twenty years the press has made great strides in power, fame and riches, "country journalism" does not seem to have increased in dignity, nor to be trying to advance. True, such a life does not offer to ambitious seekers after fortune and fame the most splendid or even promising career in the world. But the superlatively successful man is not a superlatively happy one. There is always a pebble in the magic slipper. Those are the happiest who are the most useful, the most contented, who do not distort their lives by too much wriggling either in or out of the places to which they were originally assigned by nature and by God. Mr. W. thus alludes to the life as one he would select under certain circumstances:

"If I should be thrown out of business, and thus should be given the occasion to look about for some means of supporting my family and myself, I think the most attractive employment which would be offered me would be a tidy newspaper office in some respectable country town; and I am vain enough to believe that I should not starve if I should be restricted to the business of issuing and editing a weekly paper. But, if you will not think me presumptuous for saying it, I should seek to introduce one or two improvements into the methods commonly pursued in country offices. In the first place I would be my own master, and master of my own business. I would try to make my paper attractive to the public sense and eye, to print it neatly and to fill it with fresh news, chiefly of a domestic and local sort. I would neither invade the sphere nor ape the style, particularly avoiding all imitation of the manners, of the daily press. I would adapt my publication to the people for whom it should be intended, being strictly accurate and fair in making up its contents, refusing controversies and gratuities, holding first, last, and all the time, to a rigid cash system. I would keep in a good humor by denying myself too close an intimacy with local politicians and poets, especially poetesses, and I would refuse to puff a railway conductor for a free ride, just as I would refuse to consider myself bound for life to my immediate member of Congress for a broken set of last year's Patent Office Reports. I think I should grow eloquent over the big potatoes and glow about the rise in wheat, willing to conciliate the agricultural interest by a liberal arrangement "in kind" for subscriptions. It is my opinion that for a year or two under this refined system, I should have to watch my business sharply and do a deal of ungracious work. But after that my impression is that I should be able to go a-fishing twice a week, and that I should have a little leisure for book-reading and perhaps book-making."

Of the relations that should exist between city and country journals, Mr. Watterson says: "They reciprocally affect one another; the shortcomings of each are retroactive. They ought to work together. There is more of mutual dependence than is commonly supposed to exist. I long ago abandoned the folly, let me call it the affectation, of turning up my nose at the country press, and on principle, as well as by preference, try to cultivate its good will. I know very well how much the country editors can do to mould public opinion, and may say of them as Hamlet said of the players, "After your death you would better have a bad epitaph than their ill report while you live.'"

The trials of journalism are thus considered: "Of all public men, the journalist makes most private enemies. He is habitually giving offenses of a negative description by refusing to comply with the many impudent, unreasonable and preposterous demands which are made upon him by all sorts of people every day. We forgive an insult sooner than a slight; and when an editor has wounded the vanity of the respectable contributor who has asked the insertion of a communication, or disappointed the self-love of the ambitious politician who expects half a column of panegyric and gets only a line of faint praise, he may be sure that he will be remembered long after his fierce assaults upon the enemy have been forgotten. Journalism is an intellectual outpost; the journalist a vidette, who, subjected to the fire of the regular line in front, may be picked off any moment by the sharp-shooters, or surprised from the rear, or otherwise molested on account of his exposed position. * * The journalist is usually a weak candidate for office on this account. He may be the most distinguished member of the community, admired for his brilliancy and his courage; but let him offer himself as an aspirant for votes—that is, let him throw away his professional armor and weapons, and sink to the level of ordinary men, and to the common uses of the hustings and the ballot-box, and he will encounter a multitude of adversaries and obstacles additional to those which beset the out-and-out politician. The public is more exacting in his case because it thinks he has an advantage in his newspaper, whereas it is a disadvantage; whilst the people he has affronted in one way and another feel that at length they have him upon an equal footing with themselves, and are glad of an opportunity to pay back the old score. For these reasons editors should be gentler to each other. As a class, and at best, they have an up-hill journey of it; the abuse they get does all the harm that abuse does to other people; the praise is unsubstantial and infrequent, and of small practical account. Of course much of this may be ascribed to our habit of depreciating ourselves, each other, and our calling. But, after every reform has been made which we can hope to make, there will be still a certain discount against us. This can be made good only by superior diligence and discretion, self-inspection and self-denial, and the practice of those virtues which are rightly expected of him who sets himself to teach his fellow-men."

School Rights of Pauper Children.

An important decision was rendered at the recent term of the Superior Court, by Chief Justice Foster, of the Circuit Court, in the case "School District No. 2, in Brentwood, vs. Frank D. Pollard." The defendant was Superintendent of the county farm in Brentwood, and sent five children from the county farm to the school in District No. 2, against the order of the prudential committee. The parents of the children resided upon the farm and were supported as county paupers.

Judge Foster's decision is a very interesting one, touching the rights of pauper children to go to school, and we give some extracts from it.

After quoting sec. 1, chap. 83, General Statutes, relating to the rights of scholars in district schools, and considering its limitations and meanings, he says:

Who then is an inhabitant of a school district, in the legal sense? He need not be a resident of the district. The word inhabit is derived from the Latin verb habito, which is defined,—"to dwell, to abide, to inhabit or live in." Reside, is from re and sedeo, "to sit down," and dwell from the Danish Dwelger, to abide. All these are usually classed as synoyms, but not in strictness properly so; for the word inhabit does not convey the idea of permanent residence. To dwell or abide does not indicate permanency of location or of time, for the angels abode with Lot one night, and the Arabs dwell in tents, but "They fold their tents, like the Arabs,

And silently steal away."

Inhabit conveys the idea of a home, but not necessarily of a full and fixed settlement, such as is conveyed by the term residence; thus Dr. Johnson tells us: "Being obliged to remove my habitation, I was led by my evil genius to a convenient house, in the street where the nobility reside"—precisely the condition, it would seem, of these unfortunate children of the public.

The statutory definition of the term inhabitant (General Statutes, chapter 1, section 6,) is not very important, and is ambiguous and uncertain. "The word inhabitant may mean (not shall be) a resident, a person dwelling and having his home in any city, town or place."

A person's home may be his own home, or his hired lodgings. (Webster's Dictionary.)

It need not be denied that while a person is actually residing in one place, with the intention of remaining there, or with no intention of returning to his former residence, he is not in any commonly received sense an inhabitant of the latter for the purposes of taxation. The case from 1 Met., cited by the learned counsel for the plaintiff, decides no more than this. If it bears any analogy to the present case, it does not help the plaintiff. If the fathers of these children, instead of being temporarily inhabitants of the poor farm, against their will, perhaps, and with no definite intention of returning to their former place and condition of life, have, in fact, taken up their abode in the alms-house as a permanent residence, they are certainly inhabitants of the district, and not the less inhabitants because residents.

It need not be denied that there may be authority and power vested in the County Commissioners to establish a school within the limits of the county farm, for the special uses and necessities of the children located there, but the law does not require it, and the Commissioners have not done it; and if these children are denied the privilege of schooling in the district school, they are denied altogether. They are like Wordsworth's sorrow-burdened "Traveller on the skirt of Serum's Plain:"

"And homeless near a thousand homes he stood,
And near a thousand tables pined and wanted food."

In the very earliest days of the government, more than a century and a quarter before the framers of our present State constitution prescribed "the duty of the legislators and magistrates, in all future periods of this government, to cherish the interests of literature and the sciences, and all seminaries and public schools," declaring that "knowledge and learning generally diffused through a community" are "essential to the preservation of a free government,"—the town of Dover "at a publique Towne meetinge held the 5:1 mo. 58" (1658) voted that "Twenty pounds per annum shall be yearly rayzed for the mayntenance of a schoole master * * that is to say, for the teaching of all the children within the Township."

This was in accordance with the existing law of the Province of Massachusetts imposing a penalty of £10 upon every town of one hundred families and upward that should "neglect or omitt to keepe a grammer schoole." 1 N. H. Prov. Pap. 234, 312.

Since those early days there has not only been no restriction imposed, confining the privileges of a public school education to any class, sect, or condition, political or social, but every child, almost so soon as he can speak his native tongue, is permitted, if not required, to attend school in the district which he inhabits, no length of time being prescribed for his previous residence therein, and, since his education is thus assured, at the public expense, he is prohibited from entering into certain employments of life until and unless he shall have through his own moral and mental discipline and culture contributed something to the "preservation of a free government." Gen. Stats. chap. 83, sects. 11-13.

The influences of free institutions, general suffrage and popular education, are essential to the cultivation of individual respect and independence. These influences cure and eradicate pauperism; for whatever elevates the political and social condition of the poor and laboring man or sharpens his faculties, or improves his character, or strengthens his capacity for self-control, "in so far tends to prevent the peculiar debasement, dependence, and misery which constitute pauperism." See an article in the N. A. Review for April, 1875, entitled Pauperism.

The children of the more fortunate classes may doubtless become degraded by contact with the dependent and idle poor, if no restraint is imposed upon free associations, but under the combined influence of the workhouse and the school there can be no great danger of contamination from the vice or misfortune which is undergoing the process of curative treatment. However this may be, it is contrary to the policy of our institutions to exclude from the advantages of free schooling those whom misfortune has cast upon the public charity. That charity will continue to dispense not bread alone, but, without distinction of person, the blessings of moral culture and the means of mental illumination, even as God makes his sun to shine on the just and the unjust.

Waiting To See His Wife Killed.

[Baltimore Evening News.]

One of the most extraordinary attempts at murder which has ever come to light in the annals of crime transpired in East Baltimore yesterday, when a respectable and respected German citizen, incensed at the supposed infidelity of his wife, attempted to take the unhappy woman's life by holding her on the railroad track, in order that she might be crushed by the cars. The affair has caused the most intense excitement in the neighborhood where it occurred, and while some condemn the cruelty of the act, the husband is not without hosts of sympathizers. From what can be learned in the matter, it appears that on Wednesday night Mr. Charles Mush, who is said to be an industrious, hard-working man, returned at a late hour to his residence, on South Ann street, two doors below the drug store of Evans & Burton, and upon entering his sleeping apartment was surprised to meet there an old friend named Triteman. The first impulse of the enraged Mush was to seize the fellow and hurl him through the window, but a huge knife which Triteman held in his hand, as if expecting to be attacked, prevented this action. Triteman then became the aggressor, and, brandishing the knife, he ordered the "man of the house" to get down stairs and leave the premises. Mush failing to comply, the knife was dropped and Triteman carried him down by main force. The two left the house together, and, after a consultation on the corner, the matter was apparently settled by the injured husband borrowing a quid of tobacco from his quondam friend. He seemed like one crazed, moved about and speaking almost mechanically. During yesterday, however, he reconsidered matters and repaired to his home, determined to take revenge on his wife Eliza. He at first produced a shot-gun, and, pointing at her head, pulled the trigger. The weapon missed fire, he gave a cry of disappointment, and then seizing an ax he drove the unhappy woman into the street and threw her down upon the car-track. She begged for mercy, but standing above her with the uplifted ax, he shrieked that if she moved until a car came he would sever her head from her body. The dramatic scene soon attracted a crowd of people, a portion of whom disarmed Mr. Mush and procured the clothing of Mrs. Mush, who said she was afraid to enter the house again. Rolling the apparel into a bundle she started with her children for Carroll county, where it is said her relatives reside. Persons who profess to know the family well, say that Mush is a peaceable man, that his love for his wife and little ones amounted almost to idolatry, and that his action of last evening was caused through frenzy. Like his wife, he has left the city, it is supposed to escape arrest, and his once happy home is now completely deserted. The cause of the trouble is still at large and boasting, it is alleged, of his part in the unhappy and unfortunate affair.

News and Notes.

It is now apparent that jealousy among the detectives prevented the discovery of Charley Ross, within a short time of his abduction. Some of them were as active in putting their rivals on the wrong track as in their search for the missing boy.

The particulars of the recent bold bank robbery, in Huntington, West Virginia, show an extraordinary amount of coolness on the part of the robbers. They rode up in front of the bank in broad daylight, being four in number, and three of them entering the bank and instantly jumping over the counter wreathed the cashier's head with the muzzles of four revolvers. The combination doors to the safe were open, but the reserve fund drawer was locked. They turned the cashier's head in that direction and ordered him not to attempt to look any other way, but to open the drawer. He, thinking to gain time, refused, but they assured him that they knew their man, and notwithstanding his pluck, meant to kill him instantly if he did not comply. The four revolvers pressing against his head were too much to bear, and the drawer was opened. A colored man coming in had a revolver presented to his head, and was commanded to keep quiet, which he did. The robbers, finding only $15,000, accused the cashier of having more, saying they expected the bank to have $50,000. They asked the cashier if he had any personal deposits, and he answered them no; but while coolly examining the books they saw that he had just credited himself with $7.50. The leader took from the stolen funds this amount and handed it to him, assuring him that they did not wish his money. He replied that if he had got to his revolver they wouldn't have got the money; but they told him it wasn't any account anyhow, which, on investigation, proved true, showing it had been tampered with. They then took the cashier out into the street, mounted their horses, and, assuring him that he was a gentleman, rode away double quick over the hills and dales to freedom. The town was soon the scene of great excitement, and the citizens, with shot-guns and revolvers, started in pursuit of the robbers, but they had not been found at last accounts.

A despatch from Gowanda, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., says Charles Blockney, an attorney, was met on the street in that town by Lewis Darby, who, drew a pistol and fired upon him, killing him instantly. The murderer fled to the woods and committed suicide by cutting his throat.

Sharkey, the condemned and escaped murderer, has been deported from Cuba to San Domingo.

The London papers say that Miss Victoria Vokes is soon to marry Mr. Clayton, the actor, and that she will bring many a golden charm to make the marriage happy, including $50,000 made in America.

Gen. Spinner accepts the nomination for Comptroller of the State of New York.

Hon. Charles H. Bell of Exeter has found the original Hilton Deed, which includes within its limits the city of Dover, and covers territory nearly as far west as Concord. Search has repeatedly been made for this instrument in the past, but without avail until found by Mr. Bell, while looking over the musty records of "ye olden times."

Brunswick, Me., has a stable keeper named Waitstill Merryman—a good sort of chap for a family horse we should say.

The New York Herald says: "There is considerable of the Old Adam remaining in Mr. Beecher's nature, and his critics have found him quite ready to meet the issue they have raised about the proper observance of the Sabbath."

Thomas Arey of Yarmouth Port has a fig-tree three years old, on which there are twenty-seven figs.

Mr. Horace J. Willey of Stratham has purchased the greenhouse of the late Joseph Bunning on South street, near the Harmony Grove cemetery. For the past three years Mr. Willey has been connected with the celebrated Hovey nurseries and greenhouses at Cambridge, Mass.; several years previous to this, he was the superintendent of the Stratham nurseries and botanic garden.

A son of Rev. J. M. Smith, of Ashland, aged four years, while playing with a dump-cart on the 4th, jammed his forefinger so badly that it had to be amputated.

Recently, Mrs. Anna H. Silloway, of Danville, on stepping out the back door for water was surprised at the sight of a black snake surrounded by her progeny, which immediately disappeared into the mother's mouth. She stepped on the reptile and called to her mother, who came with an axe and dispatched the snake. Thirty-nine young snakes were taken from the mouth of the old one.

The Constitutional amendments in New Jersey have been adopted by the magnificent majority of 20,000. This is a victory for honest government and free unsectarian schools.

An enterprising manager of excursions recently engaged Henry Ward Beecher to preach on Sunday, the 19th, at Lake Pleasant, Mass., a favorite picnic resort in Franklin county, and began making arrangements for special trains on all the railroads reaching the place, which drain a large section of Western Massachusetts. Other attractions were promised the pleasure seekers in the way of music, etc., and the getter-up of the show has been counting on between 20,000 and 30,000 patrons. The announcement, however, was received with marked disfavor by the better class of the community, and the opposition to the proposed performance culminated in a pointed protest against such a desecration of the Sabbath, which was signed by seventeen Congregational ministers of Franklin county and presented to Mr. Beecher by one of their number, and he has cancelled the engagement.

A piece of steel penetrated the first chamber of the eye of a man in the employ of Joseph McQuesten on North School street, Nashua, and when the steel was withdrawn the water of the eye followed, but fortunately the sight of the eye will not be impaired.

H. T. Helmbold sues the Kirkbridges Hospital for false imprisonment, laying his damages at $250,000.

Hon. E. C. Bailey has completed the large and elegant block that has been building for some time past in Concord, and it now stands as handsome a structure as can be seen in the State and a credit to the city. Directly back of the block, foundations have been laid for another block, which is intended for the office of the New Hampshire Patriot.

A horse, the property of A. C. Wallace, became frightened, by a passing train on Merchants' Row, Manchester, leaped into the canal and was drowned before parties could rescue him.

Judge Pershing is the democratic nominee for Governor of Pennsylvania.

There will probably be less money spent on this election, than on any similar occasion for many years. The Hessian voters will likely come off short.

Gen. Israel Hunt died at Nashua on Thursday night, in his eightieth year.

—The Lay torpedo which was exhibited at Newport, R. I., seems to be a wonderful creation. Out of the water it presents the appearance of a long cigar, having at both ends a screw propeller and rudder as the only external means of distinguishing the bow from the stern. It is built of boiler iron, and, is about thirty feet long by four feet greatest breadth of beam. In the water the top of its back is barely visible, and in experimenting the only way by which its motions may be followed is by means of tiny flags hoisted at either end. As to its internal arrangements it is said to carry 500 pounds of dynamite, an engine for working the propeller and rudder, a number of cases containing carbonic acid gas bottled up under high pressure, to run the engine with, and a reel of electrical wire. Beyond this all must be conjecture, and one could but look with amazement at the working of the little craft. The operator on shore touched a key, and it started off at full speed, unreeling the wire and laying it down on the bottom as it went, so that it in no way hindered its movements. Making a long turn, it headed for the target, under as perfect control as if a man's hand were at the tiller, turning to starboard or port, stopping or going ahead, by the touch of a key from the operator at his station ashore. On the approach of an enemy the little craft is launched, and waits quietly until its opponent is within range. Once started on its errand and there is no avoiding it. It can strike but a single blow, but the ship has not yet been built that can withstand the shock of explosion of 500 pounds of dynamite.

—The words Selfish and Selfishness are not to be found in Shakspeare, and were wholly unknown to his contemporaries. Lady Morgan first wrote the word Talented, which Coleridge stigmatized as vile and barbarous, and when Henry Dunds used the word Starvation—a new word for hunger and famine imported from Scotland—the English House of Commons burst out into a roar of laughter often repeated.

—The practice which came so rapidly and widely into vogue, of taking for consumption and some other diseases, drafts of warm blood the moment when extracted from the calf or ox, has gone into considerable disuse of late on account of distaste, inconvenience and other reasons.

FOR MAYOR.

Dr. Jeremiah F. Hall.

City Council.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, leave was granted Adams Parry to encumber State street, and Messrs. Coleman and Abbott to encumber Water and Gardner streets, for building purposes.

Voted—That Middle Road at the junction of Lafayette Road be widened according to plan, and that $150 be awarded for land damages.

The committee appointed to abate the South Mill Pond nuisance was given further time to report.

Voted—That the committee on streets be authorized to confer with Messrs. Brown & Barri in regard to the expense incurred by them in sprinkling the streets, and that they pay to them the appropriation for sprinkling streets or such part of it as they may deem proper.

No minatio

The republicans made the following nominations for Aldermen last evening:

Ward Two—Hon. William H. Y. Hackett;

Ward Three—Samuel Adams, Joshua A. Stackpole;

Ward Four—Charles H. Mendum.

Ward Five—Dr. Albion P. Stevens, Major Matthew T. Betton;

Ward Six—Thomas E. Call, John Knowlton;

Ward Seven—Orville D. Bryant.

Mr. Hackett is the only member of the present board, Messrs. Lewis G. Davis and William H. Sise of Ward Five retiring after serving three terms, and Mr. John A. George of Ward Seven at the conclusion of his second term.

Catholic Affairs.

Editor Chronicle: The announcement in your issue of the 8th of the departure of the pastor of the Catholic church of this city for a period of time has not taken the public so much by surprise as though he had asserted his ability to continue the discharge of his duties to his congregation. The public welfare demands that religion be paramount to everything and the absence of the Rev. gentleman would have been better timed two years ago than now. The present condition of society demands a vigorous effort for the regeneration of the fallen; we must have men equal to the contest. The requirements of this city demands the services of a younger, more energetic and liberal mind, as religion can never have a champion equal to the task before him. The Catholic portion of our community needs some help to educate their portion of the rising generation and we sincerely hope they will obtain the necessary aid.

CATHOLIC.

Jottings.

Mr. William Roby stands forth as the champion strawberry producer of Stratham; his crop exceeds 2000 boxes this year.

Election next Monday.

Rev. Fannie U. Roberts, late pastor of the Universalist church, Kittery, died in Winona, Minn., on the 26th of August, of pulmonary consumption.

The public library fund is increased by the sum of $72.25, from the Shoals excursion.

Dr. Potter recently extracted a small bit of iron from the eye of Mr. Luther E. Martin, which had been imbedded there for three weeks and became rusted. Ned says it was worse than having a tooth drawn.

The New England and N. H. State Fair at Manchester was the poorest affair of the kind ever seen in the State. Portsmouth alone could have had a better dog show, and held its own remarkably well on art, cattle and vegetables. But then it couldn't have had Beecher, the cheap minstrel and snake exhibitions, and the pill-box-with-money-inside peddlers—because neither would have been liberally patronized.

Col. Jo Cushing's five young lions will attract more attention at the Strafford Fair at Dover, next week, than everything else combined. It commences on Tuesday and continues four days.

Capt. John S. Godfrey of Hampton Falls is in Calaveras County, California, engaged in locating water veins.

On Tuesday next, it is proposed to hold a Farmers' Gathering of the State of New Hampshire, at Boar's Head, Hampton Beach, under the auspices of the Rockingham County Granges. Chowder will be furnished by Mr. Dumas, and it is expected that those attending will bring other refreshments with them. There will be a good band in attendance, and everything will be done to make the occasion both pleasant and profitable. It is intended that similar gatherings shall be held there annually, as at Salisbury, Mass., to which farmers from all parts of the State are invited, and it is hoped that by this means knowledge of the wants of farmers, and the methods of supplying them may be largely disseminated.

The Woman's Temperance League of this city has resumed its regular weekly Friday afternoon meetings at the vestry of the Methodist church, Daniel street. All ladies are cordially welcome.

First Lieutenant J. H. Washburn, from the receiving ship Sabine, is ordered to assume charge of recruiting service here. Passed Assistant Paymaster Joseph Foster is ordered to the naval station, New London. Chief Engineer Oscar H. Lackey, from the Canandaigua, is ordered to return home and report his arrival.

Ward One republican caucus this evening at the Franklin school-house at 7.30.

Are you all ready for the grand excursion to the Fabyan House next Wednesday? Tickets $3 each for the round trip, and good for four days. Station Agent Samuel Barrett has them for sale at the Eastern depot.

A Popular Error Committed.

It is an absurd but very common error to suppose that a disordered condition of the liver can be remedied by a simple cathartic. Such is, however, far from being the case. Cathartics do not touch the liver at all. It is only when (as in the case of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters) the laxative principle is combined with tonic and stimulative elements, that the great secretive gland is directly acted upon. The Bitters, although sufficiently laxative to relieve the bowels moderately, do not owe their anti-bilious effects to purgation merely, but to their power of rousing the liver from its inaction and impelling it to secrete and distribute the bile in sufficient quantities for the purposes of digestion and evacuation. Its effect upon the stomach and bowels is such as to ensure the regular discharge of the functions named and prevent abstraction or vitiation of the biliary fluid—in other words, to secure entire co-operation with the liver.

THE NEW TOWN HALL AT AYER. This elegant structure is now complete, in beauty of design it surpasses anything of its kind in the State. Constructed of brick and dark marble it is as permanent as it is charming. The English architects have adorned it in subdued colors, which please without tiring the eye. Dr. C. Ayer built and gave it to the town in acknowledgment of the distinction they conferred upon him in taking his name. Although it is a generous gift, still the hearty good wishes of a whole people are of greater value, and the generous donor has doubtless secured them.—Groton (Mass.) Journal.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT"

PANTOSCOPIC
SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratch ed.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are marvelled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F L B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents.

☞ A full a sortm nt of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manuf cture, can always be obtained of

CONDITION PILLS.
NEW, TESTIMONIALS.
—— FOR ——
Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.
T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.
REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.
S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.
T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.
Yours, with respect,
JOHN B. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H.,
November 17, 1874.
THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.
Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.
THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.
Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBORO' BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others as well as myself have used one of the pills and found relief. Please send another package by return of mail.
MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.
MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.
MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.
N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.
ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and weakness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be one in that section.
MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken about of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.
A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 15, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.
JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.
MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others.
WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S Pills has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.
WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,
FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.
The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 24. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro-rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lungs trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

—USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Rapid Transit.

When George Stephenson first broached to the world his idea of hauling carriages by steam on a tramway, he was derided as an impracticable visionary; and even when he had, after battling manfully and almost single-handed with overwhelming discouragements, succeeded in enlisting a sufficient amount of sympathy and material aid to enable him to make a practicable experiment of his project, his warmest supporters started back incredulously at the bold announcement that he would take them along on the experimental trip at the rate of twelve miles an hour. One of them, an eminent barrister, besought him not to talk of twelve miles an hour, as it would kill the whole thing. No one would believe it possible. He was told that his own friends would desert him as a lunatic if he did not modify his assertion to seven miles. But he refused to make the modification, and after everything was got ready, he actually whisked the party over the track at the rate of thirty-five miles per hour. It was a greater triumph than Stephenson had promised. There was no longer any place for incredulity, and to-day we see in every part of the globe where civilization has penetrated, the splendid results of this experiment. There are still George Stephensons in the world, and men are still incredulous. They move the limit of their faith forward just as far as the evidence of their senses goes. Generally, people do not calculate beyond what they see; yet mechanical power, by mechanical combinations, is limited only by the capacity of material for endurance. And if power can be multiplied indefinitely, when used for propulsion, the rate of speed that may be obtained is indefinite, or limited only by the capacity of the materials of construction for endurance. The range of expediency, too, is steadily widening. What was once considered eminently perilous is now performed with perfect safety, leaving out the results of culpable carelessness, or casualties from foreign causes.

Many would scout the idea of making the trip between New York and San Francisco by rail, in less than twenty-four hours; yet it is possible, and some now born into the world may live to see it accomplished. Those who are skeptical on the subject would do well to visit the rooms of Mr. Jesse Frye, M. E., No. 322 West Twenty-sixth street, and see—not a written theory, not a mere picture of untried mechanical combinations, but a working model, which illustrates a far more advanced idea of rapid transit than any that has yet been exhibited, on a scale approaching what may be considered sufficient for a demonstration. It is called the "Endless Track, Counterbalancing, Five-fold Speed and Safety Railroad," with an endlessly connecting rolling-gear of double or triple bearing wheels, running on the rail, and the upper peripheries of the larger bearings carrying an endlessly connected platform or carrier. It is proposed to have on this platform passenger cars placed equidistant, every quarter of a mile, more or less apart. The principle can be better understood by seeing the model and hearing the explanation of the inventor, Mr. Frye. The width of the track for regular business purposes would be twenty-five inches, and that of the platform and cars but about thirty-four inches. In running through cities and towns, the railway will be enclosed in a smoothly-ceiled, fire-proof perfectly ventilated compartment or tunnel below the surface of the ground. No detailed description can be attempted here. The model has been inspected by eminent engineers and practical men, who were all uniformly amazed at this new revelation of genius. A four-fold additional speed is given to the platform and cars, to that of the rolling-gear and driving power, and from illustration by the model, there would seem to be no more of an improbability in Mr. Frye's assertion that he will carry an indefinite number of passengers and freight through San Francisco to New York in seventeen hours, or from Washington to Boston in three hours, than there was in George Stephenson's promise to make a speed of twelve miles an hour. Mr. Frye is a practical man, and demonstrates things clearly as he goes along. Of course the apparatus is provided with brakes and momentum regulators adequate to the task they have to perform. This railway possesses, it is claimed, among other advantages over the railroads in general use, the following: It dispenses with the locomotive and tender, and the loss of power expended in driving them; it obviates all the axle friction from weight of train; ascending grades are counterbalanced by the descending; the momentum power acquired by trains when running at full speed, and now lost at every stoppage, is saved and utilized in starting the trains from a standstill to a maximum speed again, and, besides, all atmospheric resistance is obviated. Above all, the inventor demonstrates that dangerous accidents are impossible on his new railway. Mr. Frye extends an invitation to all who are desirous of securing rapid transit to call at his rooms, No. 322 West Twenty-sixth street, and give his plans and model a careful, impartial and candid examination. He has his invention patented both in this country and Europe. It may here be added that Mr. Frye demonstrates that by his invention two thousand pounds of dynamic power will carry a given amount of weight at a speed of one hundred miles an hour, where by the present system six thousand pounds are required to haul the same twenty miles an hour.

A heavy thunder shower passed over Westmoreland about midnight of Sunday, the 5th, with several very heavy claps, and lightning struck the barn of Mr. John Cisco, killing two cows and a heifer, and completely destroying the barn and contents, consisting of seven tons of hay and a good crop of oats. Insured for a small sum.

Mr. Beecher, if the Newport News understands his Sunday talk, fell into the line of talk Gen. Butler adopts when he gets to talking about the press. It says: "It appears that if anybody who has offended Mr. Beecher is so fortunate through that gentleman's prayers and the grace of God as to reach heaven he will hunt up H. W. B. and make his apologies, to which we hope H. W. B. will reply 'Grace, mercy and peace.' There will be no difficulty in finding Mr. Beecher. Even the Great White Throne would sink into insignificance in any place where the pastor of Plymouth church was."

George Clark, son of Porter Clark, of Rindge, was drowned in Dublin Lake, on the 6th inst. He went out in a boat for a bath, and when about in the middle of the lake, undressed and plunged into the water, and was drowned. The water in that part of the lake is said to be ice cold and Clark was probably taken with cramps.

Mr. Thomas J. Lasier, one of the most esteemed members of the New Hampshire Press, has retired from editorial duty on the Claremont Eagle, with which he has been connected for nearly five years, and is succeeded by Mr. Robert L. Smiley, a gentleman of considerable newspaper experience. The Eagle, under Mr. Lasier's management has been most judiciously conducted, and his brethren throughout the State, with whom he has ever held most pleasant personal relations, will wish him the utmost measure of success in any calling he may hereafter pursue.

The Pennsylvania democrats have stultified themselves and belied the party warcry of hard money, by adopting the inflation plank of their Ohio brethren, or one very much like it. The result was only reached after a long wrangle in committee, but the minority weakly acquiesced in convention. A freight train on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad was ditched near Dellsboro, Ind., and three small boys, named John Moran, Peter Beltner and Lewis Rebenstem, all of Aurora, Ind., who were stealing a ride, were crushed to death between two cars.

The Philadelphia Times chronicles another chapter in the romance of the Goss-Udderzook murder, a case which in its surroundings was as dramatic as any crime that ever furnished the plot of a novel. Udderzook, it will be remembered, expiated his share in the conspiracy and the killing on the gallows at West Chester, within a few miles of the spot where the body of his victim was found. At his trial the evidence strongly implicated A. C. Goss as a party to the plot to defraud the insurance companies, and as he had testified at the suit brought by Mrs. Winfield S. Goss to recover the policies upon the life of her husband, that the body found in the burned building in Baltimore was that of his brother, then missing and afterward murdered, a criminal charge was preferred against him. The jury failed to convict Goss, and now, after a long interval, it is announced that in the event of Mrs. Goss agreeing to abandon the damages of $25,900 against the insurance companies, awarded her by a jury several years ago, the prosecution of A. C. Goss will be dropped by them. This is said to be looked upon as a most lame and impotent conclusion, and the agreement, if ratified, would go far to establish Udderzook's innocence in the popular mind, and to prove that he was, as asserted down to the day of his death, a victim of the insurance companies. The proposition comes, it is said, from these corporations, Mrs. Goss and her brother-in-law insisting upon the payment of the policies and holding firmly to their belief, as was testified to at the trial by hanged a year ago at West Chester.

The letter of Brevet Captain L. E. Fagan, U. S. M. C., which was republished in our last issue, has created considerable discussion in the Marine Corps, particularly among those of the Corps who have long been conscious of its many and very perceptible shortcomings, and anxious to do something to remedy them, and place the Corps upon a healthier and more reputable basis. Fortunately this class is by no means a small one, or a new one, but being almost entirely without the co-operation of the officers, from whom better things should be expected, it has made but little headway. In a meeting of officers held not long since, we are informed that several very earnest speeches were made, in which the speakers distinctly declared that they preferred abolition to a further continuance of the present condition of things. A natural and becoming delicacy deters them from lodging the blame for the decadence of the Corps exactly where it belongs, but the time must come when endurance will cease to be a virtue, and the entire truth must be told. Although the usefulness of this Corps may be seriously impaired, it cannot be questioned, and with a proper organization and transfusion of new blood, it must take a front rank among military bodies.—Army and Navy Journal.

Trapped in a Canyon.

The New York Times has an interesting account of the recent attack by the Indians on the Hayden surveying party in the Sierra La Sol country, from which it appears that the little band of scientific adventurers showed an extraordinary amount of pluck and courage considering the odds against them and the great disadvantages of their position. The country is a wilderness of the wildest kind. No record can be found of any explorers having penetrated to those mountains before the surveying parties camped on them. They are just over the southwestern border of Colorado, a few miles into Utah, surrounded on all sides by a desert country; and a white man in that remote region is probably as far from any settlement of his own race as he could possibly get and still be in United States territory. Being on the boundary lines of the ranges of three tribes, the Utes, the Piutes and the Navajoes, the most desperate rascals from each congregate there for mutual protection and plunder when they dare not openly appear anywhere else. They acknowledge no authority but that of their own chiefs—murderers and robbers every one. The several bands number respectively from seven to twenty, and are probably about as poor and desperate a set as mountain brigands usually are. The scientific party consisted of seven men—Prof. James T. Gardner, Henry Gannett, A. C. Peale, Robert Adams, W. R. Atkinson, Cuthbert Mills, Frank Pearson and six employes, making thirteen in all. Seven were armed with rifles and the remainder with revolvers. The party had been warned of the character of the Indians, but when they started out all ideas of danger were dismissed. The fact of the Indians being near, caused very little concern, the different men going off alone every day, and the work of the survey proceeding as usual. All went well until Sunday, the 15th of August. It was between five and six when the trains descended the last slope into a wide, dry basin, so arid, so lonely, so scorched up and wild, it seemed to realize the ideal of the valley of the shadow of death. To get out of it, it would be necessary to climb stone walls varying from 500 to 1000 feet high. The party had been here but a short time when a dozen Indians came tearing down the slope, and in a few minutes the redskins were engaged, with an earnestness which was too lively to be entirely disinterested, in assuring the "big chief" (Mr. Gardner), and everyone else, that there was no more water for miles. "No more wa'er," said one old villain, throwing wide his arms, "no more wa'er, heap way up." They wanted the party to camp there, and spent ten minutes trying to persuade everybody that they must do it or perish from thirst. While the talk was going on the rascals were skirmishing round the party, counting their guns and noting their make, and generally taking stock of the surveyors. These suspicious movements were too obvious to be overlooked and Mr. Gardner decided that at all hazards he would not camp there. Accordingly the order to advance was given, and the trains moved away and passed up over the ridge. No sooner had the rear guard passed the brow than the Indians began firing from behind it. Kelsey and Adams came very near being killed, bullets striking the ground close to them. The boys begged to be allowed to charge the Indians, but Prof. Gardner thought it unadvisable, considering that they were protected by and mounted on swift horses, and the members of the party on tired mules. The train was therefore ordered forward on a trot, to get out of range of the hill. Taking Masters and McCreary with him, Prof. Gardner galloped toward the hill on the right and in advance, under which the train must pass to reach more open ground. The redskins were already on the opposite slopes, but the party drove them away and held the point until the train was out of shot. The party camped on a sage-brush plain, as far as possible from the hills. The position was, however, exposed to fire at 300 yards, from a ravine that would shelter the enemy, and from a ridge 500 yards distant. A skirmish line was formed of Adams, McCreary and Prof. Gardner, 300 yards from camp, and so placed as to command these positions and protect the rest of the men, who were unpacking and building a circular barricade of the apparatus and baggage. The Indians were thus forced to fight at very long range, and the party were hidden in the sage-brush and fought to excellent advantage. The Indians took position on a hill, from which most of their bullets fell short of the camp. At sunset Prof. Gardner and himself, 200 yards from the barricade, with orders to keep back the Indians, who it was expected would crawl through the sage-brush and attack by the light of the just risen full moon. They came as anticipated, and for five hours the party fought them in their own fashion, creeping through the sage-brush and firing at the flash of their guns. Their shots had no effect upon the surveyors and only one of the animals was wounded. The party were beginning to suffer much from want of water and food. The situation became critical; the Indians would doubtless be reinforced, and if escape were attempted they would fire from every knoll in the canon. If the party remained they would perish of thirst. However, a break was made for the plateau, and the battle signal came quickly in short, wild yells from an Indian posted on a rocky pinnacle above. Down they came from their hiding places on ponies. They immediately occupied the eminences, within shot of which they supposed the party would pass. The party were successful in driving them from every one for the first hour, but soon the hungry and thirsty mules utterly gave out and refused to be spurred from a walk. The Indians would gain the summit first, and then the retreat across the open space would be attended with great danger. The bullets kept dropping near the train, and after five hours of fruitless search in the hot sun, tormented by thirst, it was determined to fight the way to camp up through the canon. The Indians poured a hot fire on the party, but their inaccurate aim was the salvation of the explorers. Three mules were killed, but the men found refuge behind the trees, and after cutting the packs from the mules they found their way along through the ambush, the Indians fearing to make an open attack. "In four days from this time we scaled the bluff," says Prof. Gardner, "I brought the party in here safe and well, having ridden 200 miles from the scene of battle. Out of sixty hours from the morning of the 15th, we were in the saddle forty-eight. The fight was incessant from five o'clock on the afternoon of the 15th until the afternoon of the 16th, excepting three hours at night. Of thirty-two animals we brought off twenty-eight; three of them are wounded, but not badly. Not a man was wounded and none are sick." The escape of the party is almost miraculous, and is due to the cowardice of the savages rather than to any preparations of the explorers for withstanding such an assault. The result in this case is a subject for sincere congratulations, notwithstanding the loss of valuable instruments.

The Ralston Tragedy.

[George Alfred Townsend.]

In the case of Wm. C. Ralston, who was a creating spirit on the Pacific side, the press had a right to disagree with his projects. It had no right, considering the career he had run, to attack his credit and that of men he represented. And the Associated Press committed a breach of morals commensurate with its power in seeking to defame such a man over this land, and the silent protest of his death is felt in a million hearts. There, indeed, was a giant power used like a giant, to which wealth, energy, generosity and poverty were no defence. Eloquently Ralston went to protest in the more merciful ocean, whose great leaders rolled again and again, but over his head; his heart, his wife's they would not strike.

With the power to have bought all the presses on the coast, he was always amiable to editors and writers. He liked them, but was averse to publicity or praise, nor would he have hospitality made a matter of newspaper description. The Chronicle, which has dealt well by his memory, sent a reporter to one of his dinner-parties and Ralston took him out by the ear.

In his tragedy the people of the coast have had an opportunity to exercise discrimination between telling over his faults or speaking of his virtues. They have overwhelmingly vindicated their good impulses by laying him in the grave with tender pity and praise. They know how bad a man can be with so much power, and how little of bad there was in his opportunity. He might have been a Shylock, but he was also an Antonio. The test at the end of his life is the number of one's friends; a Dickens who deals in pathos has a cold funeral; a Thackeray, genuine amidst his satire, dies better than he wrote. So Ralston has moved everybody but D. O. Mills, that other rich man, with a face of cold poultice, whose life has been a defaulter's on matters of human sympathy; he was the reflection of Ralston on snow, and when the real banker died the shadow ran away like Peter Schlemmil's. When Mills and the Bulletin joined their forces over Ralston's remains, the real monopoly was completed: the union of the insensate and the sensational—Jonas Chuzzlewit and Chevy Slyme.

Over Two Cataracts.

Fall's creek is a small stream near Delhi, N. Y., with two cataracts near each other—one 40 feet high, the other 30. At the head of the upper falls stood for years a saw mill, which disuse had reduced to a somewhat dilapidated condition. The recent rains had swollen the creek to three times its usual size, bringing the water up under the foundation of the old mill. On Tuesday, the 7th, a sudden storm of wind and rain arose in the vicinity. The wife of Mr. G. L. Sloat, living near the saw mill, had started with her three children to go to a neighbor's. The storm overtook them below the saw mill, and Mrs. Sloat took the refuge with her children in the old building. While they were there the foundation was entirely undermined, and before they could escape they were swept toward the falls. Just as the mill was precipitated over first fall it was discovered by Mr. Sloat, who was near by. He did not know his wife and children were in the building, but out of curiosity to see how it would be broken by tumbling over the cataracts, he ran to the foot of the the instant it was struck by the water falling over the first cataract. As Mr. Sloat stood gazing up through the spray and foam, he saw, mingled with the debris of the old mill the bodies of his wife and child. Over the second fall they plunged. Mr. Sloat ran with all speed to a narrow gorge, through which the water passes, about four rods below the lower fall. He reached it before any of the floating timbers or bodies had passed through. In a few seconds the body of his wife came rushing toward the pass. He seized it and drew it out. Then he secured the body of his oldest child and that of the youngest. The third did not appear, and after waiting a few seconds Mr. Sloath turned his attention toward resuscitating the rescued. His wife was only partially unconscious and was soon restored. The two children were also resuscitated after a long trial, and removed to the house. The body of the third has not yet been found.

FOR MAYOR.

Dr. Jeremiah F. Hall.

The City Election

Takes place to-day, the polls opening at nine o'clock. The republicans have a sterling nominee for Mayor. Dr. Hall was an early advocate for free-soil, and his services on the stump in Strafford and Carroll counties in Fremont times were especially effective. He has always been a sturdy defendant of the republican faith and has drawn strength from the democrats repeatedly in past elections.

Among the candidates for Aldermen, no abler or truer men can be found on the democratic ticket than those presented for the suffrages of republicans. A comparison of the two tickets will show the truth of this assertion. The candidates are as follows:

Wards.	Republican.	Democratic.
1	Wm. F. Fernald,	Chas. W. Stimson,
2	Wm. H. Y. Hackett,	Moses Lord,
3	Samuel Adams,	Wm. F. Russell,
	Joshua Stackpole,	Albert R. Hatch,
4	Charles H. Mendum,	Chas. H. Downs,
5	Albion P. Stevens,	Samuel W. Moses,
	Matthew T. Betton,	John H. Wells,
6	Thomas E. Call,	Patrick Hennessey.
	John Knowlton,	William Marvin, Jr.,
7	Orville D. Bryant.	Daniel Littlefield.

Jottings.

It is moved and seconded that Nathaniel of Texas be allowed to cast the first vote in Ward Seven to-day. Last March, he arrived in from White island one minute too late to exercise the right of suffrage.

At the late fire on Water street twenty-two hundred feet of hose were burst which has cost over one hundred dollars to repair.

On Thursday night, two tramps being in Bangor and desiring to reach Portland, decided to steal a ride on the night express train for Boston via the Eastern and Maine Central Railroad line. They accordingly climbed to the top of the postal car and stowed themselves alongside the turret, out of observation of the train men. Rather a dangerous place to ride with eyes wide open, one would say, but the sequel shows that they fellasleep while on the road, and did not awake till the train had nearly reached Salem. At the Railroad crossing, just east of Salem tunnel, they alighted at 5:30 A. M., and inquired if they were in Portland. Being told that it was Salem, they were much astonished, as well they might be after a night ride of 250 miles in such a perilous position. The appearance of the men gave evidence of the truth of their statement, as they were covered with smut and cinders from head to foot.

Judging by one of the annual pre-election Lyre misrepresentations, Hon. Moses H. Goodrich is the only nominee of the democracy whom it regards as one of "our best citizens."

There were 200 guests at Appledore on Sunday.

Mr. Nathaniel Simpson of Greenland had his pocket picked of a $150 watch by three persons who hustled him at the Manchester depot as he was getting into a car.

British schooner White Sea struck a rock off York on Saturday morning, and was towed into the lower harbor by tug Clara Bateman and beached, there being four feet of water in her hold. Her cargo is coal, consigned to C. E. Walker & Co.

The Aqueduct company has expended $30,000 in improvements this year, and there is water enough to satisfy the salt-fishiest man that ever drew breath in Portsmouth.

The Superintendent of the Strafford County Fair has made arrangments with the Eastern Railroad to transport passengers from Portsmouth to Dover and return for eighty cents, including admission to the Fair.

FOR A WOMAN'S SAKE; Or, The Mysteries of the Castle. By Hans Wackenhusen. A dramatic story of this kind cannot fail to have the best of the most stirring novelty for all respectable classes of the reading public. It is a tale sparkling and snapping with all the vivacity of modern literary style, yet as full of marvel, mystification and knightly adventure as any work from the pen of Mrs. Radcliffe, Monk Lewis, or Walter Scott. Published by J. F. Gill & Co., Boston; illustrated, paper, 75 cts.

THE NEW DON QUIXOTE; Or, the wonderful adventures of Tartarin of Tarascon, by Alphonse Daudet, is one of the most amusing stories ever written—bright, graceful, and witty. The author satirizes the proneness of the people of southern France to exaggeration with mirth-provoking effect. The book is fascinating from the first page to the last. J. F. Gill & Co., publishers, Boston. Price, in cloth, $1.

Queries Sensible.

Editor Chronicle; I observe that the temperance men are engaged in holding temperance meetings in different parts of the city, and trying to do something to induce the young men to keep away from the places where ardent spirits are sold. This is all very well so far as it goes, but is it all that is necessary to be done? Do they furnish any better associations for the young men? Do they take any means to cause places of amusement to be opened for them where the intoxicating cup is unknown? Are the churches opened every evening and young men invited to enter as freely as the saloons are? Are there any places where young men can go and read the news and have a pleasant chat with their neighbors, where there is no liquor sold, unless it be in his own room? If there be any such places, where are they? You may answer that there are the Mechanics' Reading Room, and the Athenaeum. But are these free? Are they not strictly private club-rooms supported by their members solely for their own use? And is not one who intrudes, even for one single evening, reproduced by some member and pay the regular membership fee? Is not a young man, especially a stranger, obliged either to sit in his hotel, stay in his own room stand on the street corner, or make for himself company by associating with those who frequent dens of vice? A young man feels the need of company and unless good is provided he will soon fall in with the bad.

People may talk as much as they please about young men choosing their company. Many times it is impossible for a young man to choose such company as he would like to associate with, and so long as men are constituted as they are now, and feel so indifferent to the welfare of those around them, there will be just so many victims of the traps set for the unwary. Were there reading rooms, and places of innocent amusement in every town kept open and as free an invitation extended to the young men, strangers as well as residents, to come in and spend their time, as the saloon keepers give, many a young man could be induced to visit them in preference to the low dens to which he is almost forced to go by the frigidity of those who claim to profess better things. How many times in a year is a young man asked to go to church when met on the street by those with whom he is acquainted? Not many times; and if he be a stranger he may remain in perfect ignorance of the names of the denominations occupying the various churches, for all the members seem to care. And even if he should from principle visit one of the churches, does any one ever extend to him a friendly hand, bid him welcome and invite him to come again? Not very often. But should he chance to visit a saloon, he finds things far different. The proprietor, bent upon obtaining a customer, uses his best endeavors to make his stay agreeable. He politely bids him good evening, very pleasantly; answers any questions or gives any information desired of him, shows the latest papers, and upon the young man's departure most generally bids him not be in a hurry and to call again.

And this the young man generally does, although many times unwillingly. He would prefer better company, but as he does not feel free to intrude when he is not invited or welcomed, he is gradually led to seek the society of those who are sociable, and as he, in his inexperience, imagines, friendly, until he is tempted to leave the paths of virtue and purity, and he soon is on the road to vice and dishonor.

There are remedies for these things, but I hardly think it necessary to point them out. They are at once apparent to the thinking man or woman. I write this simply because I am an earnest apostle of temperance and have seen the evil effects of a life of drunkenness.

A Popular Error Committed.

It is an absurd but very common error to suppose that a disordered condition of the liver can be remedied by a simple cathartic. Such is, however, far from being the case. Cathartics do not touch the liver at all. It is only when (as in the case of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters) the laxative principle is combined with tonic and stimulative elements, that the great secretive gland is directly acted upon. The Bitters, although sufficiently laxative to relieve the bowels moderately, do not owe their anti-bilious effects to purgation merely, but to their power of rousing the liver from its inaction and impelling it to secrete and distribute the bile in sufficient quantities for the purposes of digestion and evacuation. Its effect upon the stomach and bowels is such as to ensure the regular discharge of the functions named and prevent abstraction or vitiation of the biliary fluid—in other words, to secure entire co-operation with the liver.

THE NEW TOWN HALL AT AYER. This elegant structure is now complete. In beauty of design it surpasses anything of its kind in the State. Constructed of brick and dark marble it is as permanent as it is charming. The English architects have adorned it in subdued colors, which please without tiring the eye. Dr. J. C. Ayer built and gave it to the town in acknowledgment of the distinction they conferred upon him in taking his name. Although it is a generous gift, still the hearty good wishes of a whole people are of greater value, and the generous donor has doubtless secured them.—Groton (Mass.) Journal.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $15, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY Applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

—— FOR ——

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Complaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Tonics," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS,

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and am now troubled with BAD BLOOD and find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills, a beaiden myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be see in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 19, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices,

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or a rea over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf, but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,220,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorick Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the fogs, trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent its spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, flies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

YARN OF THE NANCY BELL.

W. S. GILBERT.

'Twas on the shores that round the coast
From Deal to Ramsgate span,
That I found alone, on a piece of stone,
An elderly naval man.

His hair was weedy, his beard was long,
And weedy and long was he,
And I heard this wight on the shore recite
In a singular minor key.

"Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold,
And a mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

And he shook his fists and he tore his hair,
Till I really felt afraid,
For I couldn't help thinking the man had been drinking,
And so I simply said:

"Oh, elderly man, it's little I know
Of the duties of men of the sea,
And I'll eat my hand if I understand
How you can possibly be

At once a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sun tight and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig."

Then he gave a hitch to his trowsers, which
Is a trick all seamen larn,
And having got rid of a thumping quid,
He spun this painful yarn:

"'Twas on the good ship Nancy Bell
That we sailed to the Indian sea,
And there on a reef we came to grief,
Which has often occurred to me.

And pretty nigh all of the crew was drowned,
(There was seventy-seven o' soul,)
And only ten of the Nancy's men
Said 'Here!' to the muster roll.

There was me and the cook and the captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And the bo'sun tight, and the midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig.

For a month we'd neither victuals nor drink,
Till a hungry we did feel,
So we drawed a lot, and accordin' shot
The captain for our meal.

The next lot fell to the Nancy's mate,
And a delicate dish he made;
Then our appetite with the midshipmite
We seven survivors stayed.

And then we murdered the bo'sun tight,
And he much resembled pig;
Then we wittled free, did the cook an' I me,
On the crew of the captain's gig.

Then only the cook and me was left,
And the delicate question, 'Which
Of us goes to the kettle?' arose,
And we argued it out as sich.

For I loved that cook as a brother, I did,
And the cook he worshipped me;
But we'd both be blowed if we'd either be stowed
In the other chap's hold, you see.

'I'll be eat if you dines off me,' said Tom;
'Yes, that,' says I, 'you'll be,—
'I'm boiled if I die, my friend,' quoth I,
And 'Exactly so,' quoth he.

Says he, 'Dear James, to murder me
Were a foolish thing to do,
For don't you see that you can't cook me,
While I can—and will—cook you!

So he boils the water, and takes the salt,
And the pepper in portions true,
(Which he never forgot,) and some chopped shallot,
And some sage and parsley too.

'Come here,' says he, with a proper pride,
Which his smiling features tell,
'T will soothing be if I let you see,
How extremely nice you'll smell.'

And he stirred it round and round and round,
And he sniffed at the foaming froth;
When I ups with his heels, and smothers his squeals
In the scum of the boiling broth.

And I eats that cook in a week or less,
And—as I eating be
The last of his chops, why I almost drops,
For a vessel in sight I see.

* * * * * * *

And never I larf, and I never smile,
And I never lark nor play;
But I sit and croak, and a single joke
I have, which is to say:

'Oh, I am a cook and a captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
And a bo'sun tight, and a midshipmite,
And the crew of the captain's gig!'"

—Olive Logan tells, in the Baltimore American, how Jim Collier, the actor, fooled Naggie Mitchell, who is his kinswoman, while spending a few days at her Long Branch cottage. It is a story of wicked and elaborate deceit. Snakes were thick in the yard, and Collier habitually went out in his slippers. The repeated warning cry of the lady was, "Jim, look out for the snakes! Adders! the grass is full of them since the rains. Better come off the grass with those slippers on!" He hastily repaid this solicitous attention, according to Olive, in this way: "Procuring one day at a toy shop on Broadway one of those papier-mache snakes which make one shudder to look at them, he fastened it to his trousers-leg by a string, whose action he could regulate at his waist. The family are seated on the piazza. Suddenly a howl rent the air. It emerged from Collier. The affrighted group looked toward him, and with horror beheld a snake writhing out of his trousers-leg. 'Snake! Adder!' shouted he, jumping from the hammock and careering wildly over the lawn. 'I'm bit! Oh, take him off! Murder!' 'Bring him something! quick! Whisky—arnica,' cried Maggie, wringing her hands. 'Oh! bring the whisky—don't bring any arnica,' shouted Collier, rolling on the ground and making the snake perform gymnastics in the air. Mr. Paddock (Maggie's husband) having got a big stick, was about to rush to the rescue. 'Keep away!' roared the sufferer; 'it shall bite nobody but me—oh! oh!' Then seizing the reptile in both hands at its ends, he attacked it with his teeth in the middle, and apparently accomplished its destruction by madly 'chawing' it in two, to the indescribable horror of the family on the piazza."

—A party of convives at North Adams, Mass., partook of pickled oysters, sliced lemons and custard, and then when they deservedly died of cholera morbus their friends called it a "mysterious case of poisoning."

Maine Election.

Forty towns give Connor 15,102, Roberts 13,730, being 1372 republican majority, against 2972 majority in same towns last year, or 54 per cent. loss.

Kittery gave 168 majority for Gen. Conner, republican candidate for Governor—a loss from last year of 159.

Elliot, 65 majority for Gen. Roberts, democrat, a republican loss of 69.

Bangor, 250 democratic majority.

News and Notes.

Secretary Bristow has stopped the issue of 10-cent fractional currency. Naturally, he selects this, the smallest piece of paper currency, for earliest displacement.

Mr. Milton Hay of Springfield is talked of as the republican candidate for Governor of Illinois. The Chicago Tribune says of him: "The nomination is in many respects a good one, and if it secures the approval of the State convention the party will rally to the support of Hay with one voice. Milton Hay is one of several men in Illinois whose nomination for Governor would be the signal for an old-time republican majority."

Professor E. S. Stearns, principal of the Robinson Female Seminary at Exeter, has been appointed president of a new State Normal University in connection with Nashville, Tenn., University, which is expected to be the largest institution of the kind in the State.

Frank L. Grinnell of New York city, who graduated at Yale this Summer, went to Bridgeport, Conn., to play with the local base ball nine. Just before the game, while in the field, he was accidentally hit on the back of his head at the base of the brain, by a ball thrown in from centre field. He was rendered unconscious and was taken to the house of President W. D. Bishop of the N. Y., N. H. and H. Railroad, where he died, having had his senses but a moment since the accident. He was the son of George B. Grinnell of New York.

Perry's block, at Claremont, was burned on Monday. Loss $10,000; insured.

Jerry Doody and Michael Foley were so terribly mangled by an explosion at the Chipman mine, Newburyport, on Monday, that they died soon after. The head of one of them was literally battered pieces, and the other one had his clothing stripped from his body, his hips broken and otherwise injured. Both were single men and had been employed at the mines for some time.

Charles Francis Adams is likely to be nominated more and elected less than any other man.—N. O. Republican.

The next Congress has more than the usual number of new men. There are only four members who have served in seven Congresses, or fourteen years, and only four who have served in six Congresses, or twelve years. In the former category we count General Banks, who resigned from the Thirty-fifth Congress after one month's service. Here is the list: Fourteen years—S. S. Cox, W. S. Holman, W. D. Kelley, N. P. Banks. Twelve years—Fernando Wood, S. J. Randall, J. A. Garfield, J. G. Blaine. Cox Kelley and Holman served during the war. Cox entered one Congress before Holman, and two Congresses before Kelley. Wood, Garfield and Randall entered in the last session of the war the Thirty-eighth Congress, although Mr. Wood had been a member in 1841, of the Thirty-seventh Congress. Only one member antedates him, Mr. William Pitt Lynde, of Wisconsin, who entered Congress in 1840. General Banks entered in 1852. Mr. Kerr, of Indiana, entered the next Congress after the war, the thirty-ninth, and served eight years. Mr. Kelley, as the longest in continuous service, therefore, is father of the House. Cox and Holman each had a hiatus in their service of fourteen years, and, therefore, Kelley outranks them.

The annual meeting of the Rockingham Co. East Bible Society will be held at Newmarket, Sept. 21st, commencing at 10 o'clock, A. M.

It is reported by the Atlanta Herald that Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, the ex-Confederate commander, has accepted the position of Commander-in-Chief of the Egyptian army; that he will receive a bonus of one hundred thousand dollars and an annual salary of twenty-five thousand dollars, and that he now accepts the post after having repeatedly refused it.

In the Circuit Court at Newport, Saturday, Judge Foster sentenced James Forrest (real name supposed to be John A. Flood, of Cross street, Boston) to eight years in the State Prison for assault and attempt to rob Jailer Barton while making his escape from jail last Spring.

The committee appointed to examine the accounts and affairs generally of Rockingham County, with reference to the County Farm, have closed their labors and will report to a meeting of the County convention the 23d inst., at Exeter or Brentwood. It is said that they have not found occasion to censure any county officer.

Jeff Davis received an ovation in Missourie. If he had gone to Rockford he would have had an "ovation" there, too, for the Grand Army of the Republic stood ready with the eggs.—Chicago Times.

Lake Michigan Disasters.

A most terrible disaster, arising from the great storm on Thursday night, comes to light, a disaster involving the loss of the propeller Equinox, with all on board, twenty-two persons, not one of whom is known to have escaped. There were two passengers on board, and the captain and crew, consisting of nineteen men. The captain was Dwight Scott, of Cleveland. The two passengers were Miss Minnie Scott, the captain's daughter, aged 19 years, going home, and Miss Hettie Scott, aged 13, a grand-daughter. Capt. Scott was about 60 years of age. The names of the crew are not known.

The Equinox started from Saginaw for Chicago laden with salt. She was near Point au Sable, about 180 miles from Chicago, when she went down. The story of the disaster is told by Capt. Lusk, of the schooner Emma A. Mayes. His schooner was being towed by the lost propeller up a few minutes before she went down. The crews of both vessels were ready for duty, and that of the schooner was constantly engaged about the sails and rigging. The fury of the storm was terrible, and it seemed several times as though certain destruction awaited them. No signs, however, came from the Equinox that all was not right on board. Her speed was very much retarded, but she held to her course and steamed ahead. The night was pitch dark and the waves were running high. The storm created such a fearful din as to make it almost impossible to hear anything, while the lightning afforded only a glimpse of the scene. They were off Point au Sable about two o'clock. Friday morning, when Capt. Lusk heard a voice from the propeller shouting, "Cast off your line," which was immediately followed by the cries of the women. For a few seconds all was still. The crew of the Mayes were meanwhile loosing the line, when shrieks of women from the propeller were again heard, sounding to those on board the schooner as though they cried, "We are drowning!" The line was already loosened, and connection between the two vessels thereby severed, when suddenly, as Capt. Lusk was peering through the darkness at the receding propeller, it appeared to tip, and almost before he could move, the immense craft disappeared from sight beneath the hissing waters. The action was so sudden that no one on board the schooner seemed to have an idea of the position. For a moment it seemed as though the propeller might have steamed away and been lost to sight in the darkness; but the sinking vessel with its living freight was too plainly impressed upon his sight and mind, and there could be no doubt that the steamer had been suddenly swallowed up without warning or sign of wreng, until the order came to cut loose. Capt. Lusk weathered the remainder of the night as best he could. Capt. Lusk said he could render no assistance, as a small boat could not live in such a sea, and to bring the schooner alongside would have been certain destruction. The propeller went down so quickly that there was no chance for escape. She must have opened her seams at once and have been literally swallowed up by the great suction caused thereby. The wind was blowing a perfect gale from the northwest, and the sea was running so high as to make it impossible for anything but a clean sailer to weather it.

The schooner Onondaga, coal laden, while trying to make the harbor of Chicago during a fearful gale, struck North pier and went down with all on board—captain and six men. The gale was too heavy for tugs to reach her. The Onondaga and cargo were valued at $40,000.

Part of Donaldson's Balloon Found.

Cor. Chicago Journal.]

LITTLE POINT AU SABLE, Aug. 28.

Relative to my search for the body of Professor Donaldson and the wreck of the lost balloon, I will state that about four weeks since, as I was coming south on the beach of Lake Michigan, about nine miles South of Pentwater, I discovered quite large pieces of new cotton cloth and some bags, mostly covered up with sand, at the edge of the water. Some of the pieces of cloth were varnished a yellow color, while others were not. Securing one of the sand-bags, and a piece of the yellow cloth—it was considerable labor to tear it from the ground—I took them home, thinking they might be from the wreck of the balloon, and intending to send them at the first opportunity to the Chicago Evening Journal office.

The day after I helped to take up Mr. Grimwood's body, I took a plow to plow along the beach, where I found the supposed wreck, but could not use it on account of the rubbish accumulated there. Then I took a pitchfork and felt around in the sand, as near the place as I could judge, but it was all in vain; the lake beach here is all sand and undergoes wonderful changes by the action of the water. At the place where I found the pieces in question, the beach has made five or six rods advance into the water, and the wrecked balloon may be covered ten feet under the sand, or it may be washed to some other position, but it is my opinion that the balloon is not moved, and that a heavy north wind would again move the sand drifts from it. The tendency of the current of the lake for the past four or five weeks has been to lodge the sand where the balloon is supposed to lie.

If Mr. Donaldson's body is with the wreck covered with sand and water, it is probably in a good state of preservation, being away from the air. In the Fall of 1872, the schooner Souvenir was lost with her crew, one of whom was found one year afterward ashore near Pentwater well preserved—so much so that it was said his friends might have recognized him.

Since the removal of Mr. Grimwood's body I have learned from a Mrs. Allen, who lives quite near the place where he was found—and is a lady who has been confined to her bed for six years, until recently—that in one of her customary walks along the beach the night before Mr. Beckwith discovered the body, she came so near the remains that she noticed the unpleasant atmosphere, and told her children there must be a body on the shore. At this they became frightened and pulled her away from the place, and this is how she failed to be the discoverer and the receiver of a reward which would have been grateful to her.

Ward Clerks—George W. Twombly, James M. Knapp, William S. Hazel, Ernest H. Rand, Edwin H. Leslie, Michael R. Perkins, George W. Green.

The occupations of the officers elect are varied. The Mayor is a tanner; and the Board of Aldermen will be made up of two lawyers, two grocers, a ship carpenter, a joiner, a dentist, an auctioneer and commission merchant, a cod liver oil manufacturer, and a mill overseer.

The Common Council will number among its members, three grocers, two carpenters, two joiners, two watchmen, two dry goods clerks, a section hand of weavers, a printer, an ice dealer, a butcher, an editor, a ship chandler, a blacksmith, a shoe dealer, and a coppersmith.

The Board of Assessors will consist of two ship joiners, a retired mill agent, a farmer, a harness maker, a builder, and a joiner.

The Overseers of the Poor seem to run to groceries, there being five grocers, one clergyman, and one cooper on the Board.

The School Committee is made up of a grocer, a custom house gauger, a deputy sheriff, a gentleman of leisure, a physician, a boot and shoe manufacturer, a lawyer, a butcher, and a soap manufacturer.

The Moderators are a shoemaker, an insurance man, an auctioneer and commission merchant, a lawyer, a notary public, an inventor, and a coal dealer.

The Selectmen consist of four joiners, three plumbers, two farmers, a blacksmith, a navy yard foreman, a watchman, a calker, a mason, a brewer, a carpenter, an insurance agent, a dry goods merchant, a grocer, a navy yard clerk, and a fireman.

For Ward Clerks, there are a watchman, a blacksmith, a messenger, a farmer, a custom house janitor, a dealer in patents, and a boat builder.

The Municipal Election

On Monday, passed off very quietly, a small vote being thrown by both parties, there seeming to be little exertion made throughout the day to rally voters. Hon. Moses H. Goodrich, democrat, is elected Mayor, as was generally expected, the republicans feeling that after the counting in process of last year, and the unblushing frauds of last Spring, on the part of the democrats, there would be little hope of gaining control of the city, even should they poll a majority of votes. Added to this was the feeling that Mayor Goodrich has been a faithful official, retaining the respect of political opponents and friends. The excellent nominee of the republicans, Dr. Jeremiah F. Hall, accepted the honor of a nomination with the distinct understanding that there was no prospect of his being called to the Mayoralty this year. There was some free and independent voting in both parties and the reins of party sat loosely on the brow of many an intelligent voter. The democracy found little occasion for the practice of their peculiar tactics in the third and sixth wards, and consequently suffered quite a diminution in their majorities there.

The politics of the city officers elect will be about the same as last year, with the exception of the school Board, which was equally divided but will be composed of six democrats and four republicans during the ensuing year. The Aldermanic Board will consist of six democrats and four republicans; the Common Council, twelve democrats and eight republicans; the Assessors, six to four; the Moderators, six to four; the Selectmen, twelve to nine; and the Ward Clerks, six to four.

The democrats of Ward Three very nearly lost the Rye vote on account of the failure of their Portsmouth organ to inform them when the election was to come off. Dick Smart imagined vain things because of their non-appearance, and had to hunt through the swamp for his men. He ran across a Portsmouth road surveyor on Long Lane and asked if he had voted. "Voted, no; thought the election was to come off a week from to-morrow." The democracy have made such a change in the time of election that only the Hessian portion of their followers pay particular attention; the highest price paid by democratic agents was in the third ward, where one Hessian got a quarter of a pound of tea, a pint of rum and a dollar, to vote the democratic ticket.

The democracy rang the South bell at eleven o'clock, Monday night, built a bonfire on Market street, and had a noisy time. After 1 o'clock, they got out the Cornet Band and Kearsarge Drum and Fife Corps, went on a serenading tour and sang the Christian Shore bell.

Jottings.

The Eastern Railroad cuts down the wages of all its employes ten per cent. from the 15th.

Mr. E. Washington Brown closed his service as Ward Clerk at Monday's election, having been chosen to that position for fifteen years, a longer term of service than that of any person connected with the city government. Mr. Brown has been very courteous to the press during that time, and has always promptly brought in his election returns to this office at the close of the polls.

Getting monotonous—these democratic victories.

The following premiums were awarded at the New England Fair: For setter dogs—1st premium to C. A. Lord, Portsmouth, "Bounce;" for pointers, 1st to John S. Sides, "Grouse;" for Ayrshires—second on sweepstakes, second and third on heifers, and first on yearling calf and bull calf, to Chas. Hayes & Son; County ox-teams, first to Hon. Frank Jones.

Politics are well looked after in Portsmouth. A half dozen voters of both parties cast their ballots on Monday and then moved into other Wards to be in season for the March election.

"All up" for the grand excursion to the White Mountains via the Crawford and Fabyan Houses, commencing to-morrow. Special train leaves Eastern depot at 7:15, A. M. Persons desiring to do so, may go through to the Fabyan House and return home the same day, leaving there at four o'clock P. M.—a remarkable trip; or, if they choose, may remain three days, returning Saturday. Tickets for the round trip only three dollars each—for sale by Station Agent Samuel Barrett, Wm. R. Preston, Butler & Laighton, and Hutchinson & Connell.

A Popular Error Committed.

It is an absurd but very common error to suppose that a disordered condition of the liver can be remedied by a simple cathartic. Such is, however, far from being the case. Cathartics do not touch the liver at all. It is only when (as in the case of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters) the laxative principle is combined with tonic and stimulative elements, that the great secretive gland is directly acted upon. The Bitters, although sufficiently laaxtive to relieve the bowels moderately, do not owe their anti-bilious effects to purgation merely, but to their power of rousing the liver from its inaction and impelling it to secrete and distribute the bile in sufficient quantities for the purposes of digestion and evacuation. Its effect upon the stomach and bowels is such as to ensure the regular discharge of the functions named and prevent abstraction or filtration of the biliary fluid—in other words, to secure entire co-operation with the liver.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

—— FOR ——

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 26th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875

T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., [ ]

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. Men, they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 2, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROUGH BRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The afflicted should use them and be encouraged. Both I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCRO-S.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon a sleigh after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and know Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be now in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE Agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN!

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or a rest over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any seller of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—he said notice being given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS
WANTED.
An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.
Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.
BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.
The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.
Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.
The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.
Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.
The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.
Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.
Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."
The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.
The building will contain 5,280,000 square feet of space.
Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.
Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.
BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL
is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative, he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.
Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.
Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.
CLEAR YOUR THROAT!
Relieve Your Lungs.
For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England
PULMOCINE CORDIAL
Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning; when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.
For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,
USE
Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.
The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Hunting A Man Down.

[Nym Crinele in New York World.]

It is very hard to make the detective understand that he owes anything to society. His moral sense is never cultivated. He quite as often prevents a criminal from reforming as he prevents justice from overtaking him. Captain Young once told me of several cases where the stupid indiscretion of the officer had loaded society with outlaws. One was that of the well known One-eyed Thompson, who early in his career was saved from the clutches of the law by some friends, who raised a sum of money for him out West. He settled in a thriving town on the border, and, changing his name, made a most praiseworthy effort to become a useful member of society. He opened a store, won the respect of the townspeople, was actually made selectman, and was in a fair way to live long and die honored for his many virtues, when he suddenly turned up on the streets here again.

"Hulloo," says Captain Young, "I thought you had 'squared it' and was out West."

"Yes; I thought so too," says Thompson. "But it was no use; one of you men did my business for me!"

It seems that this detective, sitting on the veranda of the new hotel opposite to the store which the reformed men had opened, "spotted him." "Well, I'm blessed if there isn't 'One-eyed Thompson!'" Some of the people guessed not. Oh, no! that was Mr. Simpson, a respected and prominent citizen.

"Oh, oh! it was, eh? If that isn't 'One-eyed Thompson,' the burglar, then I'll go back and join the church."

"All up," said Thompson, "I'm done for. Here I am, captain. It is one of your men that fixed me!"

And so well fixed was he that he became the most noted law-breaker of the day. It is the easiest thing in the world to hunt a man down when he is trying to be honest with his own record against him. There is a case on record of a young man in a prominent dry goods house in this city who, in a moment of temptation, forged a check on his employers. It was a peculiarly painful affair. The lad was well connected, and when the detectives made the discovery it a most broke his parent's heart. However, after some trouble the matter was compromised. The father paid the money and some mitigation of sentence was effected. With the stain upon him he started out to redeem his character, if he could. After wandering about for some time he obtained a situation in New Orleans as entry clerk, and at the end of a year saw a fair prospect of achieving success. His employers had confidence in him, and he had made numerous reputable acquaintances.

One day while on the sidewalk superintending the shipment of some goods, one of these New York men came along.

"Halloo! you here?"

"Yes," said this young man, with his heart in his mouth.

"What are you doing!"

"Trying to earn an honest living!"

It seems incredible, but it is true. The officer went straight into the store. One week later the young man was in New York.

"God knows," he said, "I tried as hard as anybody could to be honest, but it's no use!" Of course a detective who had the slightest notion of his obligation as a man to society, to say nothing of his duty as an officer, would not have made this mistake. And that reminds me of another case which ought to teach even police officers that discretion and kindness are not without fruits even in this business.

Everybody in the force remembers Johnny Maas. He was a pickpocket, and belonged to a mob that worked on the West Side. How he got into the company of these people it would be hard to tell. But he was an adroit and rather amiable thief who scarcely ever caused the force any trouble. It was customary in the days of the metropolitan police to lock up all the pickpockets and "guns" when there was to be a great celebration or procession. They were kept until the city was restored to its usual quiet. Johnny Maas only needed to be told to go to headquarters to report himself there promptly. He was a young man, rather slight in build, and somewhat taciturn.

To the surprise of the superintendent he came to the office one afternoon and inquired when all the special men would be in. He was told he could see them in the morning. When the morning came he was there. After the roll was called, the superintendent said: "Now, Johnny, the men are all here if you want to speak to them." He got up from the corner in which he was sitting, and, wringing out his cap with his two hands, proceeded to address them in a faltering and abashed manner:

"Well, you see I've concluded to square it. You've been pretty rough on me for some time, and I've got a sister that's got the heart disease, and she's took it into her head that she'd live a bit longer if as how I'd do the right thing, and I told her I would make a try of it; and if you men'll gimme a hand why I don't mind makin' it a go. I don't want to git 'the cholera' no more, and if the gal 'ill live a bit longer on my account I am willin'."

All the men went up and shook hands with him, and it was agreed that he shouldn't have "the cholera" unless he broke through his resolution. About a year after that, in the dead of a severe winter, the superintendent was coming through Crosby street into Bleecker, and he met John Maas. The fellow was dressed in a thin bombazine coat. He was collarless, and his feet were out, and he looked hungry, pinched and wretched.

"I'm glad you've kept your word, Johnny. But it's going to be pretty hard with you, I suppose, to be honest?"

"Awful hard, sir," said Johnny, "but I told her I would, and I did."

"That's right. Don't you go back of your word. Stick it out. You'll have better times by and by."

"Do you see that bank over there?" said the young man, pointing to the marble building in Bleecker street. "Well, there ain't money enough in that place to make me go back. I'd rather go cold and hungry and not be hunted—so I would."

The next Summer one of the hotel proprietors at Long Branch sent up to the superintendent for a man to keep an eye on the thieves that hang around a watering place. I can get you a man," said the superintendent, thinking of Johnny, "but I'm bound to tell you he's been a thief."

"Then I don't want him."

Then the superintendent told the story I have told, only he told it better.

"Send him down," said the landlord. "A chap that'll do that ought to be helped."

It was $25 a week to Johnny and it made a man of him. During that season there wasn't a robbery committed at the Branch. Johnny stationed himself at the railroad depot, and when he saw a former pal he warned him off. "It's no use," he would say, "I don't want to pipe none o' you boys, and I ain't goin' to do it if you stay away. If you come here it'll be awful rough on both of us."

And to their credit it ought to be said that they always went back. If I had been in the sentimental or the moral way there is one thing I should have done. Do you know what that is? I should like to have known that sister who had the heart disease. One other thing: I'd like to give you the name of that superintendent, but I'd have to ask him first, and that's impossible.

News and Notes.

Police Officer George A Hall, formerly State Constable at Millbury, Mass., was instantly killed in that town, on Saturday, by a rifle ball. He was shooting with friends, and stood too near the target to watch a friend's shot, the ball glancing from a rock. He died instantly, without uttering a word.

An apple tree growing on Leander Page's farm in Swanzey presents a singular appearance, some of its branches bearing apples fully ripe, while other portions of the same tree are in blossom. Mr. Page has also a field of beans which present an equally curious appearance. The lower portion of the stalks are covered with ripened beans; about midway the pods are just beginning to fill, and near the top a profusion of blossoms are seen.

Among the "reforms" proposed, on the democratic side, in the North Carolina Constitutional convention, are the abolition of the Senate, the separation of the white and colored children in the schools, the compromise of the State debt, and the re-establishment of the whipping post.

President Smith of Dartmouth College, has written a letter to the editor of the Vermont Chronicle, warmly commending him for his recent article denunciatory of the Sabbath excursions to the Twin Mountain House. "It grieved me," he says, "as I refused some of our students leave to go with the Sabbath-breakers, to remember who had tempted them."

A two story house with L, two barns, sheds and other outbuildings situated in Meredith, owned by John C. Fox, and occupied by John H. Colby, were destroyed by fire on Saturday evening last. Loss, $500, no insurance. Cause of fire, probably, sparks from the chimney.

Alonzo Falls, of Lowell, has been appointed to and accepted the position as Superintendent of the Great Falls Manufacturing Company.

The larger of the two mills at Salmon Falls, which has been shut down since July, is to be started up on the 27th. It runs 505 looms and 22,000 spindles. The smaller mill has 328 looms and 13,000 spindles, and is now running at about its full capacity.

The trial of Edwin W. Major of Wilton on the charge of murdering his wife by poison is progressing at Nashua.

E. J. Baldwin is unanimously elected a Director of the Bank of California, to fill a vacancy. In consideration of the fact that Baldwin is one of the largest creditors of the bank, his election is considered significant of favorable progress of the efforts of the syndicate toward resumption.

Mrs. Nathaniel Garland of Wakefield was one of the most unfortunate of the victims at the State Fair. She lost a gold locket with pictures in it of her father and mother, taken many years ago and which cannot be replaced.

Theodore A. Bush, of Skowhegan, Me., while returning from a prayer-meeting Sunday evening, was thrown from his carriage by his horse stumbling. In his fall his foot was caught in the reins and his arm in the wheels, and the horse becoming frightened, he was dragged nearly one hundred rods, receiving injuries from which he died.

The horse Dorsey Goldust was sold at Manchester on Friday, for $2500, to a Mr. Newhall, a druggist of Louisville, Ky.

Perry's brick block, the best business block in Claremont, was nearly ruined by fire, Monday morning. Most of the goods were removed. The fire began near the roof and was mostly confined there.

The officers of the propeller Depoe report the foundering off Point Betsey, Lake Michigan, Thursday night, of the steam barge Mendota. Thirteen of the passengers and crew were drowned and seven saved. The Mendota was upward bound, laden with corn. She was originally a New York Central propeller and the mate of the Dakota lost on Lake Erie several years ago.

Gen. Selden Connor, republican, is elected Governor of Maine by 5000 majority. The republicans carry the legislature, ten of the sixteen counties, and elect Gen. Plaisted to Congress to fill a vacancy.

At a meeting of the committee of the Veterans' reunion, held in Concord on Monday, it was voted to invite Gen. Samuel A. Duncan of New York to deliver an oration, and George A. Marden of Lowell a poem. The committee also voted to invite Gens. Hancock, Butler, Burnside, Banks, Devens, Hawley and Paine, and such others as the President and Secretary may think proper, to be present at the reunion.

A frightful accident occurred on the Grand Trunk Railroad Tuesday morning. A cattle train was thrown from the track and several of the employes on the train were killed. The whole train was a perfect wreck, and to add to the horror of the calamity, the cars took fire, and large numbers of cattle which were buried under the debris were actually roasted alive, it being impossible to extricate them.

On Monday afternoon, about five o'clock, a young woman was seen in a boat on Sugar Ball eddy, about one mile from Concord. She soon after was missing, and her shawl and sunshade being found in the boat, she is supposed to have been drowned. The bottom is being dragged and every effort taken to recover the body. The girl's name was Lougea and she was about thirty years of age.

Another Swimming Feat.

The London Telegraph of the 2d inst. gives a detailed account of a very remarkable natatory feat accomplished by Miss Agnes Alice Beckwith, a fourteen-year-old daughter of Professor Beckwith, she having swam from London Bridge to the Royal Hospital, Greenwich, a distance of five miles, in one hour and nine minutes. Miss Beckwith has since her infancy shown wonderful adaptability to the water, having learned to swim when she was three years old, and performed remarkable feats of dexterity in the water when only six. The occasion of the attempt to perform an unusual feat for a lady was embraced by a large number of her friends to take an excursion on the Thames and as the steamer passed the various piers of the river, cheer after cheer was given for the courageous girl, who stood on the deck of the boat and acknowledged the compliment.

A small boat conveyed the youthful swimmer and her father and brother into the centre of the stream, and at five minutes to five Miss Beckwith began her task. She plunged from the bow of the boat with the greatest ease and sang-froid, and on rising to the surface struck out bravely toward Greenwich. It was about an hour and a half after high water, and the tide was ebbing rapidly. As if to favor the youthful swimmer, the sky became overcast just previously to starting, so that there was no strong sunlight to dazzle her eyes, and very little wind—not even sufficient to raise the tiniest of waves, indeed. Father Thames was considerate in every respect, and a better opportunity, as far as the state of the river or the weather was concerned, for the accomplishment of the feat, could not have been found. No sooner had Miss Beckwith commenced swimming than she was beset with a number of small boats, rowed by watermen and others; and they commenced hemming her in in a manner that seemed absolutely dangerous. Numbers of them were rowed immediately before her, and it was with considerable difficulty that the two police galleys—one from Wapping and the other from Waterloo—which escorted the young lady on either side, could keep a clear course for her. Her father and brother, who sat stripped ready for any emergency, preceded her in the small boat, while craft of all kinds, including the steamer Volunteer, followed in the wake. All along the route, on every bit of vantage ground, and up the rigging of the numerous ships in the Pool, were clustered thousands of persons anxious to get a glimpse of the swimmer. The Tower was passed at six minutes past five amidst hearty cheers from the ships and on shore, and so Miss Beckwith proceeded, at times completely hidden from the view of those on the steamer by the scores of boats that crowded round her. Swimming bravely on, and following immediately and at times close to the stern of her father's boat, Miss Beckwith at ten minutes past five reached Cherrygarden pier, and again there broke forth the heartiest of cheers. The small boats increased in number, and so closely did they press upon her that fears that some direful occurrence would follow began to be entertained. Happily, however, all went on well; and Miss Beckwith, encouraged by her father, apparently paid but little heed to the annoyance. In response to the cheers that continually greeted her from the steamer and the boats, she kissed her hand and testified in a becoming manner that she was confident of success.

At about quarter to six the course was changed from the Southern to the Northern side of the river, and in a couple of minutes afterward the docks at Millwall were in line. The trees of Greenwich Park were now distinctly visible, and as Miss Beckwith was careering along there was but little doubt of her success. Three cheers were called for, and then came Millwall Pier, the cattle sheds at Deptford—time ten minutes to six—Penn's Engine Works, and ultimately Greenwich. A band on board the Volunteer played "See the conquering hero comes," and, with much cheering and firing of cannon, Miss Beckwith, in order to show that she was but little distressed by her feat, astonished the spectators by some cleverly-executed tricks with a hoop thrown to her by her brother, which she continued until the Royal Hospital was reached, at four minutes past six, when she was lifted out of the water by her father, amidst a scene of the wildest enthusiasm and delight. The time occupied in swimming the distance, which is rather over five miles, was one hour and nine minutes. In the cabin of the steamer Miss Beckwith assumed her ordinary attire, and soon afterward was taken to the Ship Hotel for refreshments. She asserted that she did not feel in the least degree tired, in fact, she could have swam another five miles with the greatest ease; and as for the fear that the cold of the water might affect her, she assured her friends that she felt not the slightest inconvenience from it, but that she was warmer, indeed, when she left the Thames than she was when she entered it. Miss Beckwith, like Captain Webb, adopted the breast stroke all the way, and never at any time attempted to relieve herself by swimming on her side, in which she is an adept. Although brandy and port wine were provided for her use en voyage, she declined to take either, and therefore performed her task without the slightest stimulant whatever.

An Obstinate Mother.

[Detroit Free Press.]

Recently Mrs. Bliss, of Mullet street, found a euchre deck in her boy's pocket, and when she took him by the hair he calmly said:

"Hold on, mother—it isn't your play."

"I'll play you!" she hissed, tightening her grip, "How came you by these cards?"

"Mother, you shouldn't trump me this way!" he exclaimed.

"Trumps! trumps! What do you know about trumps?"

"Why, mother, any fool knows that the right bower will take an ace every time."

"It will, eh!" she hissed as she walked him around.

"Of course it will. If diamonds are trumps, for instance, and I hold the ace and left bow—"

"Bowers! bowers! I'll bower you to death, young man!" she said as she walked him the other way.

"Or, suppose that spades were trumps, you held the nine spot and king and turned up the ace, what would you do?" he earnestly inquired.

"Oh, I'll show you what I'd do!" she growled, as she got a left-hander on his ear. "I'll teach you a lesson you'll never forget!"

"That wouldn't be Hoyle, mother; you could never pick up the ace and make a point every—"

But she threw him over her knee and played a lone hand.

A Religious View.

[Vicksburg Herald.]

"You see, when you done shuffle off this mortuary coil, and the spirit presents itself at the golden gates," argued a colored revivalist at the levee, recently, "Gabriel gwine to ask you what church you 'longed to in de flesh."

"Yes, I speck so," said the listener.

"Ef you 'longed to de Missiumary Baptist, he gwine tole you walk right in and set by the foot-stool."

"Ef you 'longed to de Methodist Church he say stay on de outside whar your shoutin' won't 'sturb de angels."

"Ef you's a 'Piscumpalion——"

"Hold on, Mr. Middleton. Dey ain't no niggers 'Piscumpalion. Dem's all white folks," interrupted the listener.

"Dat don't make no difference," continued the expounder of religion; "de principle's de same, ain't it? Ef you're a 'Piscumpalion de angel say to you, 'go over dar among de white folks.'"

"Ef youse Caffolicks, de angel pint you to de Virgin Mary, and tell you——"

"But look heah, Mister Middleton, sposen he didn't 'long to no church in de flesh?" queried the listener.

"Well, what he be doin' dar, den?" asked the colored divine, scornfully.

"Well," replied the unconverted sinner, "I thought in dat case, he could do as he dam please."

A Clothes-line Saves a Boy.

[Pittsburg Leader.]

A little seven-year-old son of Mr. Robert Samuels, who resides over Abel's drug store, on Wylie avenue, had a miraculous escape from death, Monday evening. The little fellow while sitting in one of the windows lost his balance and fell out.

Those who saw the occurrence supposed it would be instant death, and a cry of alarm was raised. Happily the lad fell with his breast upon a clothes-line which was stretched across the yard, thus breaking his fall and letting him to the ground quite easily. People who saw him fall were slow to believe he wasn't fatally injured.

—School has commenced. Along the streets at certain hours go groups of little girls, while flitting about them is the smart little boy. He is doing astonishing things all the time, or saying sharp things which make the little girls laugh. At one time he will run straight ahead with all the force he is capable of. There is no special object in view, apparently. But he knows what he is about. In the group is his first love, and he wants to show her what a pair of good legs he has got. At another time he will hurl a stone at a passing cat or dog. This is to show her what a fine eye he has. Then again he stands in front of a coming team until it is nearly on the top of him, but jumps out of the way in time to save himself, and looks furtively and with all-consuming enjoyment upon the look of horror suffusing her face at the imminent danger he was in. He will also greedily trip up some boy three inches shorter than himself, or talk loud and swaggeringly, and fondly believes he is a hero in her eyes—which he undoubtedly is.

But his chief card is in displays of strength and agility, made by jumping over posts. With all his folly, the giddy lover has a streak of prudence underlying the current. Quite frequently he knows the post he is going to jump over. But none of us are quite infallible. Once in a while he undertakes a post whose height he has miscalculated by about an inch. Only a little inch. An inch is very insignificant in the length of a street, but unexpectly located on the end of a hitching post it is a dreadful thing. And as the little boy gathers himself together after the shock, under the impression that the earth has shot away from him into illimitable space, he realizes most forcibly how great love is purified and refined by suffering.—Danbury News.

—The village of Blandford, in Hampden county, Mass., boasts a character whose peculiarities are of a decidedly unique description. Mr. John McDarby is his name, and he is particularly noted for the massive strength of his jaws and teeth, which is best illustrated when he chews crockery, crushing and grinding it to powder with his ordinary food, when so disposed. A deserter from the English army at Quebec, McDarby first appeared in that region about forty years ago; and in his escape, it is said, he ran sixty-four miles in twenty-four hours without food, which is credible, perhaps, for he is possessed of an iron constitution. He made an impression upon the natives at South Hadley Falls by calling for pie and cheese at the hotel, and biting through plate and all. He has since worked in Blandford and vicinity, where he has displayed all his various accomplishments. At Chester, some time ago, with the utmost nonchalance, he lifted a barrel of pork by the iron hoop, with his teeth, and then, in a wager, put down three dozen eggs, shells and all. He won a bet at Blandford, too, by eating a raw two and one-half pound pickerel, and even church members affirm that he has been known to chew up an earthen porter bottle. He has been known to bite off the head of a live black snake, not to mention numerous other feats quite as disgusting as they are astonishing. His marvellous strength is only in his jaws, which are not malformed, apparently; his teeth are good, though he has lost two, which he knocked out with a hammer when they showed signs of decay. More than one attempt has been made to engage him by travelling shows, but he refuses all such allurements. All of which, and much more, is solemnly vouched for by responsible tax-payers of Blandford and vicinity.

—He was a sad-eyed, meek-faced man, and we supposed he merely wished to give us a news item; but when he commenced telling us about building a barn on his ranch 100x280 feet, seven stories high, and ornamented with bay windows, we thought it was time to check him, and so we commenced:

"Well, we must admit that that is a pretty large barn for this country, but back in the States our father built a barn 325x500 feet, nine stories high, and furnished with steam elevators; the——"

"Back in the States," interrupted our listener. "Why, that wasn't much of a barn for the States. I remember, now, that when I was quite young my father built a chicken-coop 550 by 832 feet. I don't recollect how many stories it was high, but I know there was a cupola on it for the roosters."

"About how high was that cupola?" we asked.

"I don't remember the exact height now, mister," was the reply, "but I know it was so high that the fourteen upper tiers of roosters died from the effects of the light atmosphere the first night."

Then he looked up toward the ceiling and commenced humming, "Jesus loves me," and we went out and sat down on the wood pile and wondered why somebody was always outstripping us in the race of life.—Fairplay (Col.) Sentinel.

—A Kentucky editor was walking recently upon the street, enjoying the balmy spring atmosphere, and wondering whether, in the year to come, his paper would be established on a paying basis, when he became aware of a sudden giggling and tittering behind him. He turned and saw the source of their merriment. Two well-dressed ladies, prominent in the town, were in his rear, and laughing heartily. Much to the poor editor's surprise, their attention seemed especially directed to some peculiarity about his exterior. Then he divined, with a thrill of mortification, the cause of their amusement. Much twisting and writhing, while grinding out mental productions, seated in a hard-bottomed chair, had told upon the frail texture of his pantaloons, and the cloth had finally yielded. The editor's wife—good, thrifty woman—had repaired the damage as best she could; but, because new cloth matches poorly with the old, the evidences of her handiwork were all too plainly visible. Hence the cruel laughter of the ladies walking behind the country editor. The poor man fled to his office in shame. Then his manhood asserted itself, and he sat down upon the patch and wrote something for the paper. His next issue contained this paragraph:

—Whilst Mr. Joseph Terrell of Ballard, Ky., was sitting in his back porch about dusk he saw two rats coming from under some wood close by. Noticing something peculiar about them he paid close attention, and discovered that they had a straw in their mouths, one rat at each end. The rats went down to a little pond in the yard, laid the straw down, took a drink of water, picked up the straw and marched back in the same way they went down. Just before reaching the wood Mr. Terrell killed them both, and upon examination found the largest and oldest rat to have been totally blind. Mr. Terrell says the old rat was very fat, and is satisfied that the other rats have been feeding him on young chickens and turkeys as well as watering him.

—A letter from Norwich, Conn., to the Hartford Times contains the following story as told by George W. Fuller, a submarine diver, who is now in the former city: "While performing some work for 'Uncle Sam' in one of the Southern ports, where it was customary for those who supplied the market with early garden-truck to load their boats and row them around to the wharf, it happened that one day a burly negro loaded his boat with watermelons, and had just reached the dock where the usual number of loungers stood watching the operations of the diver. The negro, all unconscious of his situation, was zealously endeavoring to dispose of his cargo, when Fuller suddenly emerged, helmet first, from the water, thrusting his goggle-eyes and ugly head before the astonished occupant of the boat, and seizing one of the largest of the melons, sunk immediately. The darkey, with a yell and a bound, reached the dock, and neither stopped nor turned until he reached home with the tidings that 'de debble had 'fiscated de melons and was taken 'um down.'"

—Mark Twain, speaking of a new portable musquito netting, writes: "The day is coming when we shall sit under our nets in church and slumber peacefully, while the discomfited flies club together and take it out of the minister."

The losses by fire in New York in 1866 amounted to about six and a half millions. For the year ending June 30th last, the loss was less than two millions. Yet the number of fires last year was double that of ten years before. The improved fire-extinguishing facilities and the improved discipline and efficiency of the department are shown by these striking statistics.

—Jimmie Wharton, who was supposed to be a pretty fast man, was recently married. On the morning after the wedding the lady asked her husband to perform an office of the toilet for her, made necessary by the absence of her maid. Her husband did it willingly, and when it was concluded was astonished to find his pretty wife in tears. "Why, my own precious," said he, "what is the matter with her husband's pet?" "O, Jimmie, Jimmie!" replied the poor girl, crying as if her heart would break, "if you hadn't laced a thousand corsets you never could have done it like that."—Saratoga Letter.

—It is said to be an old prophecy which is animating the insurgents in Bosnia and the Herzegovina. The prophecy, which is to be found in a work on Bosnia published fifteen years ago, states that in the fifth century after the taking of the last Bosnia king by the Turks, the rising of the Christian slaves in Turkey would be victorious Stephen Thomasevie, the last Bosnian king, was executed on the 30th of June, 1463, on the plain of Blagaj, and the present movement commenced on the anniversary of that event.

—Yesterday, when a couple of excursionists were strolling through the market, the girl looked longingly at the fruit, and the young man, after a struggle with himself, purchased several large plums and divided with her. "Do you doubt my love, Milly?" he asked, as they chewed at the fruit. "Noap," she replied, her mouth "plum" full. "Because," he continued, "if I didn't love you I wouldn't be around buying boss plums at five cents, apiece, would I?" She seemed satisfied.—Detroit Free Press.

—A boy was standing on the corner of St. Clair and Monroe streets this morning, with his face all scarred, torn and bleeding. A gentleman thinking something terrible had happened, stepped up and said:

"Well, bub, you look pretty well used up, what's the matter?"

"Oh, nuthin'," replied the boy, "only I went to blow into my dog's ear this mornin', an' didn't git my face out of the way in time. That's all."—Toledo Blade.

—She brought him a vest and a pair of breeches in her answer to an appeal for old clothes, for he was very ragged. She thought they would fit comfortably. He examined both garments attentively, and throwing them down exclaimed: "There ain't no watch pocket, nor no hind pocket for a pistol."—Savannah Advertiser.

—A new planet was discovered recently in the central heavens; the exact constellation and position not discovered. The discoverer weighed 200 pounds, and was coming out of the market when she was intercepted by a watermelon rind. She named it "Gosh!"—Hartford Times.

—A Tennessee murderer selected his victim at a spelling-bee and ballasted him with buck-shot while he was climbing over a five-barred word. The people have given the murderer a pair of mules and a farm, and will send him to the legislature.

—An old bachelor, upon reading that "two lovers will sit up half the night with one chair in the room," said, "Loving must be inconvenient, for it could not be done without one of them sat on the floor."

—Who shall say that this young man in Virginia has not struck the root of the problem in celebrating the 25th year he has not been married? That's what he calls a silver wedding.—Providence Press.

—There is nothing a man will look at more frequently, and resolve to do every time he looks at it, than to clean up the cellar, and yet, he invariably leaves it for his wife to do.—Exchange.

—They have both come to a violent end—Smith has been hung for stealing a mule in Nebraska, and Jones was carried over Niagara Falls, recently. Now let us have peace.—Providence Press.

—When a Canada girl loves, she loves like a hand-engine going to a fire. In a breach of promise suit recently, it was shown that a young lady wrote to her lover eight times per day.

Jottings.

The Portsmouth Cornet Band gave some good music on election night. Such music should have served a better cause.

The absent natives of Newcastle are to have their first reunion next Thursday at the Wentworth House. The citizens of the old town have made ample arrangements for the occasion. Capt. A. H. White, a retired sea-captain, is to preside at the festivities. Elwin C. Kinnear, Esq., of Dover, is to be toast master. All the preparations are made on a liberal scale, and a grand time is in store for the islanders.

The vote of Kittery was 397 republican and 229 democratic.

It is said that the Portsmouth democrats will present the name of Mayor Goodrich to the State convention as a candidate for Governor. His majority on Monday was sixty more than the democratic majority in the city.

There are now 122 pupils in the High School, 65 girls and 57 boys.

Mr. William Israel secured the first premium at the State Fair on cabbages, and sold nine tons to be delivered within six weeks to purchasers in New England and New York. He had six cabbages on exhibition which weighed 168 pounds, an average of twenty-eight pounds each.

The democrats carried York on Monday on the Governor vote, 208 to 199.

Visitors to New York who want a quiet, but select and luxurious home while they stay in the city, and one where the expenses are decidedly lighter than at the larger houses, will do well to call at the Spingler House, on Union Square. It is situated in the heart of the city. Carriage hire is saved, as nearly all the stages and street car lines pass its doors. See card in advertising columns.

Amusement for Young Men.

Editor Chronicle; I was rather surprised to see the communication in your Monday's paper, signed "One of the Young Men"—because for three years already, exactly the opportunity which he desires has been offered to him and all his friends. I refer to the Rooms of the Young People's Union. These rooms are expressly provided to induce young men to leave the saloons, barrooms and gambling hells; to come to a place where it is bright, warm, pleasant and sociable; where they cannot be in any body's way; where they may talk, read, study, or play games. Here there are papers, magazines, books, and stereoscopes; and nobody is obliged to pay a cent, unless he wishes to pay a dollar a year in order to have the privilege of taking home books from a library of nearly 1000 volumes. The Rooms have been closed during the hot weather, but will be reopened in a very short time, when we shall hope to see not only "one" but a great many "of the young men"—citizens and strangers; and we will assure them all of a hearty welcome.

As for the churches, we answer for only one, the Unitarian. There, it is, or ought to be well known, that the vesper service is perfectly free to every one who, in the language of the pastor, "comes with a sincere desire to worship," to every such person, whether young or old, a good seat is shown, and they are invited to enjoy as good preaching and as good music as can be heard in the city. Let us hope that we shall see "One of the Young Men" and his friends there also, during the next Winter.

A FRIEND.

Overwork.

Dr. Samuel Wilks, physician to Guy's Hospital, in the London Lancet, takes ground in opposition to the popular opinion that society at large is really suffering from an amount of work, physical and mental, which is injurious. He believes that, on the contrary, if both sexes be taken, the opposite is nearer the truth, and that more persons are suffering from idleness than from excessive work. Medically speaking, he sees half a dozen persons suffering from want of occupation to one who is crippled by his labors. He has, therefore, very little sympathy with the prevalent notion that nervous and other diseases are due to overwork. Among girls, so far from studies or other work being injurious, he has known many cases of restoration to health on the discovery of an occupation. Very often, when a business man complains of being overdone, it may be found that his meals are irregular and hurried, that he takes no exercise, is rather partial to brandy and soda, and thinks it not improper to half poison himself with nicotine every night and morning.

—A Norristown man has invented a shell which deserves the immediate attention of Secretary Robeson: "It is filled with small shells, and when it bursts among a thousand soldiers, these smaller shells are scattered in all directions, and bursting in turn, send out still smaller shells, which travel around recklessly, and by the time the minature shells, contained in the third size, explode, the army is nearly wiped out, and the few men remaining want to go home."

—"You take the black stem of the clam between the thumb and forefinger of the right hand, dip it into melted butter, carry it to your mouth, nip off the stomach of the clam and throw away the butt—one time and two motions—and if you are not happy it is because the best that this world affords is not good enough for you." That's it exactly.

—It is a bad plan to place unreserved confidence in a man or woman. Never tell any one about yourself—let there be a little mystery and reserve; your friends will like you all the better for it. A book that you know by heart must inevitably be cast aside for a fresh volume; so you will be served if you allow yourself to be thoroughly read. But be prepared in any emergency, to look your own life and acts squarely in the face without flinching or mark yourself a coward. It is not necessary to publish to the world all that is strictly personal unless ridicule and fettering of power are desired; but if gossip makes itself busy with your name don't be aggrieved if a grain of truth is spread over a dozen lies. Pass them by in silence, and do not even then forget your habitual reticence. Justice will be done you in time, never fear, and the less you clamor for it the better. Don't talk too much.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The fatigue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alterative which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town or board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Per order,

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz:a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

—A Frenchman learning the English language complained of the irregularity of the verb "to go," the present tense of which some wag had written out for him as follows: "I go; thou startest; he departs; we make tracks; you cut sticks; they absquatulate or skedaddle."

—Henry Ward Beecher was introduced to a Shaker at the White Mountains the other day, and said to him: "If understand your belief deprives you of some of the pleasures of this life," whereupon the other replied, "It shields us from some of its temptations, also."

—A Tennessee girl told a fellow she would give him a kiss if he would catch her. She ran well till she got out of sight of the old folks, and then gave in. This shows what a Tennessee girl will do when she's hard run.

Weak Lungs,
Constipation,
Lameness,
Liver Complaint,
Dyspepsia,
Paralysis,
Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case, they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where need, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 55 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called agent cures, and received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE.—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.

ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of last side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be see in that section.

MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel, or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain and limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the said ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or dread leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurrying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not know ing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Intermarriages Between First Cousins.

The last number of the Fortnight Review contains an article, by Mr. George Darwin, on "Marriage Between First Cousins," giving the results of some researches he has recently made among the first cousin marriages of the upper classes of England. There are incidentally brought out some statistics worth repeating, such as that in every 79 marriages in England one is a Smith; in 76, a Jones; in 115, a Williams; in 178, a Taylor; in 168, a Davis; in 174, a Brown; in 526, a Griffiths. In fact, it is upon these proportions of fifty of the commonest names he bases all his succeeding calculation. Having found 10 per cent. of marriages between people of the same names, he determines what per cent. of these are marriages between first cousins, and again what proportion these bear to those between first cousins of different names.

His investigations he confines to Burke's "Peerage" and the landed gentry of England and Ireland, and discovers 57 per cent. of the same name first cousin marriages, which is first factor. His second he secures through circulars mailed to the same classes, provided with blanks to avoid receiving the same information through different channels; and though the statistics he receives manifestly must have been incomplete, he feels warranted in taking 2 3-4 per cent. as the proportion of different name first cousin marriages; that the proportion of first cousin-marriages to all other marriages is 4 1-2 per cent.; a percentage slightly increased among the upper class and lowered among the common class of people.

He then proceeded to the asylums to discover whether such marriages are injurious, and in this inquiry he seems to have been very ably seconded by the physicians, but his table of observations appended is not very satisfactory. The testimony of the physicians varies, but preponderates against the popular belief. Dr. Howden goes so far as to say; "Neither in insanity nor in any abnormal propensity do two plus two make four: there is always another factor at work neutralizing intensification and bringing things back to the normal." On the other hand Dr. Crichton Brown says that two plus two makes more than four, and that even persons of similar temperaments should not marry. The investigation shows, Darwin thinks, that in lunatic and idiot asylums probably between 3 and 4 per cent. of the patients are children of first cousins, and in the case of deaf mutes there is no evidence that the percentage is any greater than that of the general population.

Concerning the death-rate of the children of first cousin marriages, Mr. Darwin turned again to the "Peerage," and in a careful examination of thirty-seven families, too small a total upon which to base satisfactory statistics, there remained but the shadow of evidence that the children of first-cousin marriages possess a slightly lowered vitality, which under favorable conditions would show no ill effects. This, he says, is in accordance with his father's experiments with inbred plants, which suffer no deterioration when allowed plenty of good soil and room, but perish and become stunted in competition with other plants. Finally, his opinion is that while certain maladies do take hold more easily of first-cousin marriages, the evil has been vastly overrated.

While Mr. Darwin has written an article, Mr. Huth, undeterred by the difficulties which beset marriages with even the wife's sister, has written a book, "Marriage of Near Kin Considered with Respect to the Laws of Nations; the Results of Experience, the Teachings of Biology," with a view directly to legislation. In this gentleman's opinion existing prohibitions are but relics of asceticism. The first part of the work is historical. He quotes Jeremy Taylor, who says the earlier the times the more liberty there was of marriage with kin, and passes in review Egypt, where a man might marry his sister; Persia, where it was honorable to marry his mother; and the Isle of Wight, where a man can marry his niece. Of the general theory that the marriages of blood relatives are injurious, it is his opinion that evils have been hastily accounted for in that way because they could not be satisfactorily explained otherwise. Mr. Huth follows Mr. Darwin's experiments, among plants and the lower animals, but arrives at different conclusions. The benefit of crosses he regards rather as removing inherited diseases—it is negative, not positive. In his view there are no grounds for believing consanguineous marriages injurious, while the tendency of restriction on general grounds is hurtful, and he insists that it is not advisable to extend the prohibition against marriage beyond the third collateral degree and to permit all marriages of affinity except in the direct ascending and descending lines.

—A singular lawsuit is before the Circuit Court of St. Louis County, Mo. John McCarthy shipped 125 head of cattle, worth $5000, from St. Louis to Cincinnati, on the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, the freight contract specifying the time of transit. The train was delayed twenty hours, the price of cattle fell fifty cents per hundred in the interval, and Mr. McCarthy claims a loss of $750, and sues for it.

THURSSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1875.

News and Notes.

The Springfield Republican describes the work of Messrs. Moody and Sankey at Northfield, Mass., where they have begun their revivals, as altogether interesting. Thus far they have only held evening prayer meetings, when three grove meetings were held. The Northfield people are said to be indulging in good-natured remarks over the fine health of the revivalists, and especially the growing corpulency of Mr. Moody. He fats with his work, and is not the slight Mr. Moody they used to know. The curious thing about the local interest in these men is that Northfield is a Unitarian stronghold. Moody's family are all Unitarians, he was educated in this belief, and yet he comes back and they all go over to the little Orthodox church to enjoy his revival ways. The secret of Moody's success is said to be his simplicity. He tells what he knows, and he says "it is all the love of Jesus." He talks ungrammatically, and thus hits the many; but while he is emphatically common, and full of every-day phrases, there is nothing slangy or trifling or out of taste about him. Sankey, too, like his associate, is untutored, perhaps, but natural. He sings what he feels, or because he feels.

He seems to be a heavier man, with light gray Burnside whiskers, firm, square face, and is, as he has himself said, "a red-hot Christian." Messrs. Whittle and Bliss, the other Chicago revivalists, are of a different order. Col. Whittle is a slightly built, dark-haired and well informed man, who uses elegant, expressive English in a clear and convincing way. Mr. Bliss has a deep, rich, cultured bass voice, which gives almost a new interpretation to the words he sings. The four men, with characteristically different methods, ought to meet all the various moods of their audiences.

Reuben Burr, supposed to be the sole survivor of the wreck of the propeller Equinox, was picked up by the schooner Haven, Captain Ross, after floating 31 hours on the pilot-house. He states the following facts: The sea was very rough during all the night preceding the catastrophe, while he was at the wheel at one o'clock Friday morning. An examination of the vessel disclosed that the after bulwarks were stove in. Burr and the mate attempted to stop the leak but their efforts were fruitless, and it was decided to lower the boats. At this time the schooner in tow, the Emma E. Waves, was hailed and asked to come alongside, but either the persons on board did not hear the request or their vessel was unmanageable. At all events the schooner did not respond. Signals were made and lights displayed, but without success. A boat was then lowered from the port side of the propeller and the mate, the owner and watchman and five deck hands, an engineer and two firemen got into it, when the ship went down almost immediately. Burr swam for a long distance side by side with the captain and they finally reached a spar, but afterward got separated. Subsequently Burr caught the pilot house with the second cook, but the latter, after nearly a day, became exhausted, then unconscious and then slipped off. Burr was in a very exhausted condition but is now feeling quite comfortable.

The ostentation and accompanying expense of going into mourning has attracted considerable attention in England to an extent which has led to the formation in fashionable circles of a society designed to keep the custom within reason. It is called the London Mourning Club, and has adopted rules, of which the substance is as follows: Mourning is to be put on only for very near relatives, while children under four years of age are never to be put into black, and over that age only on the death of parents, brothers and sisters. The time of wearing mourning is to be shortened, but left optional. Servants are not to be put into mourning, and complimentary mourning, other than a band on the hat or arm for gentlemen, and a black sash or scarf over one shoulder for ladies, may be allowed. The use of heavy and extensive crape trimming on the skirts of dresses is discouraged, and the use of mourning stationary is held to be not essential. Altogether the rules are very sensible, and will commend themselves as being so to persons familiar with English customs. Those customs make it more a matter of decency than of a fashion that bereaved families should go into the most sombre mourning, and the cases are not exceptional where crape veils, crape trimmings and sombre raiment of various kinds keep the cupboard comparatively bare for extended periods. If the wealthy classes of England can succeed in essentially modifying the custom of wearing mourning, so as to make it less expensive, they will bestow an unmistakable blessing upon their humbler neighbors.

Miss Ellen Lougee is missing from her home in Concord, and is supposed to have been accidentally drowned. The locality mentioned is an eddy in the Merrimac river. On Monday she went out in a boat and rowed down the stream to gather moss. She was last seen standing up in the boat paddling. It is believed she lost her balance, fell overboard and was drowned.

Three Young Girls Attacked by a Deer While Rowing Across A Pond.

Last week three young women, residing near the Big Brink pond, in Shohola township, Pa., started to go berrying. They were obliged to cross the pond to reach the woods. Before entering the boat they saw something in the distance swimming in the water. Thinking it was a dog, they paid no further attention to it, but started on their way across the pond, which is about two miles wide. After rowing for several hundred yards, the girl who was piloting the boat saw that what they first thought to be a dog swimming in the water was a buck, which was coming directly toward them. Having a clumsy pair of oars, it was some time before the boat could be turned, and then the deer had reached to within a few yards of them.

The girls became greatly terrified, for the deer was fast gaining on them, and from the way it snorted and plunged, they were satisfied it meant mischief. While the one rowed with all her might the other two paddled, thus somewhat increasing their speed; but the deer was slowly gaining on them, and knowing they would not reach the shore before being overtaken, they ceased rowing to prepare for the inevitable battle. When the deer, snorting and plunging, had reached to within a few feet of the boat, it stopped for a moment. Then it made a sudden plunge, and as his head struck the side of the boat the brave girls brought down their raised paddles upon it with such force as to drive it under the water. The girls again raised their only weapons, and as the head rose again to the surface they again brought their paddles to bear upon it with the same result.

When the deer again raised from the water it seemed to realize that this was to be the death struggle, and his eyes gleamed like balls of fire. It made a lunge, and threw its fore feet over the side of the boat, near the oar-locks. This nearly capsized the clumsy craft, and threw Maggie Jordan, the oldest of the three, into the water, but as she fell she caught the edge of the boat and was hauled in by one of her companions. Then the heroine at the oars, as she felt the animal's breath in her face, raised a paddle and struck for her life, and as the blow fell across the deer's head the blood started from its nostrils, and it sank back helpless and seemingly dead, but really only stunned.

The girls then started for the shore, leaving the deer struggling between life and death in the water. Reaching the shore one of the girls ran to a small log cabin an eighth of a mile distance, in which lived a family by the name of Berger, and told what had occurred. Mr. Berger seized his rifle and went to the pond, where he found the wounded deer yet struggling in the water a few rods from the shore. He rowed out to it and seized it by the antlers, cut its throat and then towed the body to the shore. The deer was the largest ever killed in the neighborhood, weighing 227 pounds.

The Great Scandal.

District-Attorney Britton, of Brooklyn, has addressed letters to Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Francis D. Moulton, suggesting that the public interests would be best served by entering a nolle prosequi in the case of Henry Ward Beecher vs Francis D. Moulton, for libel. Mr. Beecher, in reply, concurs in the disposition of the case suggested by the District-Attorney. Mr. Moulton says he cannot acquiesce in the action proposed, and concludes his letter as follows:

I am indicted for libel in charging Rev. Henry Ward Beecher with criminal intercourse with a female member of his congregation. The charge is true. He knows it to be true, and whatever the imperfections of man's tribunals, the Supreme Ruler will some day reveal the truth and vindicate the right. For speaking the truth and nothing but the truth, and that too under a challenge and in defence of my own character of her whose good name is dearer to me than life itself, I have been arraigned as a criminal; compelled like a felon to plead with uplifted hand; subjected to the ignominy of bonds against an escape from justice; loaded with obliquy by the public press; frowned upon and avoided by society; and now, after the indictment against me has served its purpose by discrediting in advance a witness of Rev. Mr. Beecher's guilt, and it is apparent to you as it is to the world that I am innocent and must be acquitted; at this moment, and under these circumstances, I am requested to acquiesce in a "nolle prosqui," and to suffer my accuser to escape the penalty of his perjured prosecution. Never, sir; never! I demand a trial, and shall be ready on any reasonable notice to make good my defence. Very respectfully,

FRANCIS D. MOULTON.

Novel Scene in a Police Court.

[London Cor. Cincinnati Commercial.]

A rather naive old character turned up here the other day in a quarter where such an one might least have been looked for, namely, on the magisterial bench in a London parish. The case brought before him was of such a peculiar character, and connected the name of one of our most distinguished art collectors with such a droll affair, that I have persuaded the newspapers to suppress particulars (a proceeding which I fancy he would have found less easy in Cincinnati.) Our connoisseur in works of vertu, antiquarian art, and so forth, has no prurient tastes, but with a purely scholastic interest, has gathered an important phallic collection from all parts of the world. Objects in old ivory, bronze, alabaster, representing things which, since the exhibition of the god Priapus, have been rigorously suppressed by the police, had been drawn away from eyes which had no right to look upon them, and put into a room kept sacred to the masters of museums, the antiquarian adepts, the student of mythology. But gradually the owner of this singular collection—the only phallic collection in the world probably—missed some of the choicest specimens from it. The little images were passing away one by one.

The thief was discovered to be a young man whom the collector had employed for years as his secretary, and whom he and his wife had gradually come to regard as a friend. Highly indignant at finding he had nursed a serpent in his bosom, the philosopher resolved to have the thief committed. But now a question arose. It was found that it would be necessary for the stolen articles, which were all found in the secretary's lodgings, to be produced in court, and they were tres prononces. However, the antiquarian had collected them with no base purpose, and he would not be dissuaded or frightened from prosecuting the thief of his treasures.

On the morning for which the case was set down the police court happened to be very full, although not a half a dozen present had the least interest in this matter or had heard of it. When it was called, and the secretary was placed at the bar, a little covered basket was brought in and laid on the clerk's table before the Judge. The secretary had engaged a sharp local Buzfuz to do the best for him. After the charge had been explained by the prosecutor, the counsel for the prisoner demanded that the articles alleged to have been stolen should be produced. The prosecutor tried to avoid this, saying that they were in the basket, but were of a peculiar character, and might better be examined by his lordship privately. Whereupon Buzfuz affected the severe and the virtuous, and wanted to know whether the plaintiff came there with a charge which shrank from the daylight, and so forth.

In response the phallic images were drawn out of the basket, the appearance of each exciting a renewed burst of laughter, until at last, when they all stood in a row on the table—Japanese, Hindoo, Greek figures, wrought in sincerity, to be mocked in a room full of motley Englishmen and women—there was a continuous roar for a minute. The antiquarian looked red, Buzfuz and his client triumphant. Buzfuz arose with paterfamilias in every feature—saddened Morality, Virtue veiling her face, and all that, were personated in his eye, his nose his mouth, and rigid righteousness thundered from his tongue. He, Buzfuz, didn't wonder at the reluctance which the plaintiff had shown to exhibit these objects in the presence of his Worship. The plaintiff charging his fellow man—nay, a friend—with crime, was himself a criminal within Lord Campbell's act against licentious works of art, etc. The prisoner had only wished to examine these things at home—in the privacy which his moral feeling told him was requisite for such objects—and would have returned them. Buzfuz here took up an ivory man (Japanese,) and gesticulated with it. "Do you," he said, glaring at the defendant, "do you deny that he is your friend, and might take the simple liberties of friendship? Has he not sat at your table by the side of your wife?"

Here the antiquarian arose and said: "Please, your Worship, if the lawyer now talking will only tell me whether the questions he is asking me refer to the prisoner or to that precious Japanese specimen which he is flourishing—and I fear every moment will break—I will answer him." This turned the laugh on Buzfuz, who began to look red, and puzzled to find from our antiquarian's quiet tone that he was by no means overwhelmed.

When the collector was called into the witness box it became very clear first that it was a mean theft, and secondly that he was a gentleman entering upon a prosecution embarrassing to himself, in the interest of the public. At the close of the testimony he showed himself an artist in one sense, at least. He begged permission of the venerable magistrate—who had put on his spectacles and scrutinized each mysterious figure with care—to speak a few words, and having received it he said: "May it please your Worship, I know very well that the objects produced in court, and many hundreds of others in my possession, would appear to the vulgar eye mere vulgarities; and indeed to the majority of ordinary unlearned people they would simply seem to be a collection of indecent figures; but, sir, it is our happiness in this metropolis of civilization and science, that even in our police courts we may be sure there will be some eyes—if only two—which are neither vulgar nor ordinary. I have already assurance that your Lordship is able to detect classic purity from modern obscenity; that your Lordship is perfectly aware that the relics and symbols of phallic religion among all races are subjects of the profoundest interest to men of science; and that you will readily understand me when I say that the collection I have made is unique, and to various scholars in this country is invaluable."

In vain after this did old Buzfuz remind the magistrate of how the other day he had sent a man to prison for selling obscene photographs. The venerable magistrate raised his clear gray eyes above his spectacles, and said that he could not class an individual trying to corrupt the community for gain with a man who was devoting his gains to the pursuit of learning. He considered the [illegible] indeed, but a collection of such might be of great importance to ethnology or to philosophical studies. He sent the prisoner to jail, and hoped that it would be a lesson to those who were too often tempted to rob antiquarian and literary men through the trustfulness of their disposition and their absorption in intellectual pursuits.

—A well-known clergyman was crossing Lake Erie, many years ago, upon one of the lake steamers, and seeing a small lad at the wheel, steering the boat, accosted him as follows:

"My son, you appear to be a small boy to steer so large a boat."

"Yes, sir; but you see that I can do it, though."

"Do you think you understand your business, my son?"

"Yes, sir, I think I do."

"Can you box the compass?"

"Yes, sir."

"Let me hear you box it."

Boy boxes the compass.

"Well, really, you can do it! Let me hear you box it backward."

Boy boxes it backward.

"I declare, my son, you do seem to understand your business."

The boy now took his turn question-asking.

"Pray, sir, what may be your business!"

"I am a minister of the Gospel."

"Do you understand your business?"

"I think I do, my son."

"Can you say the Lord's Prayer?"

"Yes."

"Say it."

Clergyman repeats the Lord's Prayer.

"Well, really, you do know it! Now say it backward."

Clergyman says he cannot do it.

"You can't do it, eh? Now, you see, I understand my business a great deal better than you do yours."

Clergyman acknowledged himself beaten, and retired.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

In Farmer and Moore's Gazette of New Hampshire, published in 1823, it is said that Dea. John Harriman of Plaistow, is said to have been the first man to embrace Baptist sentiments in this State. Plaistow adjoins Newton, and the first Baptist church in New Hampshire was constituted in Newton in 1755. Very likely Dea. Harriman's religious associations were with the Newton church. But a descendant of this Deacon Harriman assures us his name was not John but Joseph. He died in 1820, aged 97. He was the grandfather of Revs. John and David Harriman, both formerly well known in this section of country.

The first minister of Newton church, (the town was then called Newtown,) was Rev. Walter Powers, and probably he organized it. All the account of him we have is his connection with this church, which did not continue long. Rev. Walter Powers settled over the Baptist church in Gilmanton in 1784, and died there in 1826 was his son.

Four years after the Baptist church was constituted, contention sprang up. As things then were, the Congregationalists were considered the regular order, others but little better than heretics. The Baptists refused to pay a tax for the support of the Congregational minister. Suits at law were commenced against them, but finally the town voted to pay the costs on them, and requested the "Great and General Court to settle the affair and find if the Baptists are exempt by law from the support of the Congregational minister." We have no record of the result of this.

Later the town voted to pay A. Ferven 5£ 1s 9p 2d due his honored father, Capt. J. Ferven, which he did not receive in his life time, It is thought this was expense in a suit against said Ferven for not paying the ministerial tax.

The Baptists erected a house of worship in the South part of the town, but it was some years before it was finished. A minister named Whelock preached after Mr. Powers. Next was Rev. Mr. Haney. In 1767 at a society meeting, John Wadleigh, Moderator, and Joseph Welsh, clerk, "Voted 50 £ to Rev. Mr. Haney in such things as he needs to live on." Andrew Whittier and Joseph Welsh were chosen to see what each man's part shall be; that they take the Province rate as a guide and make it as light as it can be, abate the poor, and if any refuse to pay, no help shall be offered them to clear them of rates elsewhere. The same year 75 persons entered into a written agreement to support the ministry. They say, having studied the Scriptures they believe the usages of the Anti Pedo Baptists agreeable thereto.

Lawsuits still existed, and some expense. In 1782 there were some additions to the church, but there is no record of who the minister was.

Early in 1795 Rev. John Peak moved to town and became the preacher. Things were in such a scattered condition he found it necessary to reconstruct the church. Eighteen renewed covenant, and such was the prosperity that four years later, the number in the church was 75. Mr. Peak continued eight years. But in the time commotion came from a quarter unexpected. Sectarian feelings were stronger then than now. In 1801 a member invited a Methodist minister to preach a Sabbath. He continued several. Mr. Peak preaching where he could get places. It was then arranged that the Methodists have the house of worship nineteen Sabbath in the year.

Mr. Peak left town. After a year he came back and found that the Methodists had no supply during his absence. He supplied awhile longer. Next Rev. Samuel Ambrose, and next Rev. Otis Robinson. In 1809 David Tukesbury of this church was licensed, and in 1811 ordained. Sixty-four years have passed since, with a somewhat long list of pastors. The church has not been one of the strong ones, but it has been vigorous and useful. So may it long be.

—A correspondent of the Sacramento Record-Union thus tells how the Mormons vote: "All the Mormon women vote, but very few understand why, for the Mormon dare not vote against the Mormon ticket, and hence all freedom of franchise is blotted out. It is a fact that many Mormons have been cut off from the Church for voting the Gentile ticket. Every ticket is numbered, and the voter's name bears the same number, which effectually reveals just how he votes. When the polls close the ballots are not counted by the inspectors of elections, but are sent sealed to the Probate Judge, who, with the County Clerk, counts them at his leisure, and in some weeks announces the result. Of course, under such a system, the Church can always win. A gentleman who saw it tells me that a few years ago, at Parowan, he saw John D. Lee cast 350 votes, standing at the polls over an hour to do it. He voted for all his wives, his sixty-four children, his 100 grand-children (124 now) and all his known and possible relations. Another man last year voted the ballots of his three wives and six children, and for two then unborn, but soon expected."

—The Detroit Press says that a woman went out to make a call on a neighbor, just at dusk, and finding a lonesome-looking boy on the steps, she asked:

"Where's your mother, bub?"

"Oh, she's gadded out somewhere."

"Where's your sister?"

"Gone off on the excursion."

"Isn't your father at home?"

"Haven't seen him for two days."

"Well, what's become of the baby?" asked the woman as she turned to go.

"The baby? Why, some boys took him down on Lewis street to see a dead cat."

"And why don't you go somewhere?" asked the lady, as she shut the gate.

"I am going—waiting now to go with my girl down Michigan avenue to buy some onions and four cents' worth of cherries."

Local Matters.

A Good Sign.

The new symbolic sign of the "Mechanics Association—Reading Room," which has just been raised on the front of their fine block on Congress and Fleet streets, is pronounced by all an artistic and unique piece of work. Each letter represents one or more mechanical tools or manufactured articles, as for instance, one A is formed of a pair of compasses opened to the fitting width and standing on the points; another A of a razor open, with a pair of scissors crossing it; one S of a wrench of that shape, and others of a combination of tools; one C of a horse-shoe, another of a pair of callipers, and a third of a sectional cog-wheel; one O of a circular chain, denoting the brotherhood of the staunch old institution which the sign so fittingly represents; another of a circular saw; another of two bevels; one I of a spirit-level standing on end, another of a chisel, and a third of a paint-brush; a T of an auger, and so on—the period at the end being a small clock, showing that time is up with that reading, and soon must be with all readers. This handsome specimen of painter's art, is from the establishment of Mr. Edward D. Coffin, a member of the Association, and was designed mainly by him and President Miller of the Association.

The Grangers.

New Hampshire has upwards of fifty Granges with membership of about three thousand gentlemen and ladies, and the new Order is steadily on the increase here, as nearly everywhere else in this country. Some jealous tradesmen and others at first appeared to regard the Granges as merely a sort of co-operative purchase and sale bureaus, but the institution, it is said has no connection with trading except incidentally; and now from the frequent social gatherings of the Order, it is not unlikely to come to be highest esteemed for this feature.

It is but about three years since the first Granges were established in this State and last Fall it was decided by the five Granges in Rockingham County to hold an annual union and picnic festival of these Granges and their friends. The first was held at Dover Point, but the Order generally did not seem to appreciate a clam-bake, though excellent; and this year the gathering was arranged for at Boar's Head hotel—and well arranged, as the result proved, mainly by Mr. C. B. Mason, Master of Portsmouth Grange, who with J. J. Gilman of Exeter and W. G. Brown of Stratham were appointed committee of arrangements for the county. All Grangers and farmers in the county, and their friends generally, were invited; and a highly respectable and cheerful party of five or six hundred gathered under mine host Dumas hospitable roof and shady tent, and such a string of carriages has not been seen about here for many a day.

An excellent clam chowder and also fish chowder, with cake and dessert furnished by the lady grangers, was bountifully served in the hotel for "the six hundred," who made, if they did not suffer, great slaughter; after which Mr. Gilman, of the committee of arrangements, invited the company to gather in and around a large tent near the house, and introduced Hon. John D. Lyman, of Exeter, W. Master of Gilman Grange, as chairman,—who in his usual pleasant manner, called upon the following gentlemen for brief remarks, nearly all of whom responded pertinently and very acceptably; Gen. Natt Head, Master of Hooksett Grange; Hon. Jas. O. Adams of Manchester, Sec. of the N. H. Board of Agriculture; Gen. Sutton, of Salem, a great farmer, as well as prince of good fellows, who was here with half a hundred of his Salem Cadets; John F. French, of North Hampton, one of the best farmers, and best practical speakers also, in this or any other county; Frank W. Miller of Portsmouth, W. Overseer of Portsmouth Grange; Wm. M. Hunnewell, W. Lecturer of Exeter Grange; J. Frank Lawrence of Dover; Col. Peter Sanborn, of Concord and Hampton, and also pleasant and jolly in either; N. P. Cram, Esq., of Hampton Falls; D. H. Spinney and C. H. Hayes of Portsmouth Grange; also Mr. C. B. Mason, W. M. of this Grange; Hon. Warren Brown of Hampton Falls; C. H. DeRochemont, Esq., of Kingston, who did much effective work for the festival in his vicinity, and has long labored well for the good of the Order; and perhaps others whose names our reporter did not get.

The music for the day was furnished by the new Portsmouth Cornet Band, and was highly enjoyed by the large company who gladly listened to it.

The lovers of dancing had full opportunity in the tent in the afternoon, and in the hotel parlors in the evening; and the party—after voting thanks to the committee, especially to Mr. Mason and Mr. Dumas, for their very liberal and successful arrangements; to the Band, the ladies, and all concerned, adjourned to meet at the same time and place next year.

Jottings.

Rev. Mr. DeCormis will officiate at the St. John's Church on Sunday.

A shrewd tramp succeed in obtaining from Rev. Mr. Lowell and several church members of Danville one dollar each, by representing himself as a member in good standing in Rev. Lot M. Harmon's church in this city. He was one of those fellows who could prey as well as preach.

We are requested to state that those holding cards of invitatton to the picnic at Newcastle to-day, are desired to meet at one o'clock on Market Square where they will find teams in waiting to convey them to the Wentworth. Tickets 35 cents, for the round trip.

Mr. Enoch Jones, the faithful and skillful city teamster, came near being run over while turning a corner with Dearborn steamer at the alarm of fire on Tuesday evening. He was thrown from his seat and immediately under the horses in front of the wheels of the heavy engine, when, with wonderful presence of mind and quickness of movement he was seized by the engineer and fireman, Geo. N. Jones and Henry Smart and snatched from danger and probable death.

One of the most useful and convenient hand-books for the teachers of our high schools is that entitled "Politics for Young Americans," written by Hon. Charles Nordhoff, whose name as a brilliant writer and thinker is a sufficient guarantee of the soundness and thoroughness of the work. It is designed as an aid to teachers in elucidating those every day questions upon political economy that arise in the mind of the youth, and which the majority of parents are unable to answer. For sale by Harper & Brothers, New York.

—While the revenue cutter Perry was lying at Detroit, last week, her officers were busily engaged in boarding vessels and inspecting their papers. One of the lieutenants spied a strange looking craft lying out in the river which aroused his suspicions. He felt pretty certain that she was a smuggler, and ordered his boat to pull alongside of her. When within a few feet he stood up to get a view of the interior, and just then he heard a chorus of screams, and plunge after plunge into the water. It took the gallant officer but a few seconds to ascertain that he had encountered a ladies' bathing establishment, when he put his helm hard a' starboard and blushingly retired. It is presumed that her papers were all right, for no report was made of any violation of law.

—Hans Christian Andersen left the bulk of his property to the Collin family, in recognition of aid extended to him when a poor boy by one of its members.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Comissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The fatigue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alteratives which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.
Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz: a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Cure for Diphtheria.

The following is from "Hall's Journal of Health," an old and reputable work on Hygiene pubished in New York; Apply pounded ice in cloths to the swollen neck and jaws, feed crumbs to the patient entirely upon new milk. The smelling of the glands of the neck and under the jaw quickly disappear, and the profuse and offensive exudations from the mouth and throat and nostrils cease as by magic, the congestion and engorgement of the part is relieved, the heat is diminished, the pulse is lowered, and the recovery rapid. No attack which we have seen, however malignant, has withstood this treatment twelve hours. Some other conditions should be observed. The feet should be placed in hot baths and the air pure and abundant. It is essential that the ice treatment shall be persistent and unceasing.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they shield and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F L B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

Liver Complaint,
Dyspepsia,
Paralysis,
Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.
T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.
REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.
S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.
T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called "Harmless" remedies, and received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.
MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.
Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.
THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be a special blessing over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.
Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.
THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and my case troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.
Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.
Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills and praise myself. Please send another package by return of mail.
MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do away with the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.
MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I find that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.
MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.
MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.
N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half (but) a package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.
ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—Having given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be seen in that section.
MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken four of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.
A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.
THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.
JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.
MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others.
WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at No. 6 N. E. F. Union Store, Market Street.

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.
The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,
Picturesque Scenery and,
Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,
within five miles of the Hotel, the
BEAUTIFUL BEACHES
at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish
EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain, afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the
FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stoves over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are generally interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,250,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the humid trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE ABSURDITY OF IT.

It is all very well for the poets to tell,
By way of their song adorning,
Of milkmaids who rouse, to manipulate cows,
At five o'clock in the morning.
And of mooney young mowers who bundle out doors—
The charms of their straw-beds scorning—
Before break of day, to make love and hay,
At five o'clock in the morning!

But, between me and you, it is all untrue—
Believe not a word they utter;
To no milkmaid alive does the finger of five
Bring beaux—or even bring butter.
The poor sleepy cows, if told to arouse,
Would do so, perhaps in a horning:
But the sweet country girls, would they show their curls,
At five o'clock in the morning?

It may not be wrong for the man in the song—
Or the moon—if anxious to settle,
To kneel in wet grass, and pop, but alas!
What if he popped down on a nettle?
For how could he see what was under his knee,
If, in spite of my friendly warning,
He went out of bed and his house and his head
At five o'clock in the morning.

It is all very well such stories to tell,
But if I were a maid all-forlorning,
And a lover should drop, in the clover, to pop,
At five o'clock in the morning;
If I liked him, you see, I'd say, "Please call at three;"
If not, I'd turn on him with scorning:
"Don't come here you flat, with conundrums like that
At five o'clock in the morning!"

—"John Paul."

Sheep Raising.

Sheep raising is the best and safest occupation in New Mexico. Any amount of capital, from a few hundred dollars, may be invested in this with an almost certain profit of fifty per cent. The best native ewes, which are small, weighing on an average some thirty-three pounds, and are celebrated as breeders, can be bought for $2 a head, and the bucks for about $1 50, delivered free within a hundred miles of Santa Fe. Thus, with a thousand dollars, a young man, who, we will suppose, has been leading an impoverished, shabby genteel life in a city, may buy a considerable sheep farm. His herd will not appear very imposing, by the side of that of a wealthy Mexican. One opulent native of the territory has a flock numbering at least a quarter of a million. But he would grow in pride, or better, in self-respect and courage as he stood at the door, of his ranch after a day's work and saw visible evidence that he was really doing something in the world.

The lands are public, which fact will vindicate the writer from any unflattering suspicions of the objects that have induced him to write about them, and some speculators with very easy consciences are fast absorbing them by pre-emption. I am told that the law in New Mexico requires the erection of a dwelling with a door and a window and actual residence on the land desired for six months, at the end of which the settler may purchase a pretty large farm at the rate of $1 25 an acre. During a day's march through some of the most beautiful valleys we saw how this generous law is complied with, or, I should say, how it is infringed. For a dwelling an empty log-hut entirely open on one side—this for the door and window—is built, and a few branches are thrown over it for a roof. The "actual residence" consists in an occasional visit by the pre-emptor, whose conscience would not otherwise allow him to swear that he had lived on the land for the prescribed time.

A Neat Point.

"As we walked past a couple of ladies on the street the other day, one of them, so we are informed, observed a large-sized patch on our pants, and made merry over the discovery. Well, we do wear old clothes, is true; but we might afford to treat ourselves to better ones if the husband of the woman we refer to would come to the office and pay us $18, which he has been owing for a long time for subscription and job work."

"Doubtless," said a logical old English clergyman. "God might have made a better berry than the strawberry, but, doubtless, God never did." Doubtless some country editor might make a point more neatly, but, doubtless none ever did! If that little bill of $18 was not settled up within a week after the appearance of his paper, then there is no virtue in pungency. And the occurrence is a recent and a literal one.—St. Louis Republican.

A Disgraceful Scene.

[N. Y. Herald.]

The presence this time of Professor Marsh in Washington has not been without a bit of unpleasantness. He has been stopping at Wormley's, at which place Secretary Delano and his son, John S. Delano, are also guests. The Professor, who is a modest and unobtrusive gentleman, on entering the dining hall, saw the Secretary and his son, and quietly took his seat at the table he had occupied before the return of Mr. Delano from Ohio. Conversation was begun by the Secretary, who was still in doubt if this was "a Mr. Marsh." The inquiry was responded to by the Professor, who, rising, extending his hand and addressing the Secretary, said;

"Good morning, Mr. Delano. It is a pleasant morning."

Returning to his seat after shaking hands with the Secretary, with a smile, asked:

"When are you going to get through investigating me?"

The Professor replied, "I really don't know."

Mr. Delano, continuing, asked, "When are you going to get through assaulting me?"

To which question the professor quietly replied "Probably when you stop attacking me."

This the Secretary indignantly denied in a tone of voice filling the large dining room, and said he had never done anything of the kind, but that the Professor was assaulting him. Mr. Marsh firmly but quietly replied that since the Commission appointed to examine the affairs of the Red Cloud Agency had begun its labors he had not said a word considering the case in their hands, but that the Department of the Interior had kept up a constant attack on him. Then followed a scene such as is very seldom witnessed, even in Washington. Secretary Delano rose, called Prof. Marsh a liar, poltroon, and used similar epithets, while he gesticulated in a manner worthy of a pugilist, repeating the most offensive words several times. He left his seat quivering with rage and menaced the Professor, who was more than surprised at this unexpected exhibition of the Secretary's temper in a public dinin groom. There was however, no reason to fear violence, and, as the Professor had as much right in the room as the Secretary, he concluded not to be intimidated or forced to get his breakfast elsewhere, Mr. Delano returned to his seat, continued to talk in a lower tone of voice and when sufficiently calm Prof. Marsh told him plainly that he would always defend himself, he cared not by whom attacked. This remark seemed to invite another outpouring of Billingsgate, the term "liar" being frequently used, and, in a loud voice, the Secretary said: "You have set Welsh, Walker and other hounds on me." This the Professor denied, and said he would not be insulted by the Secretary of the Interior or any other man; that he had treated Mr. Delano as a gentleman should, which statement the Secretary denied and immediately left the room, saying that the Professor did not know what a gentleman was. It was an unpleasant affair and one which Mr. Delano's friends deeply regret, the Professor having the best of the argument by keeping his temper.

An Old Time Duel.

[Chicago Times.]

In 1856, Thomas C. Reynolds, who is now recognized as one of the leading lawyers of the State, and who was at the last election a prominent candidate for the United States Senatorship, led the democratic party of St. Louis. Reynolds, as the leader of the anti-Benton party, had been forced to accept the nomination for Congress and make the race against Frank P. Blair, the Benton candidate. McKee and Fishback were then running the Democrat as the Free Soil organ, and B. Gratz Brown was the editor. Blair held an interest in the paper, and naturally it espoused his cause. As the canvass progressed toward the end, Brown wrote an editorial, mercilessly caustic and personal, reflecting upon Reynolds. The latter replied in brief but pointed card. Brown promptly challenged, and Reynolds as promptly accepted.

Brown chose as one of his seconds Leo Walker, a high-spirited South Carolinian, who had married into a wealthy family here, and was then a resident of St. Louis. His other friend was Col. David D. Mitchell, once Superintendent of Indian affairs, and well known as an Indian and plain fighter. But besides these there clustered about Brown, as the party's champion, Thomas H. Benton, Frank P. Blair and all their powerful coterie.

Reynolds' seconds were Col. Fred Kennett, the best pistol shot in Missouri, who lived in lordly style at Selma Hall, and Capt. Thomas P. Hudson, a democratic politician, who figured famously in the Doniphan expedition to Mexico. Forty miles below St. Louis, and on high river bluffs, is Selma Hall, built of stone, and much after the style of the German baronial castles which look down on the Rhine. On the 23d of August the parties left St. Louis. Reynolds passed the night before leaving St. Louis at the residence of Isaac H. Sturgeon, and he slept so late and so soundly that he had to be called loudly in the morning. With his surgeon, Dr. J. H. Shore, and his friends Kennett and Hudson, Reynolds went over the river and journeyed leisurely down the Illinois side.

There was no haste; everything was done calmly and deliberately. Reynolds remained on the Illinois side until Monday evening, the 25th of August, and then crossed over to Selma and became the guest for the night of G. W. Chadbourne, now the President of the St. Louis Shot Tower Company, who had a country seat at that time just above Kennett's place. Brown and his friends had been made the guests of Kennett, Reynolds' second, as courtesy was construed to require. Kennett believed in the code, and was as full of romance as a school girl. He had looked after all the minutest details. On the morning of Tuesday, the 26th of August, the men were to meet, and the place of meeting was a sand bar midway between Illinois and Missouri. Before daybreak the parties started for the bar in cushioned skiffs propelled by negro rowers.

The time was just before sunrise, and as Kennett looked up and down the river over the magnificent view of bluff and wood and water, taking in the scene with his ardent, sensuous nature, he turned to Mitchell, the bluff old Indian fighter, and said abruptly, after a sweeping glance of the country:

"It is beautiful. Would you like to be shot to-day?"

"As well one day as another. Why?" was the curt answer.

"It looks like tempting Providence such a day as this," said Kennett with another glance at the gorgeous scene.

"It may be, but Providence is with him who shoots first and pulls the steadiest trigger," and then there was silence until the boats grated on the sand bar. The principals stepped out jauntily, and stood aside while the ground was selected and measured. Reynolds was 35, of medium height, and squarely built, without extra flesh. He has grown stout and grizzled since then. He was a South Carolinian, and wore the favorite light gray of the South. Brown was only thirty, a native of Kentucky, sandy haired, and of strong nervous temperament. He wore on this morning a full suit of black, buttoned to the chin.

They were to fight with the regulation dueling pistols, those long-barrelled ominous-looking weapons, with the single word "London" sunk in the iron—weapons but seldom seen now. The stocks were of mahogany, not polished, and rounded and liable to slip in a perspiring hand, but shaped as square as a saw handle. They carried ounce balls, had hair triggers and double sights, and in trained hands meant death four times out of five. The men were to fight face to face, twelve paces apart. The drop shot had been chosen. The pistols were to be held muzzle upward the word was given, and then lowered and fired.

The distance was measured, and Kennett flung up the silver half dollar and won the choice of position. He tossed again, and won the word. He was to call out "Fire—one—two—three—stop." The principals were not to lower their pistols before the word "fire," and not to shoot after the word "stop." The pistols were loaded and the men took their places, Brown with the half sarcastic smile which he always wore. The surgeons noiselessly opened their cases and each looked at his man. Kennett called out:

"Gentlemen, are you ready?"

"Ready," was the reply in the same breath.

Then from Kennett came the deliberate "Fire—one—"

At the first monosyllable Reynolds had lowered his weapon and, while the second word was on Kennett's lips, fired, Brown following the movement so close that the two sounds were hardly distinguishable.

Reynolds stood like a statue, the smoke curling up from the pistol's mouth. Brown staggered, shifted from one leg to the other, while the lines of his face straightened. Hudson stepped up to Reynolds and said: "Brown is wounded in the groin."

"You are mistaken," was Reynolds' reply. "I aimed at his knee."

So it was; the heavy ball had split the bone of the right leg just below the knee, and a pool of blood was widening out about Brown's feet. Nevertheless the Kentuckian stood his ground with compressed lips and demanded another fire. The surgeons examined the wound and forbade it. There was a brief consultation between seconds, and Reynolds walked over to Brown, who had been forced to the ground by the pain, and offered his hand. It was taken, explanations followed, and all was smoothed away just as the steamer Editor—appropriate name—came puffing up the river. The hail was answered, and the whole party taken on board. Brown was carried in a blanket, and it was months before he left off his crutches. Even to-day a perceptible limp tells of the severity of the wound.

Kennett says that Brown's bullet glanced by Reynold's breast, and had not the latter fired so rapidly as he did—affecting his antagonist's aim—he must have received the ball squarely in the chest. Both were splendid shots.

—A frightful tragedy resulting from the careless use of firearms was enacted in Detroit, recently. A party was given at the residence of Mr. Nelson Whipple in honor of his daughter's birthday, and the handsome house had been thrown open to receive the young ladies and misses who came as invited guests. The festivities of the evening were at their height, when the loud report of a gun and piercing shrieks were heard to proceed from the cloak-room at the head of the stairs. The startled guests rushed to the stairway, led by Mr. Whipple, who reached the landing just in time to receive the body of Miss Amsden, a lovely young girl, 17 years of age, who was sinking to the floor in a dying condition, her life-blood pouring from a ghastly wound in the head. In a very few seconds after the report of the gun she breathed her last. It appears that while the others of the party were amusing themselves below, Miss. Amsden, together with several other young ladies, had entered the cloak-room. A few minutes afterward Blanchard Whipple, a young lad, came up for a pillow to be used in a children's game, and playfully commanded the girls to run down stairs and play "pillow." Miss Amsden in a sportive mood snatched the pillow from his hands and refused to give it back. Young Blanchard then brought out a shot-gun from a clothespress, and, pointing it at her in a mock tragic manner, repeated his demand that she should give up the pillow, when the weapon was in some manner discharged. The spectacle was a terrible one, and in the brilliantly-lighted house, crowded with the young girls in their white dresses, who had the moment before been so mirthful and joyous, the presence of death in such a form seemed doubly solemn.

—Lovers of pure champagne will be gratified to learn that among the cases decided by the Court of Appeal at Paris at its late session was one which guarantees buyers, not only from the great house concerned, but by analogy from other reporters, against the risk of fraudulent trademarks covered by similarity of name. It seems that a certain M. Moet, of Maestricht, in Holland, came three years since to Rheims, and entered into partnership with one Leblan, a brewer of that city, the two becoming wine merchants, trading as Moet & Co. Their office attracted so much custom that last year Moet & Chandon, the famous growers, proceeded against them for the assumption of a colorsable title before the local court. They were cast in £1000 damages, forbidden to carry on the business, and ordered to pay all costs, including the expense of advertising the judgment in any twenty French and twenty foreign journals selected by the plaintiffs. It was against this severe decree that the soi-disant firm of Moet & Co. appealed to the Paris Court. The result, however, had been most unfavorable to their contention, which was in the main that M. Moet, of Maestricht, could not be deprived of the right to use his own name where and how he pleased. The judgment of the Court below has been reaffirmed in every particular; but the appeal tribunal has exercised its legal discretion by increasing the damages awarded by £400 more, as an additional compensation to Moet & Chandon for the fact that the illicit business has been carried on during the interim. Of course, it is now brought to an abrupt close, and the only Moet champagne in the market will be from Moet's own cellars.

—A correspondent who lately visited Edwin Booth at his Summer residence in Cos Cob reports the tragedian as but slowly recovering from his recent carriage accident. It is over four weeks since Mr. Booth received his injuries and he is only just out of bed. Notwithstanding this slow recovery, however, he is in hopes to be able to fill his engagements this Fall, beginning in New York in October. Recurring to the accident to himself, he said: "Some years ago, while playing in the South, I was stabbed in the hand by an actor playing with me. The play was 'The Apostate.' He was the hero, and I the villain, and in the last act he was to take a dagger from my hand, with which I was about to kill his lady love, and kill me. He was a very powerful young fellow, which was unfortunate for me, for he became so excited by the action of the play that when he grabbed the dagger he held my hand. I tried to throw it up, but he held it against my breast and then stabbed it twice. He did not know anything about it, nor did I, until the curtain fell and I found my hand covered with blood. If my hand had not been in the way he would have stabbed me in the breast. I played the next night, and then erysipelas set in, and I had a bad time with it. But, with that exception, I have not been seriously injured before this last accident. I have been thrown out of wagons, over horses' heads, fallen through a trap on the stage twice, walked out of a second-story door in an unfinished house, and come out all right each time. I think if it had not been for that post, I'd have escaped this time. I shall try and get Mr. Daly to delay the commencement of my engagement two or three weeks."

—Lord Houghton (Monckton Milnes) has reached St. Louis, and given himself over to be interviewed and described, the last to the effect that he is rather stout built, with a rubicund face, underlined with gray whiskers, and apparently between 60 and 70 years of age. His appearance is rather that of a sturdy farmer on a trip with a load of grain for sale than a peer of the British realm. He reached St. Louis at the time that Jefferson Davis was in the place, and remarked of him that he met Mr. Davis in London, where he made on Lord Houghton the impression of a gentleman of fine manners and cultivation. On the day following his arrival he visited 'Change, and was introduced to a number of prominent merchants. His lordship took much interest in the way affairs were conducted on 'Change, and was particularly interested in the way the call board is conducted. After the close of the operations President Rowland introduced the distinguished visitor to the Exchange in a body, and he in turn made them a pretty little speech, expressing himself as being somewhat astonished that such a reception should have been given him, especially when he considered that he had come among the people in an unofficial capacity, having no claims upon them, except that he looked upon Americans in the light of fellow-countrymen. He talks rapidly, yet utters his words with great precision and with but little of the accent peculiar to Englishmen. He asks a great many questions about the country, climate, soil, people, places, etc., and stows away in his mind the information received with evident satisfaction. He was handsomely entertained by Gen. Sherman during his stay.

—Charles Warren Stoddard writes from Italy of one of the most celebrated women of that country, Regina Del Cin, whose marvellous success in the setting of dislocations of long standing have made her famous even beyond the sea. You can read of her in the standard works on surgery. This uncultured woman, born with an instinctive knowledge of anatomy, lives in a handsome villa about twelve miles distant. She is sought by people from all parts of the world, and, though she sometimes attempts to straighten limbs that have been distorted from birth and to correct the blunders of unskilful professionals, her speciality is the setting of hip dislocation, and in this line she is without a living rival. She is a very plain woman of 40 or more; short, stout, untidily dressed, and there is nothing attractive in her personal appearance. Two of her front teeth were gone, when Mr. Stoddard visited her, her hair was rolled into a small wad at the top of her head, long ear-drops dangled upon her shoulders, and about her neck she wore a massive gold chain. She was born with the genius for bone-setting, which she is continually exercising, uses the simplest possible remedies, and in all bases performs her operations without giving any pain whatever. In the hall were to be seen a heap of crutches, braces and straps, iron stilts and other aids such as cripples are forced to seek. These were left at the villa by sufferers who had found relief under her roof, and many of them bore inscriptions in token of gratitude and as testimony to her skill. It is her custom to ask no fee for her services. You pay according to your means, and she says at once whether she will or not attempt a cure.

—The tramp nuisance is becoming rampant again in Rhode Island, the latest instance being one of the most daring outrages that has lately occurred in this State. The farmhouse of Daniel Lalor, of Lonsdale, was visited on Sunday night by four tramps, who approached in the boldest manner, aroused Lalor and demanded something to eat. Startled at this daring intrusion and demand, Lalor got up, but refused to give the desired refreshments. The party fully intent upon carrying out their villanous designs, and enraged at the refusal, at once commenced an attack upon the house with stones and other missiles, smashing the door and windows and threatening murder at every crash. The inmates, of course, were greatly frightened, but not having any weapons at hand they were unable to repel the ruffianly intruders. Entrance was speedily gained by the latter, and, thinking to pacify and satisfy the party, Lalor, gave them some bread, but after satisfying their appetites the bloodthirsty wretches made a murderous assault upon Lalor, striking him with some blunt missile and cutting him with a knife. In this manner they felled the man senseless on the floor, and then sacked the house in the most outrageous manner. The defenceless wife and children of Lalor remonstrated with the ruffians, but their cries had little effect. The ruffians demanded of the wife to procure some water to wash out her husband's blood, and because she refused, one of the gang savagely sezied a chair, and lifting it over the heads of the mother and her little ones, threatened to kill them on the spot unless they would accede to their demands. Horrified at the ghastly spectacle presented by her bleeding husband, and fearing the murderous threats, the wife begged for mercy, and the villains fled. They were speedily captured, however, and now await punishment in jail.

—The trial of Westervelt, charged with being accessory to the abduction of Charley Ross, has brought out in bold relief some of the peculiar phases of criminal life. Although Mosher and Westervelt appear to have been constantly engaged in gathering in booty from the houses which they plundered, they were both miserably poor, but in spite of their poverty and their crimes their wives speak of them with tenderness. Even in the homes of thieves and burglars and kidnappers there appears to be such a thing as conjugal constancy. Mosher married a very young girl without the consent of her parents, and in her frequent interviews with newspaper reports his widow has never intimated that she repented of her folly. On the contrary, there is some reason to believe that her devotion to her late husband has to some extent corrupted her own nature, and it seems probable that she knows more about the fate of poor little Charley Ross than she is willing to tell. Mrs. Westervelt was married at the age of 16, and is still a very young woman. The family, which consisted of Westervelt, his wife and two children, occupied a couple of rooms in a tenement house, for which they paid $7 per month. On the witness stand Mrs. Westervelt attempted to show that her husband could not have been seen with Charley Ross on certain days specified by the witnesses for the prosecution by citing an incident that oftens occurs in poverty-stricken homes. The time for paying the rent was approaching, and they had no money. On the 29th of June her husband told her to take a breast pin to the pawnbroker's and get enough of money to pay the rent, but a small watch had to be added before the $7 was raised. Of this the landlord only got $5, Westervelt keeping the other $2 to take him to a picnic on the 4th of July. By such incidents as these, that show the extreme poverty in which they live, Mrs. Westervelt accounts for her husband's whereabouts every day from June 26 to July 6. The last-named day was her birthday; her husband did not get up until noon; after dinner he took a pillow and an old blanket and laid down in the hall; as he passed her he said: "This is your birthday, and I will give you twenty-seven slaps." This alibi may not be regarded as satisfactory by the jury, but it shows that Mrs. Westervelt is a devoted wife, and that if her husband was associated with Mosher in his crimes he got a very small share of the booty.

The Barre Bank Robber.

The desperate set of bank burglars who have their headquarters in New York, are making a grand effort to prevent the taking of George E. Miles to Vermont to stand his trial for the Barre Bank robbery. The habeas corpus sued out by Miles attracted an unusual throng to the Supreme Court Chambers, Tuesday. There were not less than twenty-five professional gamblers waiting at the door for the appearonce of Miles, and when he entered the court room his old friends and fellow-sporting men gave him the wink of recognition. There were also many Vermont officials—among them the State Auditor, who is virtually the Attorney-General of the State, the State Attorney, Gov. Dillingham's private secretary, Sheriff Bailey, detectives Wood and Wiggins, and Mr. Charles A. King, the cashier of the Barre Bank—in the court room. The Vermont officials are terribly in earnest in their desire to punish Miles, and will spare no expense to that end. When they learned that William A. Beach had been retained by the prisoner, they consulted in consternation upon the propriety of retaining either Judge Fullerton or William M. Evarts as opposing counsel. They did not take that step however, but left the management of their case to District Attorney Phelps and the Vermont State Attorney. Mr. Beach first showed his hand in a request to have the hearing continued, so that Judge Donohue might complete the work commenced before him. Judge Brady, however, could see no impropriety in going into the case at once, and this decision brought out what will be a strong point in the defence. The requisition of Gov. Dillingham calls for the body of George Miles. The defence traverse the writ with the prisoner's oath that he is not George Miles, but George E. Miles. This raises the question of identity, the settlement of which threatens to demand the production of nearly all the testimony upon which the prosecution rely for the conviction of Miles if they get him back to Vermont. The importance to the prisoner of this double trial is obvious. Judge Brady directed counsel to proceed at once to take the identification testimony before a referee. Wm. P. Dillingham, of Waterbury, Vt., State Attorney for Washington county, was examined touching the identity of George Miles.

The "line storm" is now in order.

The Aqueduct Co. is plowing through State street at a rapid rate, leaving a splendid water main that will be duly appreciated by those citizens who are supplied with water from this source.

They are talking of gas on South street, the other side of South Mill Bridge. The pipes have never yet extended below the foot of Pleasant street.

A new school room is to be fitted up at once in the ward room of Ward six. The modern school desk with folding chair will be used, sixty having been ordered.

The Dover temperance reformers are not meeting with the success they anticipated in Portsmouth. The leaders in the revival movement, Messrs. Hurd and Loyne, mourn over the fact and all good men unite with them. But it must be remembered that we must have the bitter with the sweet, while we console ourselves with the reflection that if we are cursed with rum, we are blessed (?) with a good democratic city government.

The Times said that on Thursday morning Mr. Johnson, one of the workmen employed on the new reservoir building by the city between Union and Madison streets, discovered that the southerly wall of the structure was sinking. He at once jumped off, and the wall sank in the centre about two feet and bulged in the same distance. The wall remained in a cracked condition and will be removed as soon as another derrick can be procured. The cause of the disaster is said to be the treacherous quicksand beneath the clay upon which the foundation was laid. The land is full of springs from whence flows the water expected to fill the reservoir, and perhaps piling may be needed for a new foundation. It will add to the cost of the reservoir to rebuild this wall, while the other walls seem to be intact. The work has been suspended by reason of non-receipt of stone. No person was injured.

One of the most, if not the most incorrigible youngsters in the city is Jere. Murphy, Jr. He is not ten years of age, and yet has succeeded in making himself a terror to every female teacher who has had an introduction to him. On one occasion he kicked and bit a teacher who attempted to punish him; at another time, he refused to obey a command to come forth and be feruled, and so the lady teacher went for him; but young Jerry although in the second story, ran for the window and was about to leap a distance of nearly twenty feet to the ground below, and was with the greatest difficulty restrained by his too kind-hearted instructress; and a day or two ago he added lustre to his name by rolling on the school house floor and shouting "murder," at the top of his voice, while a member of the school committee was enforcing upon him the results of truancy. He seems to be a ripe candidate for the Reform School.

"A Short History of the English People," is the title of a fascinating work on England embracing a period from the early days of the Saxons and Jutes in the fifth century down to the present time. The volume has two particular merits; it is concisely written, and its style is inviting and exceedingly interesting. It is impossible to do justice to the merits of the work in a newspaper paragraph, but we cordially recommend it to our reading public, especially to teachers, who will find it an excellent resource whereby they can inform themselves upon historical matters pertaining to the English people. Published by Harper & Brothers, New York.

News and Notes.

Charles Dickens, Wilkie Collins, and many other distinguished visitors to New York, have made their home at the Westminster Hotel, from which fact it may be inferred that the Westminster is one of the most select and comfortable of the New York hotels. The rates of charges, however, are not higher than those of other first-class houses, but the unexcelled accommodations, the excellent and convenient location, and the comparative quiet of the neighborhood, give it peculiar and decided advantages. It is conducted on the European plan, and located almost in the center of the city, on 16th street and Irving Place, but one block from Broadway and Union Square, near the great stores and theatres. See card in advertising columns.

At a special meeting in Berwick, Me., Wednesday, the town voted to bear half of the expense in building an iron bridge over Salmon Falls river, between Berwick and Great Falls. A town meeting will be called on this side of the river to consider the matter. The estimated cost is about $6000. The old bridge is in a dilapidated condition and unsafe.

Moody and Sankey have concluded not to continue their revival work in New England for the present, but to operate upon Philadelphia. They have been earnestly urged to work in our Massachusetts cities first, but they hold to the notion that the "Centennial City" should receive attention first.

The Guibord case at Montreal assumes a new aspect now, the order of the Queen in relation to the burial having been so changed as to direct that upon the tender of the accustomed fees by the friends of the deceased, a grave may be prepared for the remains in consecrated ground. The original order issued directed that permission be given for the burial of the remains in a lot in the cemetery owned by the deceased, but that lot having been cursed by the Bishop of Montreal, the order is so changed as to give the friends of the deceased an opportunity to bury the remains in some part of the cemetery still uncursed. The prompt action in the matter indicates a determination of the British government to enforce the order in its letter and spirit. The action of the bishop caused great excitement in Montreal, and much rejoicing on the part of those who thought that thereby the purpose of the friends of the deceased would be defeated, and the excitement is greatly increased by this new order. The Governor General, or in his absence the Lieutenant Governor, of Canada, is charged with carrying out the order.

The new Russian circular iron-clad, built for coast defence, is said to be a terrible vessel. With a burden of 2494 tons, she sinks but four metres deep in the water, and and being circular, presents no point of particular vulnerability.

—The Courier-Journal remarks "The most encouraging sign in the journalistic firmament is the tendency of St. Louis writers to duelling. All that is needed to bring about the most satisfactory results is better marksmanship, and that can easily be attained by practice."

—A Texas papea has a long account of the capture of a wild boy a few miles from that place. Wild boys in Texas may be so rare as to merit half a column of description, but they are far from being novelties in New England.

The Most Popular Excursion of the Season.

PORTSM'TH to CRAWFORD'S and FABYAN'S THROUGH THE WHITE MOUNTAIN NOTCH.

Wednesday, Sept. 15, 1875,

A Special Train will leave the E. R. R. Station, Portsmouth, for the Mountains, at 7:15 A. M., (stopping only at Kittery and Eliot for passengers,) passing through the famous White Moutain Notch, whose towering Cliffs, Cascades and grandeur of scenery has no comparison east of the Rocky Mountains.

RETURNING, LEAVE FABYAN'S AT 4 P. M.

The Company desirous of making this the most popular excursion of the season and yet place it within the means of all, have made arrangements with the Proprietors of the Mountain Hotels for a liberal reduction from their regular rates to those holding excursion tickets.

Also, have arranged with the Mt. Washington Railway Company so take those wishing to visit the summit of Mt. Washington, at reduced rates. Don't fail to take advantage of the low rate, as it will be the ONLY CHANCE of the season.

TICKETS FOR THE ROUND TRIP, $3.

Return Tickets good from the 15th to the 18th, inclusive.

Tickets for sale at the following places, up to the afternoon of the the 14th; after that at the Ticket Office of the Eastern Railroad. Wm. K. Preston's, Butler & Laighton's, Hutchinson & Connell's.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The fatigue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alteratives which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Per order,

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

—Yesterday, during one of the numerous showers, a Detroit lawyer walked four blocks through the "drips" to reach the office of a justice of the peace and say: "It rains upon the justice well's the unjust." His Honor removed the pipe from his mouth, looked out of the window, and replied: "Grass needs it." And the lawyer went out and kicked at a newsboy to ease his burden of madness.—Detroit Free Press.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE,—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITTAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—SIR:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for ague cases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 5, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received DR. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and heaviness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM B. FELLOWS.

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and,

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found it any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person with in his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any part or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

CONFEDRIT X ROADS,
WICH IS IN THE STATE UV KENTUCKY,
August 27, 1875.

Ef life ever wuz a rose tinted dream to me at any time dooring my mortle pilgrimage, this is the precise time. I am thoroly happy—so happy, indeed, that the privashens and troubles that I hev bin thro are fadin out uv my memory entirely. I hev paid Bascom's account wich hez bin runnin for so many years, and hev his receet in my safe—my SAFE I say. Proudly I write these words. MY safe. Who, thirty days ago, wood hev supposed that I should ever say MY safe! Then I hev two soots ov close—good ones—wich is one and a half more than I hev sence I was Postmaster under Johnson—Heven rest his sole. I hev two shirts for the first time in my life, and I am wearin stockins! I hev but one pare ez yet, but one cant rise to the summit uv hooman grandjer at wun bound. I shel buy another pare in a week or two. I think every bank president ought to either hev two pare uv stockins or return to the stern virchoos uv the Republic in its better days, and go barefoot. Goin barefoot or hevin a change is necessary to the keepin uv a bank president's office in a sweet smellin condition.

But this is a digreshen. Suffice it to say, I am clothed. I pade three dollars and a half a pare for them stockins—they is cotton—wich is three dollars and a quarter more than they wuz worth in the old money; but wat difference does it make? That three dollars and a half wuz made by four pulls on Simpson's printin press, and when money kin be made in that way wat difference does it make wot I pay for cotton sox?

At the beginnin we ishooed 10, 20, 25, and 50 cent currency, but we hev quit that. Prices hev gone up so, under the general prosperity, that there ain't a thing in the Corners that sells for less than a dollar per one, and the frackshnel currency wuz decided to be yooselis. Besides it cost jest as much to print a ten cent note ez it does a dollar, and we bleeve in economizin.

Simpson, the printer, is makin us a little trouble. At the beginnin I yoosed to pay him for printin our bills by jest signin enuff uv em ez they come from the press to make his amount, but lately he hez refoozed to take our money and insists on greenbax. We tried to overawe him, but when he threatened to publish the finanshel condishun uv the president and direktors it was considered advisable to humor him. It is singular that sich men throw impediments in the way uv progress.

The obstacles in the way uv the bank that hev thus far developed therselves hev bin happily and easily removed. Bascom demanded wheat uv us to ship to Looisville to git more whiskey, and we hed to let him hev it, and take pay in our own money. And ez he demanded that we take our own money jest the same ez greenbax, that bein the standard in Looisville, we met a heavy loss. The account stands as follows:

1,000 bushels uv wheat cost us, in our own money, at $4.50 per bushel	$4,500
Sold it to Bascom at Looisville prices, wich is $1 per bushel, takin pay in the same money we had paid for it,	1,000
Loss (wich is easily figgered),	$3,500

We had one more trouble, wich we got on easier with. Pugsby, the shoemaker, who took our money, run out uv leather, and when he sent to Looisville for more, the merchants there, ez in the case uv Bascom, refoozed to take our currency. Pugsby knowd uv Bascom's experience and he came up smilin to hev us sell him wheat enuff at greenback prices to renoo his stock.

"Wat kin we do?" I demanded in dire distress, for really I didn't see why Pugsby shoodnt hev wheat to renoo his stock ez well ez Bascom, ceptin that whiskey is more necessary to the Corners than leather.

"Do?" sed Issaker Gavitt, with a expreshun uv skorn on classik feechers. "Do? And you claim to be finanseers? Hez Pugsby a safe? No! Well, wher does he keep the $12,000 uv our money? In his desk? Yes? And that is wooden; and his bildin is wood. Very good. Tell Pugsby to come to-morrer and we will give him wheat at a dollar a bushel for all uv our money he has got. We hev twenty-four hours, and banks, ez well ez nashens, kin be saved in twenty-four hours."

And Issaker put some matches in his vest pocket—about $3 worth. Matches hez gone up to $4.50 a box—our money.

That nite Pugsby's shop burnt up, and the fire commenced jist under his desk. The next mornin that unforchnit man came to us and insisted on havin the wheat on the score uv the money he had ov ours.

"Bring us the money," said Issaker, beamin sweetly onto him, "and we'll give you all the wheat you want."

"But you know that I had yoor money, and that it was burnt up last nite."

"I persoom you hed some uv our money, but I don't know it," replied Issaker. "No well regulated bank kin live if they shood take every man's word, ez you want us to. How kin I tell but wat yoo hev that money conceeled, and that the burnin' of your shop was a skeem to defrod your creditors? I am not shoor that it isn't my dooty to investigate the matter."

And Issaker looked so stern that Pugsby left the bank with a howl of terror.

Issaker is developin so great a genius in finanseerin that I'm reely jealus uv him. He is the master-spirit uv the institooshun.

At the Board meetin last nite we discust wat we shood do in sich cases ez Pugsby's hereafter, but arrived at no definite conclooshin. There is several uv em, and they will hev to be met. Issaker bleeves in the style uv treatment he yoosed in Pugsby's case, but I can't consent to it. It's heroic I admit, and good enuff for a temprary expedient, but it won't do for a reglar system. Ef our money stimoolates a man's biznis to the pint of his bildin a new house we hev benefitted him, and the commoonity ez well. But ef to avoid the inconvenience uv redeemin that money we have to burn the house wat good hev we accomplished? None. We hev got to find some other way. I don't see any other way, but no doubt it will sejest itself to me in time.

It is astonishin how the Corners is bloomin, now that it hez money enuff. Five new ralerodes are bein built, twelve new turnpikes, one hundred and twenty-eight new cellers for new houses is bein dug, and last week the corner-stuns for eight factrys wuz lade with approprit ceremonies. The gradin is bein dun on the ralerodes and turnpikes, and that part uv the work will be pushed to an early compleshun, for the labrers furnish their own shovels and picks and take our money for wages. The labrers buy their livin uv the farmers along the line with that money, and then the farmers come to the Corners with it, and cheer their soles at Bascom's.

So far, all is serene and sweet. So far the money sheds blessins, ez a skunk does perfoom. But at this pint comes worry. Wat is Bascom to do with it? The Looisville merchants refooze to tech it for likker, and we can't afford to giye him wheat at Looisville prices agin. We wood bild a distillery, but alas! we can't pay for the nails, the glass, and the stillin apparatus in our money, and we ain't got any other. But, thanks to an overrulin Providence, Bascom hez enuff likker to last two weeks, and suthin will turn up afore that is gone.

Valyoos hev gone up so that it takes a vast volume uv currency to transact the biznis uv the Corners. Simpson's hand press won't anser the demands made onto it, and he hez purchased a power-press, which will print 1,000 sheets an hour, and to facilitate bizniz, and to make it perfeckly shoor that we shell hev all the currency we want, I hev hed my name and Issaker's engraved, so that it kin be printed in, thus savin us the trouble uv signin em with a pen.

Our prosperity is astonishin. Pugsby gits $40 a pare for pegged boots a great deal eazier than he yoost to git $4, and Bascom hez put drinks up to 50 cents for new whisky and 75 when you take sugar in it. Lots in the corporashun hez quadroopled in valyoo within the week, and reel estate is changin hands lively. I cood wish, however, that the ishoos uv the Onlimited Trust and Confidence Company cood hev a wider circulashen. I took a brief vacashun this week at the Glauber Salt Springs, and wuz beaten out uv $200 at cut-throat loo. The gamblers refoozed to take my money, and I wuz compelled to leeve my watch with em—that is, Captain McPelter's watch, which I had borrowed to make an imposin appearance. But it wus all the same to me, ez I paid him for it in our currency. I wuz sorry to lose it, for I hed depended on that watch to help us out when we got into an exceedin tite place.

PETROLEM V. NASBY,
President uv the Onlimited Trust and Confidence Company.

P. S.—Another trouble is loomin up on the horizon. Perkins, the blacksmith, is out uv iron, and Simpsell, the carpenter, hez to hev a jackplane and two augers, all uv wich hez to be got in Looisville, and they demand uv us sich money ez Looisville will take. Then another mortifyin circumstance happened yesterday. The Directors of the Bank had determined to lay the corner stun uv our new bankin edifis, wich we hev commenst, but after announcin the event we coodent lay it. A bigger rope than any in the Corners wuz nessary to lift the massive stun to its place (we had it massive ez an emblem uv our solidity,) but we coodent rake up enuff currency that they'd take in Looisville to buy one. So that corner stun aint laid, and the work on the buildin, I spose will hev to stop till we kin turn up suthin. Ther's a crisis approachin. P. V. N.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1875.

Partisanship in our Courts.

The Dover Enquirer charges Judge Rand of Dover with having ruled unfairly in a case of an officer issuing a warrant against certain offenders, it being held that the instrument was illegally drawn. The Enquirer represents the matter as follows:

For several years there has been a statute in this State that Sheriffs or their Deputies should not make warrants or complaints, and at the last session of the Legislature the law was amended so as to apply to City Marshals, Assistant Marshals and Constables. City Marshal Wallace had been in the habit of making warrants or complaints and signing them as Justice of the Peace, up to the time of the passage of the amendment. As soon as he learned of its passage, he obtained the signature of some other person, usually that of Geo. E. Durgin, Register of Probate, to the instrument, considering that in so doing he had complied with the law, as the writ must be the instrument of the officer whose name it bears, no matter who may have done the clerical work of writing it. Our democratic City Solicitor Dodge brought the matter before our democratic Court, and the profound Judge decided that the work of filling out the printed forms by the City Marshal made them null and void, no matter whose signature they bore. As a result, some six or eight prisoners from our jail, who had been brought before the Judge on a writ of habeas corpus, were discharged, reminding one of the very easy way in which criminals in New York City slip through the meshes of the law.

City Marshal Wallace who made the arrests, Police Justice Ward who tried and sentenced the law breakers, and Assistant Marshal Stackpole, who made some of the commitments, have all been arrested and put under heavy bonds, because these officers, not understanding the new law as Judge Rand interprets it, had committed a slight informality—because officer Wallace, instead of telling some one else what to write, had written it himself, securing the official signature of some other officer, and thus, as he supposed, complying fully with the requirements of the law. Three complaints have been issued against Judge Ward, four against Marshal Wallace, and two against Assistant Marshal Stackpole, with more to follow, and that each of them is required to give one thousand dollars bail on each complaint.

Musical Education in our Schools.

[Harper's Magazine for October.]

How is this great power of music to be controlled and brought to bear most directly, most efficiently, on our people? That nation is the best-educated in which knowledge is most diffused, in which the results of learning are within the grasp of the greatest number. Only so far as any art or science becomes a part of popular education can that art or science became a power, an influence, in a land. Of the growing desire among our people for a higher musical education we have many signs in the frequency of festivals and choral unions and the number of musical associations. We Americans are a conglomerate race, made up of the best of every people under the sun, so transfused that the origin of even a single family can scarcely be traced without an element of Celtic or Teutonic race discovering itself. Perhaps this is the source of the musical taste so widely spread among us as a people. We say taste, not culture; we are not yet a cultivated people in any true sense. As a national characteristic, to be song and music lovers belongs to the Irish and German races rather than to the Saxon. It is rare to find a German or Irish girl without an ear for music. In our Western States and centres of population the Germans instinctively gather, in remembrance of the fatherland, into Sangvereins, preserving the songs and musical traditions of the old land, while they welcome gladly any thing fresh and worthy from the new. The marvelous achievements of the school festivals in the Music Hall in Boston are largely due to the fine voices, the quick perception, of the Irish, either by birth or descent, who constitute a majority of the pupils in our public schools.

No one thing has done more for music in the past twenty years than its introduction as an integral part of our common-school education. In the large cities and suburban towns little seems left to desire in that direction. From the time children at the age of five enter the primary school till at the age of sixteen or eighteen they graduate from the high or normal school, music is as much a part of their training as the multiplication-table and spelling-book. The next generation will see what we foresee, and reap the harvest this generation is so wisely sowing.

If, as we contend, music is in itself purifying and elevating, if it can displace and crowd out baser pleasures by giving innocent recreation and excitement to a people that must be amused, a people who must be busy for good or for evil, we can not have too much of it. It can not enter too largely or too deeply into the system of common school education.

Perils of the South.

[Harper's Magazine for October.]

The greatest of them all is that the two races, through the States where slavery formerly existed, will be separated by party lines, and will look upon one another with reciprocal distrust. Sectional differences are bad enough, as we have found in our past history, even when able men managed the parties; but differences of race, intensified by the jealousies and distrusts of politics are tenfold worse. In the present case they tend to increase in intensity and bitterness, because the ignorant mass that has just been rescued from slavery must fall under the influence of fear of what will happen if the management of State affairs passes over permanently into the hands of the adversaries. They feel their weakness; they have inferior power of combinations; they have small means of self-protection. They are also to a considerable extent under the influence of cunning leaders who seem to have unlimited power of acting on their fears. Brawls will unavoidably break out in many neighborhoods, which will grow into feuds and local quarrels, and will in report be magnified or extenuated, as it may happen, in their importance, so that the country will not know what to believe or disbelieve in regard to them. As for the blame to be imputed to the one or the other side, that is a small matter. We do not believe that the colored race or their leaders of like origin would be or have been the first to encroach on the rights of the white race. And we wish that one could not believe that there has been a policy or understanding on the part of many leading whites in some of the States in question to the effect that the colored people must be prevented by terrorism from enjoying the benefits granted to them in the new amendments. But the evils to which we refer lie outside of the immediate occasions of strife between the races; it will reach beyond existing parties. How can there be harmony between them under any future division of parties, when, in addition to difference of race, distrust, suspicion, past feuds and antagonisms, will continually foment disquiet? If it be said that unprincipled whites are corrupting the blacks and poisoning their minds, it may be very true, but how is the nuisance to be abated? Will not the eagles be gathered together where the carcass is? In brief, the cause of all that has taken place or is to be apprehended lies not in particular or local provocations, nor in the imbittering of a most mild and inoffensive race by the war, but it is one that is likely to last as long as measures, now never to be set aside, shall have run their course and borne their fruits, "The end is not yet."

Until this state of things shall end, if end it can, this unhappy part of our Union, injured in its property, with its old landholders impoverished or driven from their homes, with its institutions shattered, most lag far behind the other parts in most of the essentials of prosperity. That section is full of undeveloped resources; its exhaustless beds of iron and coal, its soil yet unbroken, or capable of vastly increased production, its mild climate, must invite capital and labor, if those timid forces could be assured of safety and protection. Perhaps the solution of the problem for the South may come from this source, from a new emigration not compromised in old strife, and able to act in the end as a mediating and a reconciling power.

—An American who recently visited the home of Thomas Carlyle, describes the brusque manner in which he was received by the distinguished occupant thereof: "Down comes Carlyle from his sanctum—a gray-whiskered old man, with eyes half closed, as if pondering over some mental abstraction and shutting out the external world. He placed upon the table a long clay pipe, from which he had been raising a cloud of smoke, and took up one of a half a dozen felt hats with as broad a brim as a Colorado ranchman's. His clothing was of the coarsest Scotch twill, and, like a Quaker's suit, was gray and of one color. His coat reached below his knees. "Hump! Who are you?" he at length said, when his brother remarked that somebody was standing near by. "Sir," was the reply. "I am one of a multitude in America who, having read a few of your works, have long had a desire to call upon you." After the usual courtesies, the visitor bid him good afternoon. Another grunt was the reply. As the visitor was bowing himself out, Carlyle suddenly remarked: "I am going to walk; come with me." He started off at a good, smart pace, with his hands behind him and his head inclined. When, after a few moments, the American ventured a question, Carlyle answered it in the old Socratic fashion by asking a dozen. He wished to know about the United States, our churches, our colleges, our public men, At a street crossing, Carlyle suddenly stopped, and, stooping down, kicked something out of the mud, at the risk of being run over. With his bare hands he brushed the mud off and placed the white substance in a clean spot on the curbstone. "That," said he, "is only a crust of bread. Yet, I was taught by my mother never to waste, and, above all, bread, more precious than gold, the substance that is the same to the body that the mind is to the soul. I am sure the little sparrows or a hungry dog will get nourishment from that bit of bread." Arriving at the house of one of Carlyle's friends, the two separated as unceremoniously as they had met.

—La Cour has devised a very ingenious use of the tuning-fork for transmitting signals on telegraph lines, which promises to become of great importance. It is based on the well-known fact that if a given fork be made to interrupt an electric circuit by its vibrations, and the intermittent current thus produced be passed through a series of electro-magnets, each in connection with a fork of different rate, only that fork will be thrown into vibration which is in unison with the first one. Practically the time required to do this is the small fraction of a second. The advantages of this method are numerous. Not only may many receiving instruments at one station be operated, each by its own key, through a single wire, but many different stations in the same circuit may be operated, that one alone receiving the message which has the requisite instrument. Moreover, many signals may in this way be transmitted over the same wire at the same time, and many dispatches sent simultaneously to as many stations. All this may be done, too, without affecting the line for its ordinary use, and independent of atmospheric and terrestrial currents. —Editor's Scientific Record, in Harper's Magazine for October.

News and Notes.

The largest organ in the world is in Albert Hall, London, and was built by Henry Willis in 1870. It contains 138 stops, four manuals and nearly 10,000 pipes, all of which are metal. The wind is supplied by steam power. Thirteen couplers connect or disconnect the various subdivisions of the organ at the will of the performer. The organ at St. George's Hall, Liverpool, also built by Mr. Willis, has 100 stops and four manuals. That of St. Sulpice, Paris, is of the same magnitude and has 5000 pipes. The largest organ in America is in the Music Hall, Boston, built by Walcker of Ludwigsburg; it has four manuals, 89 stops and 4000 pipes. The other important organs in this country are by American builders, and are as follows: Trinity Church, New York, built by Henry Erben; Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, E. & E. G. Hook; St. George's New York, by Jardine & Son; Tabernacle, Brooklyn, by the same; St. Bartholomew's New York, by J. H. & C. S. Odell; Temple Emanuel, New York, by Hall & Labagh; and Holy Trinity, New York, by H. L. Roosevelt. These organs have from 2500 to 4000 pipes, and from 50 to 60 stops, and therefore, in point of size, will be found equal to the average large organs of Europe. Some of them contain all the modern European and American improvements. One of the largest organs in America is in the Roman Catholic Cathedral at Montreal and was built by Mr. S. R. Warren of that city.

A New York daily says of the Connecticut State prison "the convicts now get under-clothing and human food." One of two droll things must be inferred, either that anthropophagy is practiced in that institution, or that the daily aforesaid understands "animal food" to mean food for animals.

In Madison, Wis., recently, two old gentlemen started to go to the post office after supper to get their mail matter, and two young ladies boarding in the same house determined to reach the post office first. The spectators thought that the girls were running to escape the attentions of the men and the result was the entire party was arrested and they had much difficulty in making the officer understand the true facts of the case.

On Wednesday, Oct. 6, is to come off the Dodge-Jewell wedding, when the son of W. E. Dodge, of New York, is to marry Miss Florence Jewell, daughter of the Postmaster-General. The wedding will occur at the residence of the bride's father in Hartford. Two thousand invitations have been sent out.

At the term of the Probate Court for Merrimack county, held this week at Pittsfield, N. H., a petition was presented by Gen. Head," of Hooksett, beginning "I, Nathaniel Head," and praying that he be allowed to take the name of "Natt Head." The prayer of the petitioner was granted, and a decree to that effect was recorded; and therefore his name is now "Natt."

J. H. Kendrick died at Lebanon, Sept. 15, aged 75 years. He had been cashier of the Bank of Lebanon since its incorporation in 1828. His son, E. A. Kendrick, will doubtless succeed him as cashier, having been assistant cashier for several years. The deceased was father of James R. Kendrick, Esq., Superintendent of the Old Colony Railroad.

The Providence Journal is justly indignant because a flippant correspondent of the New York Sun in a two column article recently represented the laboring population of the State of Rhode Island as in a condition of restlessness bordering on an insurrection, in consequence of the paralyzed condition of business there. The Journal goes for the Sun in good shape, and teaches the lesson that the little bantam State cannot be maligned with impunity.

The question can a man who loses a season ticket on a railroad compel the company to give him another has been answered in the negative by Judge Ross of Pennsylvania.

A New York editor, commenting up on the announcement that the first-class hotels in that city contemplate a simultaneous and general reduction in charges for the Winter, adds: This is right. Let them come down, and many people on the top floor will do the same.

In France the telegraphic service has yielded in the past year an excess of $400,000 over expenses. The year before, expenses and receipts balanced, but always previously there was a deficit. Thus it appears that cheap despatches do develop an increased use of the wires.

During the past year the number of cigars consumed in France amounted to 742,000,000, and of manufactured cigarettes 468,000,000. This is an average of twenty cigars and thirteen cigarettes for each individual, the population of women and children being included in the calculation.

Two sons of the Emerald Isle paid a visit to Fairmount Park, Philadelphia, recently. They visited the water works. Looking on with amazement at the great turbine wheels while in motion, one exclaimed to the other: "Faith, Pat, the Americans must be quare people; they must have their wather ground before they can drink it."

—The mere fashion tourists are hieing to heir homes, but the sportmen have just packed up rod and gun, flies, pipe, campstool and tall boots, and are revelling in the murder of game fish and birds. The more adventurous hunters seek remote fastnesses and sate themselves with deer and and turkey, while an army of grouse hunters infest the prairies of Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas. The sports of limited range, in the more populous districts, tire their legs in wild search for an occasional covey of chickens or quail, or, failing those, content themselves with passenger pigeons, and, in very desperate cases, with bull-bats. Rail, curlew, jack-snipe, plover, pheasants and wood-cock are incidentally banged at wherever they exist. It is the sporting season for men, but what should the birds call it? They ought to be heard in the general discussion of breech-loading shotguns, powder, setters and retrievers. But they can't be, and therefore the sport goes on in a very jug-handled way. About all the comment possible to be made on it is that it is healthy for the sportsmen but not for the feathered bipeds.

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The fatigue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alteratives which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

Local Matters.

The Sons and Daughters of Newcastle.

The first gathering of the natives and residents of Newcastle took place at the Wentworth, Thursday afternoon and evening, and considering the dull weather was a highly successful affair, fully two hundred and fifty persons being present. Capt. Albert H. White of Newcastle, acted as President, with vice-Presidents from all the New England States. A grand banquet was served in the dining hall at 8 o'clock, the tables being loaded with choice viands, and profusely ornamented with flowers. After an address of welcome by the President, followed by prayer from Rev. D. H. Adams, T. E. O. Marvin gave a brief and interesting address. The toast master of the evening was Elvin C. Kinnear of Dover, who opened with a humorous poem founded on local reminiscences, which brought down the house. The following were the toasts given and their respondents:

1. Newcastle. The place of our nationality. T. E. O. Marvin.
2. Portsmouth. Beloved old Strawberry Bank. Capt. William Frost.
3. Farmington. "The nativity of the Hon. Henry Wilson." To the number of its residents, Newcastle has largely contributed. George V. Card.
4. State of New Hampshire. Her sons, like their native hills are ever firm and true, and her daughters beautiful as her scenery. M. J. Vaughan.
5. The Ladies.—The sweetest epic ever written. John Durgin.
6. Our Hosts. Prompt at every call. T. E. O. Marvin.

Addresses followed from W. A. Maloon, Capt. Wm. Frost, M. J. Vaughan, Oliver H. Locke and Leander Garland.

A happily arranged surprise was the presentation to Mr. and Mrs. C. E Campbell, of the Wentworth House, of a charming picture in Berlin work, through which was woven in scarlet letters, "God bless our Home," the address being given by Mrs. Jo seph White, who presented it in behalf of the Portsmouth delegation. Mr. Campbell responded appropriately. The President then announced that the table festivities were concluded, and the happy gathering would close with the singing of a "Re-Union Ode" written for the occasion by a lady, to the tune of "Auld lang syne." A unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Messrs. Campbell & Chase for the hospitalities so liberally offered to the company. Thus closed at the hour of eleven o'clock, one of the largest and most enjoyable gatherings ever known at Great Island.

Among the choice floral gems profusely scattered around the house, was a large cross made of lilies, roses, pinks, verbenas, snow-drops and ambrosia, which bore the following inscription. "To the memory of those of our number who have passed to their better homes;" a tribute from the Portsmouth delegation. Near by was a massive wreath of flowers emblematic of "the clasping round of love complete." Flags and streamers were liberally used in adorning the dining hall, the word "Welcome" prepared by the proprietors of the house, being extended across the entire length of the rear of the room.

The committee in charge are deserving of much credit for the thorough manner the arrangements were made and carried out. Memory will indeed hold a glad review of this first gathering of the natives and residents of Newcastle.

Teachers' Association.

The State Teachers' Association, which meets this year at Wolfboro' promises to be one of unusual interest. We trust that our school committee will make some arrangement so that there may be a full attendance of our teachers. The value of these meetings is incalculable. We understand that Mr. S. W. Clarke, of our High School, has promised to deliver an essay upon the "Duties of Teachers to Parents." Those who listened to Mr. Clarke last winter upon the same subject will be pleased to know that his essay was so well received outside of the Portsmouth Teachers' Association as to merit an invitation to repeat it at Wolfboro'.

Joseph G. Edgerly, Esq., so well and favorably known to our educators, will speak upon "What subjects should be pursued in the common schools, and to what extent should the State educate?" We predict for Mr. Edgerly a hearty appreciation of his effort and to all teachers who have the pleas ure of listening to the gentleman, a rare treat. Rev. Mr. Powers, the popular Unitarian clergyman of Manchester, will probably speak upon the same subject. D. A. Clifford, Esq., master of the North Grammar School in Manchester will also speak upon "Originality." Those who are acquainted with the latter gentleman will pronounce him well qualified to address any audience upon the above subject, he being a living representative of the same. We expect to attend this meeting ourselves, and hope to meet every teacher in the Portsmouth schools there. Will not Manchester teachers be astonished if such a miracle should happen?

Jottings.

The steamer Appledore made her last trip to the Shoals for this season, on Friday.

Two females in Mechanic street exchanged unpleasant words on Thursday night, and the morning brought a mandamus summoning one of the parties to show cause, etc. The male and female scrapings of the South End, together with the usual number of Court loafers were congregated in front of the Police Station two full hours before the trial, waiting for an opportunity to hear a disgusting revealment of the origin of the quarrel.

New Publications.

Messrs. Roberts Brothers are preparing an agreeable sensation for hosts of readers in the shape of a new book by Miss Alcott. "Eight Cousins" will be the first book in the "Little Women" series issued since "Little Men," which was published in June, 1871, four years ago, thirty-eight thousand copies having been called for in that month. The series consists of "Little Women," "Little Men," and "An Old-Fashioned Girl," three works without doubt the most popular of the time, their combined sale in the United States exceeding two hundred thousand, and England, France, Germany and Holland swelling the number with their respective editions. "Eight Cousins" adds another to these felicitous domestic histories which have made their author so famous, and in which boys, girls and their parents take equal delight, and its perusal will convince all that she has lost none of her powers of fascination.

Messrs. Roberts Brothers have also near ly ready, "Madame Recamier and her Friends," translated from the French by the translator of "Memoirs and Correspondence of Madame Recamier," which work, published several years since, has had a wide popularity and is now supplemented by the new book containing Madame Recamier's own letters omitted in the first volume.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

Per order,

MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of Rattan, and for neatness and beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz. a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight —A young lady's description of the prodigal son: "He came—no shoes to his feet, no coat to his back, in his shirt-sleeves, and them grimmed with dirt; his beard grown and matted; his hair uncombed and wild-like; his trousers just hanging together; all in rags and tatters, dirty with living among swine. You know what pigs are; and they were no cleaner at that time in the holy land than they are in Ulster now. Well in this plight he came back to his father's house. And his father fell on his neck, and kissed him. Ugh! I wonder how he could."

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

— FOR —

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complant many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Chologogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package--- Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. Lane:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was better, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I say Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can send me four Packages.

ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the worst and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section.

MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. Lane:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness as I was by that cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.

A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. They be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. Union Store, Market street.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such place as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier—the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 24. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located with, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is cyclical, is distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is safely loaned and distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate directly with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Great American Interest.

The address of Dr. George B. Loring, at the Grafton County Fair at Plymouth, was an eloquent appeal in favor of agriculture, its value, importance, and claims upon the people.

Dr. Loring began by alluding to the peculiar position held by agriculture among all the arts and industries of life. The most important of all occupations, it makes the least display. The most highly praised, it is by no means the most popular. The most truly attractive, it is freely and readily resigned for almost any trade known to man. To no duty is the mind more constantly devoted. The chemist, the geologist, the natural historian, all explore its rules and try to strengthen man's arm by increasing his knowledge. We all realize the value of careful investigation to the farmer. We all understand how important it is that all man's best faculties should be brought into operation, in order that he may succeed as a husbandman, his judgment, his quick comprehension, his foresight, his calculation. And we realize that the successful farmer exercises all these faculties, with modesty and in seclusion, and has an opportunity to apply them so as to be at once a good farmer and a good member of State and society.

And yet of all occupations farming needs the most defenders. It requires many orators and poets and editors, and a vast body of literature, to proclaim its value and show forth its charms. It depends somewhat on the imagination for its support, and it provides the most delightful sphere for the wealthy and fortunate, and at the same time offers the surest subsistence to those who live by their daily toil. It is this many-sided occupation which is really the national occupation of every people on earth. Mills and ships are but its allies.

In the early days of our republic it was the sole business of our people. We had no manufactures in that time when the foundations of our nationality were laid. Our fathers were farmers, had good land, abundant crops and simple ways. They built up the government which they founded on the substantial moral virtues of the times. They fought out the wars and made peace honorable; furnished the troops and paid the war debt; manufactured their own cloths and made their own clothes. They had neither power-loom nor spinning-jenny. Their looms and spinning-wheels were domestic institutions. They had an easy agriculture, for their soil was good; and they raised great crops and fed any kind of cattle to a profit. They held in their hands the great fundamental industry of their times, and it was upon them that the financial success of the country entirely depended.

Now it is a remarkable fact, Dr. Loring continued, that notwithstanding the vast increase of manufactures, and the great occupancy of water-power and steam in the work of converting the raw material into articles required by the wants of man, agriculture still holds a prominent place in our industries. It employs probably five-sevenths of our entire population. It supplies a large proportion of the materials which enter into our commerce. As in the early days it lay at the foundation of our financial success, so does it now, even surrounded as it is by more imposing and active industries. The importance of the export trade to a country whose indebtedness is great, and whose promises to pay are large and greatly extended, we all appreciate. The first step toward national solvency is such an interchange of commodities as to secure the balance of trade.

Our fathers proved this to be true and so do we; and as they exported fish and cattle, and lumber and provisions until the specie of their times flowed toward these shores, so might we, but for our extravagant demand for foreign luxuries and elegancies, turn the tide in our own direction. And this is to be done by the products of the soil. The value of domestic exports for ten months ending April 30, 1875, was $532,649,766; the amount of imports for the same period was $459,675,439; a condition of commerce which should have brought confidence, and which did indeed indicate a certain degree of financial prosperity.

Now, of all these exports, manufactured articles formed but a small part; cotton goods being about $4,000,000, manufactured iron about $13,000,000, leather about $4,000,000, woolen goods about $500,000. But of commodities drawn from the soil, and entering into this account of exports, I find the value of the wheat to be $50,000,000; of wheat flour, $20,000,000; of Indian corn, $20,000,000; of cotton $167,000,000; of bacon and hams, $24,000,000; of beef, $3,600,000; of cheese, $10,866,000; of lard, $10,849,000; of pork, $4,634,000; of grass-seed, $1,207,000; of butter, $1,355,000; of hides and skins, $4,000,000—making more than $315,000,000 of the products of agriculture alone. The significance of these figures is manifest; the relation held by agriculture to our financial prosperity must also be manifest.

The connection of agriculture with the State is not more striking, however, than its connection with the fundamental condition of society. The tenure by which land is held is as significant of the social and civil organization of people, as the church establishment of the educational system,—perhaps more so. The farther a people wander away from the feudal tenure of the old monarchical governments, the nearer do they approach that easy division and subdivision of the land which constitute one of the chief attractions and privileges of popular government. The colonists knew this; and in all those which are distinguished for the influences they have exerted on the national characteristics of the American people from the beginning, the law affecting real property has been and is now liberal, and the tendency is to reduce land to small estates. DeTocqueville discovered this element here, and declared that it constituted the great strength of our people. It gratifies that love of the land which belongs to all English-speaking people, and it also fixes them upon the soil by giving every man an easy opportunity of acquiring landed possessions.

And when the lands of the oldest colonies were divided into small farms the occupants found in them a home, and they also found themselves surrounded by all the civil opportunities which in this country make citizenship valuable, influential and important. And this can be found nowhere else—this conjoined system of land-holding and citizenship. When Napoleon divided the lands of France, he forgot the civil prerogatives which ought to go with it; and so his system failed; and the small farmers of France are ignorant of progress and improvement, and insensible to any amount of social or civil degradation.

To arrive at this American system of land-holding may appear easy—but it is not. It is admirable, but it is difficult to reach. Mr. Gladstone tried to apply it to Ireland, but he found it more difficult to accomplish than he did to disestablish the Church there. The great landed proprietors of Great Britain opposed and prevented it. Thirty thousand land owners in the United Kingdom, said Lord Derby, is a liberal division of land; 200,000 is better, says the freeholder of Massachusetts. The United Kingdom has more than 30,000,000 of people; Massachusetts has less than two. The former has an obedient population; the latter has an active and independent one. The former is filled with subjects; the latter with citizens. The former is occupied by tenants; the latter is occupied by landlords. With these latter go school-houses and meeting-houses, an abundant supply of books, and an agriculture which in order to be profitable must be so conducted as to give each man the largest reward for his labor, and a share of that universally diffused prosperity which is the condition of the agricultural industry of this county.

Dr. Loring concluded by enlarging upon the advantages to be derived from small farms, the specific modes of farming which naturally belongs to them, and the deep importance of retaining the landed possessions in succeeding family generations. Send many boys to college and into business, if you will, said he, but keep one on the farm. The prosperity of the country requires it.

News and Notes.

In the case of the State vs Fred C. Otis, indicted at Dover, for breaking and entering the house of John K. Place in May last, and for assault upon Place, who was killed in the melee by a pistol shot from his son, the jury, Thursday, rendered a verdict of acquittal.

About 400 feet of the track of the St. Louis Narrow Gauge Railroad went into the Mississippi river, Thursday night, in consequence of the caving of the bank about a mile above the levee north of the city. Trains will be unable to go into the city on that road for several days.

The store of Charles W. Bond, merchant tailor in Saco, Me., was burglariously entered Thursday night, but the burglars were evidently frightened away before making much of a haul. Entrance was affected through a rear window in Fairfield's law office, and thence through to Bond's.

The mysterious disappearance and supposed drowning of Ellen Lougee, of East Concord, a few days ago, led to a vigorous search for the body, which was found Thursday, by divers from this city. It was perfectly free from disfiguration and laid about six rods from the landing where she entered the boat. Coroner Stewart visited the place but thought no inquest necessary.

An Ypsilanti, Mich., despatch of Sept. 17, says that a boy, supposed to be Charlie Rose, was taken from the Union School by detectives from the East, Friday. He answers every description, and to the test question, "Who buys candy for Charlie?" answered "Uncle Joe." His reputed brother spoke up and said, "He means Uncle Bill." There seems to be no doubt of his identity, and all Belleville is in excitement. Belleville is a small place seven miles south of Ypsilanti, and twenty-five miles west of Detroit.

The aerial ladder, which fell in New York with three firemen at a height of nearly a hundred feet from the pavement, was made of white pine. The manufacturer of the miserable affair should be indicted and tried for manslaughter.

A petrified body was exhumed ne n gor recently. The head, body and limbs, except a portion of the lower limbs were transformed in a substance resembling chalk, and retained their original form and appearance. The hair which was in long curls, combed back, looked almost as when the body was laid out for interment. The grave-clothes were entirely gone with the exception of a silk neck-tie, which was in a perfect state of preservation.

The wholesale dry goods house of Jordan, Marsh & Co., situated on Avon street, Boston, was badly damaged by fire and water on Friday, the loss being about $75,000. Pipe smoking in the upper story, where cotton batting was stored, is said to have been the cause.

Nature is changing her color in dress. Green is ceasing to be a favorite hue, while scarlet, gold, and mauve are coming in vogue.

A Michigan man got caught in some machinery and lost all his clothes. He saved his life, however, which was an important matter for him.

The Board of City Works of Brooklyn have resolved to discharge a large number of employees, whose salaries aggregate $40,000 per annum.

An intelligent compositor this time made it read that a Cecil, Md., oarsmen got a thump on the spine from a leaping surgeon, instead of sturgeon.

Saturday, the 11th, was the finest day of the season at Mount Washington, though the thermometer indicated only 15 degrees above zero in the morning and ice two inches thick formed over standing water. The air was so clear that the Atlantic could be seen plainly all day, and at night the ocean near Portsmouth could be seen by moonlight—something very rare, indeed—while at noon Mount Malloy, within twenty miles of Montreal, was distinctly visible.

The Providence Journal, one of our most valuable exchanges, arrives in this city at 10:15 A. M. on the day of its publication. Good enough for Rhode Island's best paper.

It is announced that the New Hampshire soldiers' reunion will be held in Manchester Oct. 12, 13, and 14, instead of the 6th, 7th and 8th, as the trotting park will be occupied from the 5th to the 8th. About 2000 soldiers are expected to go into camp.

Stonewall Jackson.

[Rev. Florence McCarthy, of Chicago.]

Sixteen years ago, when I was commencing to preach, I was the pastor of the Baptist church in the village of Lexington, in the valley of Virginia, the seat of the Virginia Millitary Institute, and of what is now called Washington and Lee University. Major T. J. Jackson was, and for several years had been, a professor in the military institute. What his department was I never knew, but he was not the principal of the institution, and by no means the most prominent teacher. I was not personally acquainted with him, but he was sometimes in my congregation. I saw him constantly, and I remember distinctly his reputation in the town about the time the war broke out and his marvellous career commenced.

Most people at the North would be somewhat surprised to know what the personal appearance of this great man was. Jackson was about six feet tall, very lank and long-limbed.

When he walked it was with a long, methodical stride, and accompanied with a leisurely, pendulum-like swaying of the arms. He wore a military cap, the visor of which nearly touched his nose, and his eyes seemed always fixed on the ground. When I knew him he always wore short whiskers and moustache, which concealed the lower part of his face. But I remember distinctly meeting him one day on the first Bull Run battlefield, the day after the battle, and getting a view of his mouth. The mouth is usually a great index of character; but any one would search Jackson's mouth in vain for any sign of greatness. His lips were thin and red, his upper lip short and the corners of his mouth slightly upturned; the whole mouth expressing in a most unmistakable way a vast amount of sweetness and gentleness, but giving no hint of courage, endurance, perseverance, or any sort of genius. Jackson's voice was like his mouth, very soft, kindly, and inarticulate, sometimes like a faint jabber. His forehead, nose and chin were prominent, and corresponded more with his character. It is pretty safe to say that while his appearance and carriage were somewhat eccentric, his looks were entirely destitute of anything distingue, and that he passed for an ordinary looking man.

The most prominent trait in Jackson's character was his piety.

He was a member of the Presbyterian Church in the village, and was well known as an humble, conscientious, devoted, and consistent Christian man. He was not only a constant attendant on preaching, but a consecrated teacher of a class of negro children in the Sunday school, an exhorter in the prayer meeting, and a systematic and munificent giver to every benevolent object. In illustration of this point it is related that a day or two after the first battle of Bull Run the whole village collected at the stage stand in a storm of excitement, awaiting the news. When the stage arrived and the mail was opened it was announced that Dr. White, the venerable pastor of the Presbyterian Church, who was present, had received a letter from Gen. Jackson. The Doctor mounted the stand, arranged his spectacles, broke the envelope, and proceeded to read to the anxious crowd the momentous document. It ran somewhat as follows: "Dear Pastor—We had a battle yesterday. Enclosed please find check for $100, being my subscription for foreign missions now due." And the fervent piety seemed to deepen during his life in the army. His hours of prayer while in the tented field were observed with singular faithfulness. The old negro who was his body servant in the field declared that he could tell when there was going to be any heavy fighting by the constancy with which his master gave himself to his devotions. And Jackson's humble faith in God shone forth the brightest in his dying moment. For after receiving his death wound, when all about him were overwhelmed with grief, he played the part of comforter, and constantly exclaimed, "It is all right! It is all right!"

It was said and believed in Jackson's corps that the General was always engaged in prayer whenever he was fighting, and that, as he rode along the lines in the leaden hail, his right hand was always raised beseechingly to heaven. This had a wonderfully inspiring effect on his Virginians, who were all intensely religious men; but, unfortunately for poetry and romance, the impression was afterward discovered to be unfounded. Jackson, early in the war, had received a wound in the right hand, which I must not omit to say, parenthetically, he refused, Sydney-like, to let the surgeon dress until some private soldiers had been waited on. This wound always interfered with the circulation of the blood in that hand, so that he felt more comfortable when it was held upright, as if he was under the influence of strong emotion. And as he was always a sleepy-looking man, and appeared all the time as if he had the smoke of the camp fire blowing in his eyes, it is easy to see how natural it was for the men to get the idea that he was praying all the time he was chasing Banks.

But the point in which the public is the furthest astray concerning Jackson is his intellect. Almost every one at the North who remembers his brilliant achievements takes it for granted that he was a brilliant scholar. But the truth is, Gen. Jackson was remarkable for his lack of what is called intellectual acumen. He graduated about third in his class from West Point, but it is universally conceded that it was the result of his extraordinary determination and perseverance, and no brightness of mind. He never cut any figure as a professor, and was generally regarded as a very dull, obtuse sort of a person. I have heard a graduate of the military institute ridiculing Jackson's weakness as a teacher of mathematics. He said he had known Jackson to pass as satisfactory a problem which one of the class had worked out on the blackboard, and afterward, as the boys learned by peeping through the keyhole, spend the whole afternoon trying to understand what was on the board himself.

One comical peculiarity of Jackson was his talent for going to sleep. When I lived in Lexington it was a well-known fact that the Major, notwithstanding his punctilious attendance at church, had never heard Dr. White preach. About the time that the second hymn was sung he invariably went to the land of nod, whence he returned only when aroused by the last hymn. It was said that this habit was the effect of disease, and could not be helped. It followed him all through life, and I saw him yield to it once in the army. On one Sunday, somewhere in Eastern Virginia, I remember attending a preaching service in front of Gen. Jackson's headquarters. The General sat at the preacher's right hand on a backless camp stool. As the sun was very hot and there was no shade, he held his cap in his right hand between his head and the sun, his reverence not permitting him to place it on his head, as many others did theirs. With his hand elevated in that way, he peacefully glided off into dreamland and slept without moving his arm or nodding once, until the noise of the closing exercises startled him into consciousness again. The truth is, Gen. Jackson always looked as if he were asleep; and even walking he had the appearance of a somnambulist.

The End of a Thousand-Dollar Bank Note.

[Baltimore Gazette.]

The death of Josiah Cobb recalls a singular incident of his life. About 1829 a colored woman named Ridgely called at Mr. Cobb's grocery and purchased a small amount of groceries, giving him a thousand-dollar bank note in payment, thinking that it was a one-dollar note. Supposing that it was stolen, he detained the bill and advertised for an owner repeatedly; but no one claiming it, he invested it in city stock. Several false claimants appeared for the note, and it was the subject of several lawsuits, which terminated in Mr. Cobb retaining custody. The history of one of these claimants is as follows: Mr. Cobb one day was conversing about the money with a man who made so many particular inquiries that Mr. Cobb mistrusted his motive, and told him the woman was dark and had a large wen on the side of her neck, when in fact, she was a mulatto and had no such wen. Soon afterward a very dark woman with a large wen on her neck appeared from the Baltimore almshouse and professed to be the Sarah Ridgely, but the fraud was easily exposed, and up to this time the woman who left the bank note has not been heard from. Mr. Cobb allowed the money to remain with accumulated interest until 1866, when it amounted to $3,740, and he then presented it to the Union Orphan Asylum.

Small Farms.

[Exchange.]

Make near neighbors; they make good roads; they make plenty of good schools and churches; there is more money made in proportion to the labor; less labor is wanted; everything is kept neat; less wages have to be paid for help; less time is wasted; more is raised to the acre; besides, it is tilled better; there is no watching of hired help; the mind is not kept in a worry, a stew, a fret, all the time. There's not so much fear of a drought of weather, of a frost, of small prices. There's not so much money to be paid out for agricultural implements. Our wives and children have time to read, to improve their minds. A small horse is soon curried—and the work on a small Farm is always pushed forward in season. Give us small farms for comfort; aye, and give us small farms for profit.

—The Wallingford (Conn.) Communists have discovered that a profuse perspiration, induced by a heated stove in a small room, followed by a shampooing and thorough cleansing of the body with both warm and cold water, is an effective remedy for fever and ague, which at one time nearly broke up the community, and the people of the neighborhood have also been cured by the treatment.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the issue in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"
By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including the prepayment of postage—or about the price of a single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a bound Book, $1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.00 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address, shakes hands with, and pretends to know everybody.

He was holding court in Miller County, Ma., a short time ago, and was approached by a long, lubberly specimen of the Osage hills, who held out his paw and said:

"How d'ye do, Judge; you don't know me, do you?"

"Oh, yes," said the Judge. "How is your father?"

Osager—"Oh, he's been dead eleven years."

Judge—"Sure enough; but how is your mother?"

Osager—"Why she's been dead eighteen years!"

Judge—"Well, how the devil are you? You ain't dead, I knew!"

This brought down the crowd, which soon adjourned to the nearest grocery, to drink to the live man's health.

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The fatigue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alteratives which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

There are rumors of a general strike among the engineers, firemen and brakemen on the Eastern Railroad in consequence of the recent general reduction in wages and salaries.

Mr. Sewall W. Webber announces that he has recommenced selling the best of meats at low prices, at his store on the corner of Vaughan and Hanover streets.

There is to be a series of horse trots at the Rockingham Trotting Park on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The track has been greatly improved during the past month by the application of a good coating of clay loam, to those places where there was a loose foothold of sand. A large list of entries has been received.

Squash, melon, cucumber, and other vines received their death blow from the cold snap of Friday and Saturday nights. Old Jack Frost is nearly a fortnight ahead of vegetation.

Under the efforts of the temperance mission, through the Messrs. Hurd and Loyne of the Dover Reform club, the rooms over Myer's & Co.'s clothing store, formerly occupied by the Seamen's Home, have been secured as a reading room, to be known as the "Bow Mission," free to all reformed men, soldiers, sailors, marines, and all well disposed persons. A general miscellany of reading matter, secular and religious, books and magazines, will be found there.

The Secretary of the Navy has taken action on the proceedings and findings of the Court of Inquiry, in the case of the loss of the Saranac, approving the same in part. The court considered Captain Queen and Chief Engineer Bartleman derelict in their duties, but not sufficiently so to render a Court-martial advisable. The other officers and the crew of the vessel were commended for faithful discharge of duty. The Secretary approves the finding, except that, in view of all the circumstances of the case and the facts elicited by the inquiry, he does not coincide with the court in their opinion of the conduct of Chief Engineer Bartleman. The position Chief Engineer Bartleman took at the bell, where he could intelligently signal his assistants, the coolness he displayed, and the good order maintained in his department, entitle him, in the opinion of the Secretary, to commendation rather than censure.

About one hundred and fifty persons availed themselves of the cheap excursion rates to the mountains last Wednesday, via the Great Falls & Conway, and Portland & Ogdensburg Railroads. Many returned the same day, while others remained over, some going up Mount Washington and others availing themselves of the ample opportunities for inspecting the curiosities at the Notch and the Twin Mountain House. Those only who kept on, to the summit of Mount Washington, obtained a good view, Thursday and Friday being cloudy and rainy days. Some of the party complain justly of the impertinence of some of the waiters at the Fabyan House, who disgrace that hostelry and need to be taught good manners. One party of seven excursionists who were to leave for home early Friday morning, were unable to obtain even a cup of coffee, although they had to pay for their breakfasts and waited twenty minutes. The waiters were surly and impudent, and stared when orders were given, as if they were masters and not servants. The contrast in favor of the Twin and Crawford Houses was quite noticeable, the waiters at those places being polite and attentive, while Messrs. Barron, Gage and Merrill, who had not been consulted regarding reduced rates of board, showed every courtesy to their guests, and did everything to make their short stay a pleasant one. The amusements at these houses include boating, bowling, billiards and music, and the spacious parlors were well filled after dark, while roaring fires built of huge logs reminded visitors of pioneer experiences. At the Crawford, Friday night, a half inch of snow fell, an earlier appearance than has been usual for scores of years.

J. N. Goodall, Bohemian Musician.

The idiosyncrasies of musicians have long been a subject of interest to the general public. Whether the individual may have been one of the old masters, or a lesser light of modern days, his peculiarities have become a matter of history, or a topic of interesting latter-day discussion. Of all wayfaring musicians who have made this city a temporary asylum in recent years, no one has displayed such singular characteristics as the subject of this sketch. He presents a phase of mental disease entirely free from the objectionable features that generally afflict his class. He betrays a cheerful disposition, affects no dissipation,—that is to say, in the popular sense of the term,—an enthusiastic lover of good music, a profound disciple of Somnus, and an ardent devotee of the pleasures of the table. Indeed, he seems to possess three distinct natures, represented by Music, Gastronomy and Sleep. In the enjoyment of either condition, the others are forgotten, until compelled by violence to return to a consideration of his necessities.

Yet above all these, the tender god of Love bears supreme sway. A more devoted (yet respectful) admirer of his fiancee never lived; and in her absence, he worships her, vicariously, by a respectful devoir to the entire sex. He is not a man to be pitied, inasmuch as he experiences no distress; and yet he can hardly be viewed otherwise than as a wreck. At a tender age he was brought by his father, to this country, from England, as a musical prodigy. His father's abuse, and intense application to study overtaxed a precocious and delicate organization, and reduced him to his present condition. He is well known and patronized by the musicians of Boston; and by them extolled as a prodigy, and wondered at, as a phenomenon.

He is exceedingly expert with the violin, playing from memory the finest compositions of Ernst, Vieuxtemps, Rode and other masters, while on the piano-forte, he exhibits almost as unlimited scope. As a test of his reading capacity, the writer tried him with difficult compositions by Thalberg, Chopin and Bach. He scanned them with equal readiness and facility. He has played at three matinees in private apartments in this city; in response to a general desire to hear and see him at better advantage, he will appear at Mechanics' Hall, Congress street, to-morrow (Tuesday) evening. The public may rest assured that if the Concert is attended in order to appreciate an artiste, or to study a phenomenon, that time and money will be well expended.

About Kingston.

Kingston, N. H. was incorporated Aug. 6, 1694; but owing to the commencement, in 1703, of the war with the French and Indians, called Queen Anne's War, most of the women and children were compelled to leave the settlement, for safety, in older places and in garrisons.

During a truce in 1705, the Court granted the people permission to return, on the condition that they should build a fort in the centre of the town, lay out a parsonage and settle a minister within three years. But the renewal of hostilities prevented the settlement of a minister, within the specified time.

In 1706 they seem to have engaged one Benj. Choat, a graduate of Harvard College, to teach and to preach; and in 1707 they voted to pay him £50 for services as preacher. It does not appear that he was ever ordained, or that any church was organized till Sept. 17, 1725, O. S., when Mr. Ward Clark collected 23 persons into a church.

The inhabitants of the town propose to commemorate this event by a re-union of the descendants of the early settlers on the 28th inst., 150 years from date of their origin as a religious society. Rev. J. H. Mallsie is to deliver the historical address upon the occasion.

Merchants and others going to New York will do well to read the card of the Spingler House, Union Square, New York. Comfort, luxury, convenience and economy are the advantages offered at this select and excellent hotel.

Among the numerous signs of a strong revival in business during the fall is the constant increase of trade daily transacted by the firm of Mendum, Whidden & Co., furniture dealers. Their ware-rooms, 1, 3, 5 & 7 Washington street, and 93, 95, 97 & 99 Friend street, Boston, were for many years occupied by Beal & Hooper, and upon the retirement of that firm from business, the building was leased and taken possession of by Messrs. Mendum, Whidden & Co. It has always been a favorite resort for Portsmouth people in want of furniture, and seldom a day passes without a shipment to this city either for use or ornamentation. We find old habits abide with us, so beside catering to the wants of all the old customers, the new house is profiting by the presence and business qualifications of sons, grandsons and adopted sons of this city. These "Strawberry Bank" boys gladly welcome all who visit their establishment.

—Of so grave a character is the existing business depressions that even skeletons, usually worth $50, are now quoted at $35, which, remarks the Detroit Post, "doesn't leave a margin for a bare bonus."

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Notice to Parents, Guardians, and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody, control or charge of any child between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause such child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in every year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the board of education, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that the physical or mental condition of such child was such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school or at home, for at least twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired those branches in other more advanced studies."

Section 3 provides the following penalties for non-compliance with section 1:

"For the first offence a forfeit of $10, and $20 for the second and every subsequent offence.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere, and at less price.

Don't fail to call up-stairs and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz. a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

—A Mosaic law declares that when an ox fatally gores a man or woman he shall not be eaten, but stoned to death. There has been a practical attempt to enforce this in Stanley County, N. C. An ox having killed a man, the friends of the deceased demanded that it should be given them to be stoned. The owner refused to surrender the animal, whereupon a number of men, women and children took it out of the stable, stoned it to death, and cutting the flesh in pieces threw the fragments away. The owner has sued for damages, and the case will soon come before the courts.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT"

PANTOSCOPIC SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped "F. L. B.," and can be procured only from Resident Agents.

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

FOR

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,

J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir.—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE.—Sir.—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,

MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir.—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package, and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,

JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,

ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for biliousness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be use in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken one of my package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness nigues by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at No. 8 N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Was opened for the reception of guests, July 20th, 1875.

CARRIAGES will be in readiness to run daily from the hotel over the new carriage-road to the top of Kearsarge Mountain, affording the finest views in New England.

Business men in Boston and vicinity can spend the Sabbath with their families in Warner, and still be in the city during business hours each day. Board from $1.50 to $2.50 per day.

EXCURSION TICKETS for round trip from Boston to summit of Kearsarge Mountain and return, good for three days' trip, including railroad fare, hotel bills, and carriage to the Mountain, will be furnished on application, by mail or the proprietor, for the small sum of $15 each and parties of ten or more, $12.50 each.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten day from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than ten three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scows over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person with in his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied or him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in the city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—but the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premium, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and none of the bonds are taxed, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country's fair morn magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of the enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc..

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE FARMING KING.

The farmer sat in his old arm chair,
Rosy and fair,
Contented there.
"Kate, I declare,"
He said to his wife who was knitting near,
"We need not fear
The hard times here,
Though the leaf of life is yellow and sere.

I'm the king, and you are the queen
Of this fair scene,
These fields of green
And gold between,
These cattle grazing upon the hill,
Taking their fill,
And sheep so still,
Like many held by a single will.

These barnyard fowls are our subjects all;
They heed the call,
And like a squall
On fast wings fall,
Whenever we scatter for them the grain.
'Tis not in vain
We live and reign
In this our happy and calm domain.

And whether the day be dim or fine,
In rain and shine,
These lands of mine,
These fields of shine,
In cloudy state and in sunny glow,
Will overflow
With crops that grow,
When gold is high and when it is low.

Unvexed with shifting of stocks and shares,
And bulls and bears,
Stripes and cares,
And the affairs
Of speculation in mart and street,
In this retreat
Sweet peace can meet
With plenty on her rural beat.

—When a Kansas girl retires for the night now she first fastens down the windows of her boudoir, then opens the door to its fullest extent to permit of a ready exit in case of necessity, then turns up the gas brightly, cautiously approaches the couch and tremblingly looks under the bed; then she shuts and locks the door, looks under the bed, lays back her hair, looks under the bed, turns down the gas, pokes around under the bed with a broom-stick, and at last jumps into bed with a little yelp, and dreams of burglars all night.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $46.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the readers hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and romantic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which is sold at $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $46.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—about one cent per each single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 10 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.0 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

News and Notes.

In the case of Westervelt, who is charged with being one of the abductors of Charlie Ross, the jurw brought in a verdict of guilty on the first three counts in the indictment.

A Galveston special says: The storm, which commenced on Wednesday, continued to rage with violence until Friday night. The water from the Gulf of Mexico overflowed half of Galveston Island, knocking down some one hundred tenements, unroofing several churches, presses and residences. The water is on the principal streets and in the market stands to a depth of two feet. Three large schooners in the harbor were swamped; also one steamboat and two tugs, one being completely demolished. A large English bark was forced from her moorings and driven ashore. One schooner is forty feet on land. Some ten men working on the breakwater at the bar were drowned. The health officer, Dr. G. W. Prettle, and his grandson are drowned. His house was carried off. One negro woman was killed by a falling house. The railroad track is torn up in twenty places on the island. The bridge is partially destroyed, culverts on both roads are washed out, and the damage is variously estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000. The storm was a regular cyclone, but the wind was not very heavy, though the water was higher than during the great storms of 1867 and 1871 A committee has been organized for the relief of the sufferers, who are principally residents of the Gulf side and bay shore. All the telegraph lines have been down. The storm extended to Hempstead, on the Texas Central, and Willis, on the Great Western roads, doing damage along the entire route, including the city of Houston. No mails arrived for three days.

Next elections—Ohio and Iowa, October 12.

The Yarmouth Register of Saturday last, says: "Pilot Boat Rhoda G. Smith, Capt. Church, of Gosnold, arrived in Boston, 11th inst., with a cargo of 4,800 pounds of swordfish, and Capt. Church reports that on the 9th he was fortunate enough to fall in with the sea serpent, off Race Point, Cape Cod, where the big snake was chasing porpoises, and shot across the Rhoda G.'s bow, just in time for Captain C. to give him an iron shaft in his fin. He went off at great speed, taking with him two coils of line with two kegs attached, leaving in his wake "white water" for miles.

At Montgomery, Ala., the Constitutional convention adopted a bill of rights. The following section was adopted unanimously: The people of this State accept as final the established fact that from the Federal Union there can be no secession of any State.

The Cincinnati Gazette tersely sums up the reason why confidence is not restored to trade, as follows: The panic of 1857 was sharp, but confidence was quickly restored. The panic of 1873 was sharp, but confidence does not rally. Now, two years after, its effects largely remain. What made the difference? In the first case the basis remained undisturbed. No one proposed to tear up the foundation. Recovery of confidence was the natural order. In the last case a political party aided by a discontented section, which had ruined itself by a war of rebellion, started up an agitation to tear up the foundation; to alter the currency; to shift the measure of values; to unfix the obligation of contracts; to tear down the monetary institutions and agencies; to destroy all honesty in contracts. How could confidence recover in the midst of such a revolutionary agitation? So the effects of the panic grow worse, and a country whose resources are unsurpassed is paralyzed in its trade and industries by incendiary agitation for the selfish use of political demagogues.'

Can any one doubt, now that the Ohio and Pennsylvania democracy and the "Honorable" Jeff. Davis have pronounced in favor of soft money, that the next National convention of that party will do the same? —Syracuse Journal.

The confession of Davenport, who was arraigned at Shelburne Falls, Mass., for the murder of Joseph Farnsworth, while returning to his home in Coleraine, reveals a crime scarcely less fiendish than the Petersham murder. It appears that the two boys, Dwight and Davenport, knew that Farnsworth had gone to Greenfield, and expecting that he would return with his pension money, amounting to $50, they determined to get possession of it and make their way West. The two then went to Dwight's house, where the latter collected several articles of clothing, throwing them out of the window to Davenport, for use after the robbery. The young men then went down the road, cut their sticks by the roadside, and waited for Farnsworth's appearance, who came along just at dusk. Upon his approach they joined him and talked on various matters. Finally, coming near Farnworth's house—Dwight and Davenport being behind and a little to his right—Dwight struck Farnsworth upon the head, felling him to the ground. Davenport was frightened and ran a little way, telling Dwight to make haste. The latter turned Farnsworth upon his side, took out his pocket-book, beat him some more and joined Davenport, telling him that he found only four or five dollars in the wallet and that Farnsworth was not seriously injured. The two then threw their sticks into the bushes, put on some fresh clothes over their other ones, and spent that night in some spruces by the roadside. A few days after their wanderings began, Dwight, who had separated from his companion, was caught, and the capture of Davenport soon followed. Davenport is a slight, not over bright youth, only 17, but no larger than many at 14, while his companion is but 19. The fatal cane has been discovered in the brushes and is a stick the length and size of an ordinary walking stick. One end of it is splintered and stained with blood, though having been exposed ten days.

The Aurora (Ill.) Herald notes the growth of the inflation movement at the West, and the growing popularity of the proposed 3.65 convertible bond exchangeable for government currency.

When the democrats of Maine adopted this currency plank: "A sound currency, coin or its equivalent, essential to stability to business, and a restoration to prosperity; steps toward specie payments, and no steps backward," and cut down the republican majority to a mere trifle, they had no idea that the Indianapolis Sentinel, inflation dem., would say this: "The news from Maine has turned the rag baby into a good, live, bouncing youngster in Ohio—a Young America, that is carrying consternation into the republican household."

Governor Kellogg of Louisiana is in New York, and told an interviewer that his State was "a hard money State and a hard State for money."

The success attending the first trip of the fast mail train, which arrived in Chicago from New York on Friday six minutes ahead of the prescribed time, appears to have been as pronounced as it is gratifying. Beyond a couple of brief delays occasioned by hot boxes on the sleeping cars, nothing occurred to interfere with the programme of the postal and railroad officials. As the train rolled into the depot at Chicago its arrival was greeted with a cheer, and the entire population turned out to witness the handsome train. The average speed per hour from New York to Chicago, including the stoppages, was a trifle less than 38 miles. The distance to Chicago from Elkhart is 101 miles only, and the engineer who took charge of the train looked doubtfully at the time table. His work in carrying the train into Chicago fast enough to recover the lost time so strained his watchfulness and nerves that when he shut the throttle of his engine in Chicago ahead of schedule time he fainted away, and for a few minutes it was reported that he was dead. The few persons on board, too, were confined to their beds during the day from the exhaustion consequent upon the excitement of the trip. It is clearly evident that such speed as was made by this train is far better for the mails than it is for those having them in charge, and that the wear and tear on engineers is to be so intense as to warrant a new supply constantly.

The greenback dollar is worth 85 cents in gold. The five-twenty bond is worth 128 in greenbacks. The interest-bearing bonds are worth more than the paper currency. Why is this? Both are issued by the same government, and are based upon the same security. It is plain enough. The one is a definite promise to pay gold. The other is an indefinite promise to pay paper.

Some weeks since it was announced that some young men were robbed in Conway, but the particulars were not given. It seems that they were students from Bowdoin College who had made a walking trip to the White Mountains, and were on their return. In passing from North Conway to Conway Centre they had to pass over a wooded plain, where they were overtaken by two men in a wagon, one of whom ordered them to give up their money, or they would shoot them. They were considerably frightened, and gave up a valuable watch, with which the ruffians made off. At Conway Centre the young men informed the people of what had occurred, describing the robbers. Mr. Joseph Pitman, a determined and courageous young man, and another man, took a team and started in pursuit. After driving about five miles they came in sight of a wagon and two men, who answered the description of the robbers. They drove past them and then stopped. Mr. Pitman got out and went back, and taking their horse by the bit, commanded them to stop, saying that a robbery had been committed and he believed they were the robbers. One of the ruffians, with an oath, ordered him to let go of the horse, and at the same time struck him over the head with a heavy whip, crushing inhis hat and cutting his head and face. Mr. Pitman let go the bit and sprang into the wagon, grappling the robber by the throat, and soon subduing him. They then tried to make terms, offering to give up the watch and all the money they had to be let off. They were taken to Conway and examined before Justice Lampson, when one of them calling himself John Foss, from Charleston, Mass., and said to be an old offender, was held in $1000 for appearance before the Circuit Court, and in default of bail was sent to jail at Ossipee. The other man, who was not active in the robbery, was discharged.

Twenty-six hours from New York to Chicago.

Col. D. M. Clough, the Canterbury corn king, is pretty well known hereabout. It is known that he likes money, and that he has been fairly successful in getting a good share of it, but nobody would have thought of looking in the Col.'s coat-tail pocket for a lost wallet, and yet when the Col. was on his way to the Fair, at Manchester, he found three empty wallets therein. The Col. had been the involuntary receiver of stolen goods, but the kind fellows who thus favored him took six dollars from his vest pocket.—Laconia Democrat.

Clara Morris, the actress, has arrived home from Europe, slightly improved in health.

The jury in the case of Edwin W. Major, the alleged wife murderer, at Wilton, failed to agree, eight being for acquittal and four for conviction. On the first ballot they stood three for conviction and nine for acquittal. They debated all night. Two did not believe that Mrs. Major died from poison. Six more believed her to have been poisoned but did not believe it to have been proven against Major.

Barnum's chariot girl, who was to have married Donaldson, has entered a convent.

A Philadelphia special says the officers of the law there have received information during the past week that if Westervelt is convicted the boy Charlie Ross will be returned. It is also stated that the prosecution has much important information which they withold for prudential reasons. It is believed that Westervelt will reveal where the parties are who have the child in custody.

The family of Mr. Ross place no reliance in the story from Ypsilanti as to the child said to be found there, he having black eyes, while Charlie Ross' eyes are blue.

The democratic State ticket in New York is headed by John Bigelow, a republican journalist and a historian.

Bostonians of all parties are congratulating themselves over the removal of Postmaster Burt and the appointment of Hon. Edward S. Tobey, a prominent merchant of ability and integrity.

Chirping Democrats.

[Providence Journal.]

Senator and ex-Confederate General Gordon, of Georgia, says that the democrats of Mississippi are beginning to "chirp." And they propose to "chirp" to that extent that the State shall be gained to the democracy. The Senator is fully of the opinion that whenever the democrats make up their minds to it, they can carry any Southern State, "no matter what the negro (republican) majority is." In order to understand what this sort of chirping is, we turn to the Southern accounts of the troubles in one county in the State of Mississippi. In brief, two negroes had registered as voters; it was said by the democrats that they had come from Arkansas for that fraudulent purpose; warrants were issued against them; they took to the woods. They were fired upon; then the pursuers returned to headquarters and declared the negroes perverse. Calls were made for the assembly of the white democracy; and an insurrection of two darkies against the State of Mississippi was proclaimed, large parties of white democrats going in pursuit of the audacious negroes who had so far asserted their civil rights as to prepare themselves to cast legal votes.

Senator Gordon is confident, however, that matters are progressing favorably. He says: "I never saw people more heartily aroused than the Mississippians are." There is a simplicity in the democratic plan which is as effectual as it is attractive. If a colored man offers, according to law, to register his name, get out a warrant for his arrest; if he prefers liberty to a posse of men to arrest, or what is still more congenial to the democratic mind, shoot him. If he demurs to this proceeding, arouse the country, and so frighten all the colored population, that no negro will dare to approach the registration precinct. The democrats can thus, as Senator Gordon says, carry any State, no matter how large is the adverse majority. And this, the General calls "attraction by legitimate influences." Undoubtedly! We once heard of a stalwart farmer who "enticed" a diminutive deputy sheriff out of his meadow by the vigorous use of a pitchfork.

"Who Writ Her?"

[Vicksburg, Miss., Herald.]

He came up stairs at exactly twelve o'clock noon, when all the staff, with one exception, were at dinner. The exception was a young man living in Natchez, here on trial as a reporter, and he was pawing over the exchanges and making himself at home in the editorial room, and waiting to gather his thoughts and write up a thrilling account of a bloody dog fight in the "bottoms."

The "he" who came up stairs was an old chap just the length of a six-foot tape line. He had on a fur cap, his red woolen shirt was open enough to show a breast all covered with ridges and scars, and the sweat was rolling down his cheeks in rivulets. The young man looked up with a sweet smile, and he recognized the visitor as a gentleman residing on the edge of a canebreak down the river, a gentleman who thinks nothing of swimming into a bayou and catching two of the biggest alligators in it and tying their tails in a hard knot—a gentleman who eats soup with a bowie knife, and wipes his mouth with the muzzle of a derringer.

"It's a fine day," remarked the new reporter, as a sickly smile flickered around his ears.

The visitor felt in his pocket, pulled out a daily Herald, and placing one of his big fingers on a marked article on the fourth page, he solemnly and earnestly inquired:

"Who writ her?"

"Yes—ah—less see," mused the young man from Natchez, as he whirled the paper around.

It was one of his first articles; it was a funny article, and the young man offered to bet that it would go the rounds like a prairie fire running across lots. It was an article about "a cross-eyed old moss-back and his freckled-nosed wife," from down the river, sucking lemons on the Court House steps and wandering around town in search of a three-legged door-plate. The young man was even then looking over the exchanges to see if it had been republished yet.

"Y-e-s," he said as he looked up at the stranger.

"You writ her, did ye?" asked the moss-back.

"It wasn't you, of course," gasped the young man—"it was a pale-faced man with white hair and one eye gone."

"Peel!" sighed the stranger, as he unbuttoned his shirt-collar.

"I beg your pardon, sir, but this article doesn't refer to you at all. You are a gentleman, while the other was a regular snipe, and his wife looked like a steamboat explosion!"

"Shuck off!" murmured the man from the cane-brake, as he rolled up his sleeves.

"I can't fight you about this," replied the young man in husky tones—"it doesn't reflect on you in the least, and I'll take my solemn oath to that effect."

"Me an' the ole woman was thar—come out here!" continued the stranger moving the chairs back against the wall.

"My dear sir, let me again assure you that you are not the party referred to. That man was a one-horse man, whom the dogs wouldn't bite, while you are a cultivated gentleman. His wife didn't know enough to cut pork, while your esteemed lady has every grace and accomplishment which a liberal education and refined surroundings can give."

"A squar' fight and no gougin!" whispered the stranger, as he spit on his hands.

"My dear sir, I am consumptive; I can't ——!"

But the moss-back fastened to his coat-collar, lifted him over the table, and what followed no man knows.

When the rest of the staff returned from dinner, one of the young man's boots was on the walk, his suspenders were on the lower landing, and the air was full of hair, buttons, paper collars, pieces of poetry and mutilated postal currency. The young man was lying on a table tied up in a double-bow knot, gasping for breath, and the walls were full of dents and the ceiling was bruised and defaced almost beyond repair.

The Eastern Railroad.

[Boston Herald.]

The Eastern Railroad has [illegible]derful recuperative capacity, and will yet—with good management—rise superior to all its misfortunes. The later troubles of this road have arisen mostly from the greed and jealousy of its stockholders and directors, and rivalry with the competing road to Portland.

The first great mistake made was when the Eastern stockholders, having acquired most of the stock of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth road in 1870, revoked the lease of that road to the Boston and Maine road and re-leased it to the Eastern. This involved a payment of $150,000 to the Boston and Maine road. The old lease was made at 6 per cent. of the $1,500,000 capital of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth road, and this was divided between the two competing roads. The new lease to the Eastern gave to the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth 10 per cent. on the capital stock, or $150,000 per annum. In addition to this, the Eastern undertook to keep the track of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth in repair, which expense, under the former lease, was also divided between the two roads.

The Boston and Maine, practically cut off from its Portland connection, extended its track to that city, and became a still more active and dangerous rival of the Eastern. The latter road, however, with what would have been a stroke of genius if successful, pushed on into Maine, and obtained control of the Maine Central road, which it converted into a feeder of its line in New Hampshire and Massachusetts. This hold on the Maine road, however, soon weakened, and after a couple of years of monopoly the directors of the latter broke the lease with the Eastern and made a new arrangement, by which both it and the Boston and Maine were placed on the same footing as regarded freight and passenger traffic. The lease to the Boston and Maine was given for six years, and was a strong document. In the early part of the present year, at the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Maine Central road, it became apparent that the Eastern road and its friends had acquired a majority of the stock, and when the time of the meeting came controlled the election by putting in a directory favorable to the Eastern and its purposes. But the victory was a barren one, the relations of the Boston and Maine not being materially affected by it.

In an interview with one of the directors of the Eastern road yesterday our reporter was informed that at a meeting on Wednesday the general situation was discussed, and an earnest purpose shown to bring about a new condition of things which would surely enure to the benefit of the stockholders. The competition with the Boston and Maine, it was recognized, had become ruinous to the interests of both roads, and arrangements were nearly completed between them whereby a freight and passenger tariff would be adopted that would ensure to both roads a paying business.

The rumors flying around that the floating debt of the company has been enormous, were, he said, not true. The total floating debt would not exceed $2,190,100. This, if stated officially, would have helped to allay the public rumors and suspicions which have tended to depreciate the stock of the road far below its value.

Mr. James McGraw, mate of Tug Clara Bateman, had a narrow escape from drowning on Sunday. The tug was towing the Appledore landing stage in, assisted by Schooner Mary E. Caswell. Mr. McGraw was in the act of throwing the heaving line to the schooner when the steamer made a sudden lurch, pitching him headlong into the sea. Jim held on to his end of the line and Capt. Rand the other, and after some tugging was hauled on board, declaring if he were to be drowned he wanted it to be in shoaler water and nearer home.

Nathaniel of Texas, who, in consideration of the fact that he arrived home from the Shoals last March one minute too late to deposit his ballot, was allowed to vote first in Ward Seven last week, has not been seen since.

Prof. J. N. Goodall, the astonishing musician, who at the solicitation of many here is to give an exhibition of his ability to-night at Mechanic's Hall, will among other things present several wonderful imitations, and do the feat of performing different tunes on the piano, violin and with his voice at the same time. Harlow's orchestra will play some choice selections. The admission fee is only 25 cents.

Mr. John O. Ayers has purchased the house on Pleasant street recently owned and occupied by Mr. George W. Butler.

Outrage at the Shoals.
[Newmarket Advertiser.]

In December last I was requested to go to the house of John B. Downs, at Gosport, on one of the group of islands known as the Isles of Shoals. At his house Mr. Downs made known to me his troubles and the attempt to commit a high-handed outrage on himself and others. It appears that Mr. Downs was born on the spot and inherited the very valuable property now occupied by himself and family from his father and grandmother. The place, although quite small, has nine well finished and furnished rooms, painted inside and out; a barn, a storehouse, a laundry and fish-house; garden spots with plenty of feed, and hay cut on the long narrow field to well keep a cow; there is also belonging to the place a valuable landing where fishing is carried on by Mr. Downs, as it was by his ancestors, in extent enough to enable Downs to make a good living and to save some money from year to year, as his bank-book, as well as that of Mrs. Downs, now shows. In the last eight weeks Mr. Downs and his son have shared only one hundred and sixty dollars, fish of all kinds being very scarce. He has, some years, gone as high as one thousand dollars. The proprietors of the Oceanic House, when they purchased the island, neglected to purchase the title or property of several parties, Downs being one, considering them of no account, or that they could be crushed at any moment. In December last the crushing process was commenced, under the advice and direction of their counsel, in the shape of a petition for a public highway in Gosport, running so as to take nearly all of the land of Downs and others, their dwellings and outbuildings, and in this way drive these people from their homes, the homes of their fathers and grandfathers, which I consider a high-handed outrage. At the hearing in December a formidable array of legal objections were interposed, which caused them to abandon the project for a time. A petition was presented to the selectmen last week, signed by foreigners, praying the board, composed of Puffer, of Mass., Robinson, of Salisbury, Mass., and Dame, of Methuen, Mass., to lay out a public highway four rods wide, in the form of an irregular ring, commencing and ending at the same point, running all points of compass so as to take not only all, or nearly all of these poor people's land, owned and occupied by them and their ancestors for more than a hundred years, but their dwellings and everything that is near and dear to those old as well as young people. This not being outrage enough, the last day that I was on the island Mr. Poor, the owner of the hotel, had commenced to take the wall down, and to excavate in the cemetery, near the tomb of Rev. Mr. Tuck, whose remains are deposited near the tomb of another reverend on that lonely island so many years since, for the purpose of building a water reservoir for the use of the hotel. The hearing about the road is on Saturday next, the 18th. If they get the road I will write again. HAMPTON.

P. S. I forgot to mention that Poor took down the only schoolhouse on the island, and destroyed every vestige of it a few days since, thus depriving the children of the island of all chance for an education. He also claims the parsonage. The house is rapidly going to decay, evidently helped by intentional hands.

A Health Yielding Stimulant.

It is suicidal for a man to drink ordinary liquor, when he feels weak, to enable him to perform work in hand. The tissue which labor produces is increased ten fold by the debilitating re action of the stimulants of commerce, so that the temporary invigoration is purchased at a fearful cost to health. A stimulant, in order to impart healthful energy, should be medicated. The reason that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are so wonderfully efficacious as a restorative and preventive is that their alcoholic basis of pure Old Rye is mingled with vegetable tonics and alteratives which are the most potent known to medical botanists. Their immediate or stimulative effects is to rouse the dormant energies, and their subsequent operation is to permanently invigorate, through the medium of restored digestion and secretion, the various organs of the body.

—The President is credited with a little joke at the expense of the editorial profession. The people of Vineland, N. J., have been trying to secure the removal of Postmaster Landis, who, it will be remembered, lodged a bullet in Editor Carsmith's brain. The President, upon hearing of the matter, asked Jewell whether there was any irregularity in Mr. Landis' accounts. "Not any," replied the Postmaster-General. "Is the office well conducted?" "No complaint on that score." "Intemperate habits?" "Nothing of the kind charged." "What is the objection?" "The petitioners say he is rather obnoxious, and that a change would be satisfactory." "Well," replied the President, "he doesn't appear to have done anything but shoot an editor, and I don't see how I can remove him on that."

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT"

PANTOSCOPIC

SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they will not injure but preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched or worn.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F. L. B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents.

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

Weak Lungs,
Constipation,
Lameness,
Liver Complaint,
Dyspepsia,
Paralysis,
Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yuurs, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues" "Quinines," that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir.—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a market improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.50, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be sen in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves, and they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended. I have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents. by THOMAS W. LANE agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal, forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or so any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $2,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bondholders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,832,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the humid, trying climate of New England

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Model Boarder.

[Smarty of the Burlington Hawkeye.]

Young Mr. Olendorf is boarding at a nice boarding house on North Hill, a little this side of the North pole. It a good way out, but Mr. Olendorf is fond of pure air and likes to walk, and as his business hours are easy, he prefers the comforts of a home in the suburbs to the excitement and clamor of a down town hotel. A mild looking, meek faced, soft voiced young man is Mr. Olendorf as ever you wish to see. He rarely complained about anything, but he never spoke harshly of any one. He would sit on his trunk when the family had carried his chair down to the parlor for the convenience of invited guests; and he would patiently sew on his shirt buttons with a darning needle and carpet thread, rather than intimate to his washer-lady that it wasn't just the cheese to run fine shirts through a corn sheller to wash them. Many a time he crawled into a bed that looked like the crater of an extinct volcano, rather than report the hired girl for neglecting to make it up. And six times a week he cleaned his grimy lamp chimney with his fingers, as far as they would reach, because he said in the fullness of his charitable soul, the girl had so much to do she hadn't got round to it. And the seventh night in the week, the lamp being empty and dry as a wh—y bottle on a hunting expedition, he would undress by the dim religious light of a match. He used to wash, with a piece of soap four inches long and two inches thick, as brown as varnish and so hard it chipped the edges of the washstand when it was carelessly dropped against them, and often and often when his eyes were full of soap and he reached out his imploring hands, groping for the short, thin towel that was seldom there, he had to feel his way to the bed, abrading his shins against things that he couldn't see and didn't know the names of, and dry his face and hair on his—that is, on the sheets and pillow slips. But he never murmured. He used to find bright streaks of red by the dozen in his pomatum, and go down to the breakfast table with his own black locks as dry as good advice, and marvel at the exceeding glossiness and slickness of the hired girl's bright auburn cranium. But he said never a word. And the drought used to strike his perfumery bottles once in a while and leave them empty as a Boston lecturer's head; he would wind his modest nasal horn in a handkerchief that smelled like a washtub, and when his landlady's daughters sailed scornfully past him, perfumed for all the world like the ghost of his toilet bottles up stairs, he never looked suspicious, but smiled apologetically as though it were wrong in him to leave temptation in their way. And once, when he had an attack of cholera morbus, and sent out for a quart of brandy, and took a tablespoonful of it, and came back at night to find the bottle very empty and the landlady's husband very full, on his bed, the latter with his boots on, young Mr. Olendorf only agreed with the landlady that it was very singular, and that the old man must be ill. So you see Mr. Olendorf was inclined to be rather peaceable and meek, and when he did complain there must be some reason for it.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves, its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No. 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.0 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1875.

News and Notes.

Fremont Moulton of North Hampton had a narrow escape from drowning, while out fishing a few days ago. His boat was struck by a rough sea in such a way that he was thrown overboard. His young brother in the boat could not assist him, and but for Mr. Charles Bell, who was on the shore and came to his rescue, he would have perished.

Miss Betsey Carr of Claremont, a deaf mute, boldly stands up and says she was 104 years old last December.

The popular vote in the recent election in North Carolina for members of the Constitutional convention is stated by the Charlotte Observer to have been as follows: For members opposed to the convention, 100,191; for members desirous of carrying out its objects, 94,987.

Artemas C. Eggleston's house and shed at Charleston were burned on Friday. Loss $1000.

At the adjourned meeting of the creditors of Lee, Shepard & Dillingham, booksellers, Saturday, a compromise was effected by the creditors agreeing to receive seventy cents on a dollar, to be paid in six, twelve and eighteen months without interest.

Louis LaBar of Ashland, while chopping wood, cut one foot nearly off.

Large quantities of meerschaum pipes, silks and kid gloves were seized, Saturday, from passengers on board the steamship Oder at New York. The pipes were found in the linings of several coats which were strapped up so that they would look like bedding.

There have been twelve deaths at Grafton during the past Summer, from diptheria.

The executive committees of both parties in Ohio have issued a joint address to the voters urging them to be sure that their ballots are cast for the constitutional amendment providing for a commission to aid the Supreme Court in disposing of the business in arrear.

Pemberton has sixteen days to prepare for hanging.

The New York Central railroad, on its fast mail line, made the remarkable time of seventy miles an hour. The mile stones looked like a fine-tooth comb, and the engineer had to close the cabin windows in order to keep his breath.

The returns from New Mexico which are now nearly complete, indicate S. B. Elkins' election as delegate by about 1500 majority.

The Richmond Whig wants a double-printed, supply-sinewed, flowing-freely currency. It would not have it six weeks before the ragman would be startling the quiet of the town with the euphonious howl of "Rags, bones and old cur-re-an-cy!"

Secretary Robeson saved Mrs. Gen. Emery from drowning at Long Branch.

The Washington Star thinks that the case of Mr. Pershing, the democratic candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, is somewhat similar to Mr. Thurman's position in Ohio, or to General Spinner's in New York. Personally a hard-money man, he was nominated on an inflation platform, and will sacrifice his own views to party policy.

It is stated there are 10,000 horses sick in New York city of a disease similar to the epizootic.

District Attorney Phelps has requested the Attorney-General of the United States to take action for the arrest and extradition of the murderer Sharkey on his arrival in Jamaica.

Carl Schurz is to make nine speeches in Ohio in favor of hard money.

A man was picked up by a pilot boat last Friday, at sea, floating on a cabin door. He belonged to a schooner, name unknown, from Philadelphia for Boston with iron, which foundered Thursday night with the captain and mate on board.

Mrs. Simon Bordeau, of Suncook, while at work in the Webster mill, on Saturday, the 11th inst., injured her finger so badly that it had to be amputated.

Mrs. Mary P. Brown, living about five miles from Concord, had her pocket relieved of her pocket book, containing a small sum of money and a check for $700, while riding on the cars, Monday evening, between Exeter and Concord. The check was payable by a Boston bank.

Boston parties are effecting arrangements to put a pleasure steamer on Silver Lake, Madison, another season, in connection with a new hotel.

In the Circuit Court at Newport, the following sentences have been imposed: Edward Dean, of Claremont, six years in State Prison for stealing a horse and sleigh; James M. Bowman, of Charlestown, $50 and costs for keeping spirituous liquors for sale.

The batting mill of Jas. P. Todd, New Boston, was burned Saturday. Loss $3,500; insured fully. The fire originated in the picker.

Official returns of the Maine election, received at the Kennebec Journal office from all the cities and towns in the State, except thirty-one, give Connor (rep.) for Governor 57,825; Roberts (dem.) 53,077. Connor's majority, 4775. The places remaining to be heard from last year gave Dingley 77 majority. The Senate will stand 19 republicans, 11 democrats and no choice of one member of the Board in York county. The vacancy will be filled by the legislature, giving a republican majority in the Senate of 9. The House of Representatives is complete with the exception of one district, Bridgton, where there is a tie vote, showing 85 republicans, 63 democrats and 2 independents; republican majority 19. Last year the House stood 89 republicans, 55 democrats and 7 independents. The republicans this year will have 28 majority on joint ballot.

Fuller returns for Governor of California show for Irwin (dem.), 61,525; for Phelps (rep.), 30,922; for Bidwell (ind.), 29,630.

Col. Arthur Ginn has a ten-acre orange grove on Lake Monroe, Fla., which contains 700 trees, yielding from $10,000 to $13,000 per year.

The Circuit Court at Nashua sentenced William Shaw, a tramp, to two years in the State Prison for larceny from cars; Charles D. Shedd, of Merrimac, for larceny, two years; Eugene Eaton, of Manchester, for stealing a cow, three years; Addie Lull, of Manchester, for adultery, eighteen months; Cyrus Warner, of Manchester, was fined $50 for cruelty to oxen.

The second day's races at the Trotting Park are for 2:44 and 2:34 horses, each for a purse of $300. There are seven entries for each race. See advertisement.

A deluded young man attempted to drown himself in Lyndeboro', all for love. While his lady-love went to church, he fled to the pond, but he found the water too shallow and was able to make a hasty retreat. When last seen he was sunning himself on dry ground, though his brain was not fully quieted.

Westervelt was convicted on his own evidence.

Ex-Assistant United States District Attorney Fisher has been arrested charged with stealing appeal bonds and papers from the files of the Criminal Court. Most of the stolen papers have been recovered by the police.

The Circuit Court at Nashua sentenced John Donnovan to eight years in the State Prison for breaking and entering.

A steamship just arrived at Galveston reports the town of Indianola, Texas, almost entirely destroyed. The lighthouse, wharves and nearly every house are swept away, and 100 to 150 lives lost. The steamer could find no place to land her cargo.

A Lunatic Campaign.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

The present campaign in Ohio is in many respects different from any before seen in our history. In every previous contest there has been some pretense at least on each side that the principles it professed and the objects for which it was striving were in accordance with law and common sense, and that its success would be for the general welfare. Hitherto there have always been two sides to a question, and men of sense and character have been able to sustain their party platform in debate with some appearance of logic and self-respect. But there is no pretense of such a state of things in Ohio at this moment. The republican speakers talk to great crowds of the principles of finance and of common honesty established for centuries by the consent of the civilized world. They deal in axioms as indisputable as any elementary rule of arithmetic. They are driven by the lunacy of their opponents to elaborately proving that two and two make four. On the other side these demonstrations are treated with contempt. They cannot be answered, and there is no effort to answer them. The inflation spouters do not waste time in discussing principles. Gov. Allen, with that frank and conceited ignorance of his which has made him the favorite of the most stupid section of the democratic party, does not even care to consider an argument addressed to his intelligence. He roars out, "Don't talk to me about principles or theories. The times are too hard for that. Theories won't fill a working-man's belly." And his crowds answer with rapturous plaudits. In this absurd old man's progress through the State he has made nearly fifty speeches—a prodigious proof of physical strength in one of his age, which is enough to set at rest the fears of the republicans that he may not live through his term. All these speeches have been exactly alike—there is not an argument, not an appeal to honesty or intelligence in one of them. They all resemble the rollicking roaring talk of an ignorant loafer before a bar-room fire, who gives his opinion between drinks on science, religion and government, from the point of view of his own momentary whim, without the slightest regard for law, for fact, or for moral sense. As long as he hears an occasional "That's so, Jake," or "Go for 'em, Billy," his voluble tirade goes on, without a glimmer of coherence or responsibility. Yet this sort of gabble made Mr. Allen Governor of one of the greatest Commonwealths of the Union, and he fully expects to be re-elected by it.

All the talking on his side is of the same amazing kind. It is humiliating to have to mention such a mountebank as Cary, but as he is the principal speaker in this campaign, it becomes a serious matter to consider what possible depth of ignorance and dishonesty he represents. In his speech in Cleveland the other day he said the Government should issue money enough to give every man and woman in the country all the work they wanted at good prices. Nothing so crazy as this was ever uttered in the national ateliers of Paris during the midsummer madness of the days of "Louis." He is also reported as having said at Warren that of course the greenbacks would never be redeemed—that the natural and proper result of inflation would be repudiation. Now it is not strange that such a person as Cary should hold these views. There is no kind of more sense than he in Bedlam who hold similar opinions. But the wonder is that in a great and prosperous State, in a city like Cleveland, which owes its unexampled prosperity to intelligent and honest industry, a creature without personal or social weight to entitle him to propose any sort of novelty, should be listened to and applauded in the utterance of insanities which if accepted and put in action would make a desert of the country.

There is nothing else in this campaign. Mr. Thurman, with his cautious explanations of the platform; Mr. Hendricks, with his feats of equilibrium on the fence, and men of that sort, cut no figure whatever in the fight. All the honors, all the plaudits, all the enthusiasm are for the roaring repudiationists who denounce the bondholder, the man who has lent his money to the Government at low interest, as the robber and plunderer of the people; who encourages the loafer and the tramp to take their living by the strong hand from the wicked fellows who have worked and saved money; and who appeal to honest and ignorant poverty to take counsel of its ignorance and forswear its honesty, on the pretense that it can never be relieved except by the dishonor of the nation. Of course there are thousands of democrats in Ohio and hundreds of thousands in the country, who look upon all this with disgust and abhorrence. But they cannot help hoping that it may gain votes for the party, and they think, with that infatuation which is the besetting sin of respectable people everywhere, that when the victory is once gained by the aid of loafers and blatherskites, they can then step in and reap the peaceable fruits of it. If they are so unfortunate as to elect Allen next month, they can see what success they will have in saddling this wild ass of the prairie.

Frost Bound on Mount Washington.

[Cor. Portland Press.]

Your correspondent was one of the party who, on Friday, Saturday and Sunday last were snow bound—or rather frost bound—on the summit of Mt. Washington. Our experiences were so altogether unique that a brief account may not be without interest to your readers.

On Friday afternoon twenty-two of the Baptist Social Union excursionists left the Crawford House for the Summit. The day had been stormy, yet the promise of the sky and of the weather observers on the mountain, as received by telegraph, was of a pleasant evening. But long ere our ten mile stage ride was ended the storm was renewed, and in the midst of a pouring rain we reached the base of Mt. Washington.

An hour and a half later we had made the ascent by the Mt. Washington railway, only to find ourselves enveloped in a cloud of mist absolutely impenetrable to vision, and driving across the mountain at the rate of fifty miles per hour, the thermometer registering twenty above zero. The hospitable rooms of the Summit House speedily gave our party shelter, though the falling barometer and rising wind gave prophesy that was fully realized. The observations at the government signal station were "Thermometer fifteen above zero, wind 78 miles per hour, N. W." The fog and mist continued, and was rapidly congealing on every object out of doors, covering them with the beautiful frost feathers of which pictures are so common. Seeing was out of the question, locomotion out of doors almost an impossibility; the Glen House stages dared not attempt the descent, and Superintendent Aiken of the railway, refused to allow a train to be run lest the cars be blown from the track. We tried to be resigned; we could do nothing else. Brief—and they were very brief—reconnoisances into the outside fog and gale were made by nearly every one of the party. One gentleman gracefully allowed his "kersey" to take up a winter residence in Tuckerman's Ravine, and another sent his "straw" on an aerial expedition down the mountain. One lady was blown from her feet, and only saved from being dashed over the brow of the mountain by a timely rush to the rescue of two gentlemen who happened to hear her cry for help. Four of the five telegraph wires became useless, and communication by the fifth—the government cable—was suspended for several hours.

The guests at the Summit House numbered in all forty-five, representing fourteen cities, from Bath, Me., to San Francisco, Cal.

The day, however, wore away and shortly after dark the company were electrified by one of the number who came in exclaiming, "the stars are out, the stars are out." And so it proved. Almost in the twinkling of an eye the gale had lulled, the skies had cleared and the moon was shining on a scene of grandeur and beauty seldom witnessed by human eye. While the upper strata of clouds had entirely disappeared, the entire visible surface of the earth from a thousand feet below was mantled with vast masses of vapor. Upon the upper surface of these, the moon, just risen, was shining brightly. No words can describe the beauty of the view, but it is photographed upon the memory of every beholder. Late into the night the party watched with ever increasing delight the matchless scene.

On Saturday morning at half past five we were roused for sunrise; and such a sunrise! The whole mountain top was enveloped in a glory of crimson light, while all below was darkness. The sun rose behind a thin veil of cloud just sufficient to hide his blaze, while every object within the horizon was distinctly visible. With the naked eye the islands of Casco bay could be easily seen and counted, and when, about 9 o'clock the sun shone out unobscured upon the bay and ocean, with small field and opera glasses the vessels in the harbor were distinctly visible, and the spires and domes, and even the houses of Portland could be clearly distinguished. The contrast between the summit of the mountain white with frost and snow, and the green fields of the valley below, was neither the least noticeable nor the least beautiful element of the scene, but the story of the view from Mt. Washington has been too often told to need repetition. At one o'clock Sunday afternoon the embargo was raised; Superintendent Aiken declared the track in safe condition, and we made the descent, satisfied and gratified that our visit to this celebrated outlook had been rewarded with a view such as not one in a thousand of its visitors obtain. We had seen the summer and the winter view from Mount Washington at a single visit.

The Great Eclipse of 1875.

[Rochester Express.]

On the 29th of the present month will occur the most remarkable eclipse of the sun that has taken place in this State since the memorable total eclipse of June 16, 1806. Totality lasted about five minutes or nearly as long as is possible in our latitude. It was the first total eclipse ever submitted to accurate instrumental observations in this country. It will make its fourth return since then in July, 1878, and will be total in Colorado and Texas. There are three kinds of solar eclipses and two of lunar, the former being partial, annular and total, the latter partial and total. The coming eclipse will be annular and total (ring-like,) caused by the moon being too small to cover the entire sun, hence a narrow bright ring will surround the black moon, presenting a sight as beautiful as its occurrence is rare. The eclipse (not the annular phase) first touches the earth at sunrise, in the Atlantic ocean northeast of Bermuda Islands, and leaves it at sunset, in the southern part of Africa. The annular phase, not visible here, first touches the earth at sunrise on the shore of lake Ontario, about three miles northeast of that narrow neck of land separating Sodus Bay from the lake, following the track of the partial phase, and leaves the earth at sunset, on the Island of Madagascar. If a line be drawn on a map, commencing about five miles north of Watertown, through Ticonderoga, to a point five miles south of Portland, Maine, it will nearly represent the northern limit of the annular phase. If parallel to this another line be drawn, commencing five miles north of Ithaca, running about ten miles south of Cortland, five north of Hudson to Duxbury on Cape Cod, it will nearly represent the southern limit of annular phase. The distance between these two lines represents a terrestrial belt about one hundred and ten miles in width. Through the centre of this belt the eclipse will not only be annular, but will also be exactly central, the ring concentric with the sun's centre, and, of course, of equal width all around. On each side of the central line the ring will be eccentricity, increasing until each boundary is passed, when the eclipse ceases to be annular and assumes the appearance of a long, slender crescent. In 1893 this eclipse will occur again, and every eighteen years and about ten days thereafter, every time passing over the earth some sixty miles further south, and will finally pass off the earth at the South Pole, after having appeared seventy-seven times from its first appearance at the North Pole, occupying 1,388 years. After this it will not touch the earth, but will take place in space till after the lapse of 12,492 years, when it will touch the earth again at the North Pole as before, to repeat the same cycle over and over again forever.

The Intelligent Speaks.

[A Cairo Cordwainer.]

The —— printer is constantly getting editors in trouble. Who ever heard of an editor making an error during his whole editorial career? No one. The merchant swears at the printer; so does the occasional correspondent humbug, who writes about the "people," "sovereignty" "commonwealths," "burden of taxes," tyranny," etc.; so does that cheerful hieroglyphical prodigy, the associated press agent; and those intolerable frauds, the poetess and poet of the city; the man whose friends desire that he should be mayor; the individual who received a benefit and a stuffed watch for his brilliant talent, and in his card of thanks used the glittering commonplace, the antiquated and excessively vain pronoun "I" thus "i;" in fact the printer gets bounced on all sides. The —— printer, who rummages after unintelligible pieces of metal, who corrects, on an average, about fifteen villainous errors an hour in common words, such as traveller, jailer, hypocrisy, fulfill, holiday, gauge, separate, alleged, fetid, judgment, skillful, counselor, impanel and many other simple ones, and makes probably one blunder in five thousand words, is frequently asked to step down and out. No wonder he feels savage, and drinks whisky and beer, and talks about the ignorance of aristocrats, the middle classes, and all other classes, and about his last trip down the Mississippi in a skiff; and gets in jail, and bounces trains and is bounced off again, and beats steamboats, and receives small donations from his friends and cusses Texas. He's a persecuted institution, and should be treated with distinguished consideration.

Singular Fate of a Mocking Bird.

[Jacksonville (Fla.) Union, Aug. 14.]

A mocking bird, an exquisite warbler, owned by Colonel J. E. Elliott, came to his death in a singular manner on Thursday afternoon last. On that day, after the Colonel had listened to the melodious notes for some time, he retired to his room for the purpose of writing. Having finished his labors he again thought of his pet, and went out on the piazza, intending to feed it. Upon taking down the cage he was shocked and grieved to find the unfortunate little songster lying upon its back on the bottom, its breast and neck (from which the feathers had been plucked) all torn, and its head twisted completely from its natural position. A lady who resides in an adjoining house explained the mystery. She, while sitting upon her piazza, noticed a bird very much resembling a mocking bird, flying around and occasionally alighting upon the cage, as if wishing to hold communication with the other. Suddenly as "Pet" came near the bars, the stranger dashed forward his claws, caught its little victim by the breast, seized the neck with its strong bill, and suddenly letting go its hold on the cage, revolved round with lightning rapidity, by which means the poor inmate's neck was wrung, as is a fat chicken's by a kitchen scullion. Both the Colonel and his lady were very much attached to little "Pet," as they had named it. The other bird belonged, to a species known as the "loggerhead," and it is not a very generally known fact that they invariably attack mocking birds when in their vicinity, and always in the manner described.

Unadorned Adornment.

The Providence Journal remarks that once in a while there mingles with a multitude of useless modes a fashion that commends itself to all sensible people. Such an one is the revival of calicoes for common wear. Madame Thiers sets the French fashions, since the dethronement of the Empress Eugenie, and she is responsible for their restoration to the fashionable world. We hope the wearing of calicoes will meet with universal favor among the leaders of American fashions. If ladies, as they freely confess, dress to please gentlemen, we should like to find one of those masculine critics who would not give his unqualified approval to a morning dress of print or cambric, fresh from the laundry, fitted to the figure, with immaculate white linen collar and cuffs the sole adornment, and without a single flounce or furbelow to detract from the simplicity. Pretty women never look prettier than when clothed in such simple attire for morning wear.

An Elephant Story.

[Letter from Bishop Wilson.]

Tell my grandchildren that an elephant here had a disease in his eyes. For three days he had been completely blind. His owner, an engineer officer, asked my dear Dr. Webb if he could do anything to relieve the poor animal. The doctor said he would try the nitrate of silver, which was a remedy commonly applied to similar disease in the human eye. The large animal was ordered to lie down, and at first, on the application of the remedy, raised a most extraordinary roar at the acute pain which it occasioned. The effect, however was wonderful. The eye was in a manner restored, and the animal could partially see. The next day, when he was brought and heard the doctor's voice, he lay down of himself, placed his enormous head on one side, curled up his trunk, drew in his breath just like a man about to endure an operation, gave a sigh of relief when it was over, and then, by trunk and gesture, evidently wished to express his gratitude.

—The Grand Duke Alexis, son of the Czar, is just divorced. His wife was a German maid of honor, for whom the Empress had a great affection. She was not pretty, I am told, but extraordinarily graceful, and possessed of that fascination which is a better gift than beauty. So the Grand Duke fell over head and ears in love, and the lady confiding in her mistress' affection undertook to break the news. It was done, and a few hours after the lady found herself travelling at express speed toward the frontier, while the Prince received orders to join his ship. Thus they were separated for awhile.

But it is hard to control a prince, harder to rule a sailor; and a sailor prince in love must be worse to hold than quicksilver. The Grand Duke ran away, of course, found the lady, and married her at a village church in Germany. Thence they came to America, where for two years they dwelt in perfect happiness. The Czar, it is said, would not forgive, nor would the Prince humble himself. But the Empress interposed at length, both for her son and her ex-maid of honor. And so, after a time, a reconciliation took place. This week the solemnities of the divorce are all completed; the Grand Duke enters the army, and his widow receives a pension. Seeing she is but twenty-one, she has time for more romantic adventures, but greater she can scarcely hope for.

—The San Francisco correspondent of the New York Times gives the following anecdote relating to the late Mr. Ralston: When the question of locks for the Palace Hotel was under discussion, one day a very plain, common-looking man presented himself and asked if he was addressing Mr. Ralston, and, being answered in the affirmative, said: "I hear you want locks for the hotel. I am a locksmith and can make them for you." Mr. Ralston, looking up, said, in his quick, sharp way: "I want 4000 locks, no two alike, no one key to open another lock, and three extra keys for each lock—16,000 in all; and I want them in three months." "All right; I can do the job." "Have you any means to carry out the contract?" "Not a cent." "Then how do you expect to be able to take it?" "I expect you to lend me the money." Mr. Ralston looked at the man, gave him one searching glance, and, seeing in him the right stuff, said: "All right; I'll do it. Come here to-morrow morning, sign the contract and get the money." The man carried out the contract to the letter.

—Mr. Jay Gould's plan for buying Pacific Mail stock cheap, by causing it to be rumored that he and his chums in the direction are going to gut the company, is ingenious but not original. The chimney-sweep in Punch can claim priority of invention. Crusted with soot from head to feet, that enterprising speculator entered the pastry-cook's shop, made up his mind which of the pies would suit him and plunged his dirty finger in it; asking, with the innocence of an inquiry for the quotation of the Pacific Mail, "How much for this here damaged tart?"—N. Y. World.

—"How is it," said a woman to her husband, "that you can't come home nights in some kind of season?" "You got me into the way of it," was his gentle retort. "Before we were married you used to throw your arms about my neck at three o'clock and say, "Don't go, darling, it is early yet." but now if I happen to stay out till twelve it is a terrible affair."

—A Cincinnati corpse arose in its coffin and quietly remarked: "I feel very queer." The two young men who were sitting up with it had important business down-town the next moment, and did not hesitate to pass out through the window to attend to it, either.

Lippincott's Magazine for October presents a striking variety of the most attractive features of magazine literature. The number opens with an interesting illustrated article, entitled "Wanderings with Virgil," in which the historic and classic associations of the shores of the Mediterranean are made the theme of light and agreeable discussion. This is followed by another illustrated sketch, "The Ocklawaha in May," by Sidney Lanier, the poet, whose delicate fancy and fine descriptive powers have found a suitable theme in the scenery of the most beautiful river of Florida.

Wendell's mare Nettie, was, with the mare thrown heavily to the ground, but fortunately neither driver nor horse was seriously injured. Nettie was third in first heat, but did not show so well after her fall. The 2:38 trot was won by Eva, of Lowell, in 2:41 1-4, 2:44, 2:44, Fleetwing second, Paul Britton third. The judges declared the second heat no heat for collusions among the drivers and foul driving.

Burning of Col. Waterman Smith's House.

[Cor. Manchester Mirror.]

Your readers are familiar with all the details of the burning of Col. Waterman Smith's residence the fourth of last July, but some singular facts having reference thereto may be of some interest now.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have three married daughters, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Currier, whose home is in California, and Mrs. Hale. After the fire, they received from Mrs. Currier a letter which, at least, must be pronounced a startling coincidence. Mrs. Currier is a person of clear judgment, inclined to question anything supernatural and disbelieving in signs. For three nights previous to the burning of her father's house—which, by the way, she had never seen—she was troubled with strange dreams all pointing toward some disaster to her family. On Sunday morning she told her husband that she was convinced that her father's house was burned and related to him the following dream: She saw the house distinctly and each separate room; she saw two men masked, kindling a fire by the aid of chemicals; she perceived her father in difficulty, but could not define it, became aware of her mother's escape and saw the house in flames. The dream was singularly distinct and real, and most startling from the perfect view of the house in every detail which she could only have known by descriptions in letters. She told her dream again at breakfast and was so firmly convinced of its truth that she waited in the greatest anxiety for confirmation, which soon reached them by telegraph.

Mrs. Hale, with her two younger sisters in Jamaica Plains, met with an experience no less remarkable. The news of the disaster did not reach them until Monday morning, as they had been away all day Sunday. When it came it was only the crude, unsatisfactory report of the telegraphic dispatch, containing the bare statement of the fire and the assurance of their parents' safety, with no particulars. Mrs. Hale allowed herself to be persuaded by a friend at her house to visit immediately a clairvoyant and question her as to the events of the fire, to see how her story would accord with the particulars when they received them. They went together to the house of the clairvoyant, who, on seeing Mrs. Hale, informed her that she knew what she wanted but was unable to help her; but directed her to a man of stronger power than herself, who would assist her. On reaching him, Mrs. Hale simply informed him that she was in trouble and requested his help. On going into a trance he spoke in the favorite Indian dialect and immediately commenced to call a dog, or rather two dogs, whistling, snapping, and then lamenting that they could not come—they were dying, poisoned—and in fact two dogs of Mr. Smith's had recently met with this fate.

Then he described two men searching about a post for the key of the barn in order to get some hay to set fire to the house, but the place of the key was changed and they were unable to find it. (In connection with this fact Mr. Smith states that before the poisoning of the dogs he had kept the key hanging on a nail in a post near the barn, but that after this he had buried it in the earth and the change was known to no one else, as he had never mentioned it.) The men, being unsuccessful, went into the house, and, with the aid of tar, the odor of which will be remembered was perceived by both Mr. and Mrs. Smith, set fire to the house. The clairvoyant describes them masked, one a dark man, looking very much like an Indian, but distinctly states that he was not; the other a big, burly, light-haired ruffian, both men belonging in Manchester. He then describes Mr. Smith as stealing along the entry, smelling the fire and in the act of descending the stairs; says he was stunned by a man standing behind him, but is not sure of the means. The man escaped through the window, he says, the other through the door down stairs. He reports Mr. Smith as much injured and still unconscious, but assures her of his safety and recovery. He then commenced to wring his hands and walk about the room in agony, illustrative of the suffering of Mrs. Smith, and at last gave a sign of relief and exclaimed: "There! she has jumped from the window, she is saved." Being questioned as to the men, he said he could give the names but would rather not, and Mrs. Hale, being naturally of an extremely nervous and excitable nature, was so much overcome by the disclosure that she was unable to question him further.

The circumstances, so far as known, coincide in a most startling manner with the statement of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. The story of the masked incendiaries, so wonderfully the same in the dream of Mrs. Currier in California and the revelation of the clairvoyant in Boston, even the most sceptical must pronounce a rare coincidence, while it will be eagerly seized by believers in spiritual manifestations as another wonderful and convincing proof to substantiate their pet theories. And now, as oft as a North Hill man comes home, the wife of his bosom puts her arms around his neck and rubs her downy cheek against his face, in all apparent innocence and affection; but if his cheek is smoother than when he went away from home in the morning she fans him with the rolling pin until he has to wear his hat on whichever lump it will fit best.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty of finish, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. For people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.
Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz, a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured expressly for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratch ed.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F. L. B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

—— FOR ——

Weak Lungs, Constipation, Lameness, Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Paralysis, Poor Blood and Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one-half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. C. PARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 5, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The second dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.

ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section.

MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.

A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills, and them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents. by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city, or shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH,
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of each $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $30, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the humid trying climate of New England.

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

The Republicans and the Currency.

[Salem Gazette.]

The original issue of greenbacks was an absolute necessity, arising from the very exceptional condition of things which led to the measure. It could not possibly have been avoided by any party determined to sustain the government, and maintain the only appliances by which the government could be sustained. We had a large army in the field, composed of men withdrawn from the active and productive industries. Their services were patriotic and valuable; but they were converted into a nonproducing class. These men were taken out from among the producers and put into a position where they were to be paid for a life of idleness, which word we use in a politico-economical sense and not with its objectional meaning. Their new position, in addition to the fact that they were to be paid for producing nothing, was one of great and exceptional waste. They were provided with clothes and were fed at the government's expense. Every battle and every army appliance was suggestive of waste. This waste it was necessary to meet by increased production at a time when there were fewer men to produce; and consequently everything rose in value. The government became an immense purchaser and was obliged to pay very high prices in common with all other purchasers. The people did not have money enough and neither did the government, which, in plain English, could not meet its obligations under the very rare and exceptional condition of things which prevailed. There was but one thing to be done, and that was to issue bonds and promises, the promises to be put into circulation to make the debt float and at the same time afford relief to the people. There was no other way; and at the time these measures were taken by the government in its hour of financial extremity, there were but few of any party friendly to the country's cause, who considered the measure otherwise than a necessary one. It was not put forward by the republican administration as a proper principle on which to base a nation's finances, nor was it accepted by the democrats in any such light. It was a simple expedient for an hour of extremity, the exact consequences of which could not be foretold, and with the moral certainty that it would require years before the country could work back to its normal condition as regards its currency, when the ordinary relations of gold and paper would be restored. It may therefore be undeniably asserted that the issue of greenbacks by a republican administration, cannot be cited, either fairly or logically, as evidence that republicans do not favor a specie basis.

The assertion, direct or implied, that the democrats could have done any better, or will do any better than the republicans have done or will do, in raising the gold value of the government's paper promises, may be all natural enough as a strained partisan effort to carry an election; but not a single particle of evidence is advanced to show the truth or probability of any such assertion, nor has a single method been pointed out by that party to show how such a result can be brought about. We are favored with plenty of truthful generalities about the great value of restored confidence, but not a single measure is mapped out showing how to restore the confidence. The "hard money" republicans do not claim that they can put the currency at par on any particular day, but they do believe in resisting that spirit of inflation which is ready to put new promises afloat upon the avowed belief that specie payments are not desirable, and thus maintaining that relation between the two classes of circulating medium that will allow of specie resumption at the earliest practicable moment when the natural laws of supply and demand and restored confidence among business men, will allow it to be done.

Partial Suppression of Polygamy.

[Salt Lake Tribune.]

Returning from the President's, where he had been taking counsel, the old man remarked:

"Samantha Hanner, to-morrow I shall be re-baptized and join the Order, and the President says he will give me a young wife to console me in old age, who will be a great assistance to you. Samantha, in doing the housework and—"

"You'll take a young wife, will you, you old Mountain Meadows murdering mullet-head, after me a-slavin' for you these thirty years? You'll give old Brigham all our property, that I've worked as hard for as you have; you'll get baptized and anointed, will you? I'll anoint you."

And straightway she "laid on hands" and anointed his shining pate with the business end of a potato-masher, till in his agony he shouted:

"Let up Samantha dear, oh, do let up! I'll never take another wife (Helen Blazes). I'll never join the Order (ouch)."

—They have a mad lot in the Cincinnati workhouse. Dr. Quesner held a red-hot iron near a patient to see if he were mad, and whether he was or not he got pretty mad when the iron was applied, and when the commissioners heard of it they got mad and discharged the doctor, and now he is mad.

—A charred shingle fell over a bird's nest in Ingleside, Mass., while a building was burning close by, and some young sparrows were thus protected, although the heat was intense enough to destroy the leaves on the tree.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 23, 1875.

News and Notes.

Describing what John Bull drinks, Mr. Horace White says excessive moisture and a cold climate are more convenient than philosophical as reasons to explain why the Englishman is addicted to sherry, brandy and stout, while the Frenchmen, German and Italian are content with sweetened water, light wines and thin beer. In America, it is thought that drinking seems to be rather perfunctionary than enjoyable—rather in the way of boisterous politeness and good-fellowship than as a means of assuaging thirst. With an Englishman, drinking seems to be a matter of "true inwardness." He drinks because he likes the liquor and its effects. If a man must burn his stomach with alcohol, it seems more reasonable that he should do so because he likes it than because he doesn't.

Says the Telegraph: "Guilty but not proved," is the most charitable construction that can be put upon the disagreement of the jury in the Major case. The conviction is clear in the minds of those most used to sifting evidence and analyzing human motives that Major is not only guilty of poisoning his own wife, but is also guilty of poisoning his wife's sister. Facts known to a few, and which will undoubtedly be brought out at the next trial, will leave no reasonable doubt of the main charge. To minds that can discriminate between the testimony of a deeply guilty man and that of a dozen witnesses with no motive to tell anything but the truth, there is no doubt now. If conviction cannot be obtained in this case the Attorney-General may well consider the uselessness of trying the other five capital cases that he has on his hands, and the legislature may well consider the expediency of abolishing capital punishment, or at least making imprisonment for life a discretionary punishment for murder in the first degree.

Postmaster Burt is in Washington trying to save his official head, with a fair prospect of success.

The terrible storm that recently visited the Texas coast exceeded in violence any ever known there.

The President does not tear the triumph of inflation at the Fall elections, nor does he anticipate that even the success of that doctrine could affect the legislation of Congress for two years to come. He will veto any act for the repeal of the law providing for resumption in 1879, and thinks that a two-thirds vote against the veto cannot be secured in either the Senate or House.

It is evident that were the democrats to conduct the next National campaign on the issue of inflation, old party lines would be of little account. So unswerving a party paper as the Troy Times says: "It is intimated that there is a possibility of a reorganization of parties, growing out of the currency issue, previous to the Presidential election next year. There can be no doubt that many people are contemplating the possibility of such an event. Thousands of thoughtful, intelligent men, both democrats and republicans, would willingly ignore partisan names and prejudices, and former political affiliations, rather than consent to the subordination of the financial question to any other matter that can be involved."

The inflation organs do not give the hard money democratic platform of New York a very kindly reception. The Cincinnati Enquirer announces that the Convention was "captured, bound hand and foot, and carried into camp by the sharks of Wall street," and added "The New York democratic State Convention may do or say what it chooses, but the democratic masses—the people of the Empire State, both democrats and republicans—are for the issue of more money, and for that issue being in legal-tenders." The St. Louis Times says the "batch of words about the sacredness of the national debt is mere stuff." The Evansville (Ind.) Courier says the platform is contemptible, that Gov. Tilden can never be elected President upon one like it, and that the "National democratic platform will certainly reaffirm the platform of the Ohio democracy, and the dominee will as certainly be a man who may be relied upon not to veto any bill upon this subject which may be passed by a democratic Congress."

The Patriot and other organs are trying to make a point against Gen. Head because he has obtained a decree from the Probate court confirming his name as Natt Head. After the example of Gov. Weston and his counsel in snuffing out the rights of 3771 voters who honestly cast their ballots for "Natt Head," and after the endorsement of the atrocious act by the entire democratic press of the State, Gen. Head was in duty bound to protect himself and his supporters from a recurrence of the outrage if any legal formalities would furnish such protection. As the case stood, unscrupulous democratic moderators might and probably would throw out his votes should they be printed either "Natt" or "Nathaniel." If "Natt," they would say that is not his full name; if "Nathaniel," that he says his own name is "Natt." The Probate court has now confirmed his name as "Natt," the only name by which he has been publicly known for twenty years. Luckily it is no longer in the power of Gov. Weston or any member of his council to rob the voters of the Second district of their vote for Senator in 1876. Such an opportunity comes to a man only once in a lifetime. After that comes political death.—Nashua Telegraph.

The town of Indianola, Texas, was almost entirely destroyed by the cyclone. The lighthouse, wharves, business houses and dwellings were broken to pieces or swept away. There are only three houses remaining which are not damaged. The telegraph office is gone, the signal office damaged and the telegraph lines are down for miles. Railroads are washed away, and houses, fences and trees are piled up in broken masses in the streets. The reports of loss of life are conflicting, but all agree that there were from one hundred to one hundred and fifty lives lost. On account of the great excitement it was impossible to ascertain the correct number.

The Haverhill Bulletin has changed hands, A. J. Hoyt, the former proprietor, having sold out to Messrs. Mitchell & Hoyt, two attaches of the establishment.

The Portsmouth Baptist Association held its annual session with the Baptist Churches in Hampton Falls and Seabrook, September 15th and 16th. Rev. N. Hooper of Exeter was chosen moderator, and William Hurlin, of Plaistow, clerk and treasurer. The opening sermon was preached by Rev. William Hurlin of Plaistow. Other sermons were preached by Rev. M. B. Loring of Stratham, Rev. M. S. McKenzie of Boston, Mass., and Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., of Portsmouth. Forty-one baptisms were reported. The fourteen churches are supplied with faithful ministers, and they commence a new year with encouraging prospects.

The disease among horses so prevalent in New York is not so severe as the late epizootic. The horses first began to sneeze and cough. Every horse in the stable of one of the street Railroad Companies was more or less affected with a cough, which in some cases was very severe, and frequent mustard poultices were immediately applied to their heads and chests. This treatment proved so effective that the horses were enabled to resume their work without any injury. A doctor says the disease is attributed to the sudden change of the weather. The animals eat their food the same as ever, and it is believed they will be perfectly recovered as soon as the weather grows milder. The complaint is merely a combination of cold and slight inflation of the bronchial tubes. The proprietors of many of the private stables who were called upon also said that the horses have been more or less affected with cold and sore throats.

As Mr. H. E. Ryder, a farmer living at Dunbarton, was engaged in feeding his stock, a hen became frightened and flew off her roost, upsetting a lantern and setting fire to the hay. Immediately the barn was ablaze, and soon communicated to the L and two-story house adjoining. Nothing was saved but the live stock. The loss will reach $4500. Insured in the Hartford for $3500.

THE OCKLAWAHA IN MAY.

[Lippincott's for October.]

For a perfect journey God gave us a perfect day. The little Ocklawaha steamboat Marion—a steamboat which is like nothing in the world so much as a Pensacola gopher with a preposterously exaggerated back—had started from Palatka some hours before daylight, having taken on her passengers the night previous; and by seven o'clock of such a May morning as no words could describe, unless words were themselves May mornings, we had made the twenty-five miles up to the St. John's to where the Ocklawaha flows into the stream nearly opposite Welaka.

Just before entering the mouth of the river our little gopher-boat scrambled alongside a long raft of pine logs which had been brought in separate sections down the Ocklawaha, and took off the lumbermen, to carry them back up the stream for another descent, while this raft was being towed by a tug to Jacksonville.

That man who is now stepping from the wet logs to the bow-guards of the Marion, how can he ever cut down a tree? He is a slim, melancholy native, and there is not bone enough in his whole body to make the left leg of a good English coal-heaver; moreover, ee does not seem to have the least suspicion that a man needs grooming. He is disheveled and wry-trussed to the last degree; his poor weasel jaws nearly touch their inner sides as they suck at the acrid ashes in his dreadful pipe; and there is no single filament of either his hair or his beard that does not look sourly and at wild angles upon its neighbor filament. His eyes are viscidly unquiet; his nose is merely dreariness come to a point; the corners of his mouth are pendulous with that sort of suffering which involves no particular heroism, such as gnats, or waiting for the cornbread to get done, or being out of tobacco; and his— But, poor devil! I withdraw all that has been said; he has a right to look disheveled and sorrowful; for listen: "Well, sir," he says, with a dilute smile as he wearily leans his arm against the low deck and settles himself so, though there are a dozen vacant chairs in reach, "ef we didn't have ther sentermentalest rain right thar on them logs last night, I'll be dadbusted!" He had been in it all night.

I fell to speculating on his word sentermental, wondering by what vague associations with the idea of "centre"—e. g., a centre-shot, perhaps, as a shot which beats all other shots—he had arrived at such a form of expletive, or, rather, intensive.

But not long, for presently we rounded the raft, abandoned the broad and garish highway of the St. John's, and turned off to the right into the narrow lane of the Ocklawaha, the sweetest water-lane in the world—a lane which runs for a hundred miles of pure delight betwixt hedgerows of oaks and cypresses and palms and magnolias and mosses and manifold vine-growths; a lane clean to travel along, for there is never a speck of dust in it, save the blue dust and gold dust which the wind blows out of the flags and the lillies; a lane which is as if a typical woods-ramble had taken shape, and as if God had turned into water and trees the recollection of some meditative stroll through the lonely seclusions of His own soul.

As we advanced up the stream our wee craft seemed to emit her steam in more leisurely whiffs, as one puffs one's cigar in a contemplative walk through the forest. Dick, the poleman—a man of marvelous fine function when we shall presently come to the short narrow curves—lay asleep on the guards, in great peril of rolling into the river over the three inches that intervened between his length and the edge; the people of the boat moved not, spoke not; the white crane, the curlew, the limpkin, the heron, the water-turkey were scarcely disturbed in their several avocations as we passed, and seemed quickly to persuade themselves after each momentary excitement of our gliding by that we were really after all, no monster, but only a mere day-dream of a monster. The stream, which in its broader stretches reflected the sky so perfectly that it seemed a ribbon of heaven bound in lovely doublings upon the breast of the land, now began to narrow; the blue of heaven disappeared, and the green of the overleaning trees assumed its place. The lucent current lost all semblance of water. It was simply a distillation of many-shaded foliages smoothly sweeping along beneath us. It was green trees fluent. One felt that a subtle amalgamation and mutual give-and-take had been effected between the natures of water and of leaves. A certain sense of pellucidness seemed to breathe coolly out of the woods on either side of us, while the glassy dream of a forest over which we sailed appeared to send up exhalations of balms and stimulant pungencies and odors.

"Look at that snake in the water!" said a gentleman as we sat on deck with the engineer, just come up from his water.

The engineer smiled. "Sir, it is a water-turkey," he said gently.

The water turkey is the most preposterous bird within the range of ornithology. He is not a bird; he is a Neck, with such appurtenances and hereditaments thereunto appertaining as seem necessary to that end. He has just enough stomach to arrange nourishment for his Neck, just enough wings to fly painfully along with his Neck, and just enough legs to keep his Neck from dragging on the ground; and as if his Neck were not already pronounced enough by reason of its size, it is further accentuated by the circumstance that it is light-colored, while the rest of him is dark.

When the water-turkey saw us he jumped up on a limb and stared. Then suddenly he dropped into the water, sank like a leaden ball out of sight, and made us think he was certainly drowned, when presently the tip of his beak appeared, then the length of his neck lay along the surface of the water, and in this position, with his body submerged, he shot out his neck, drew it back, wriggled it, twisted it, twiddled it, and spirally poked it into the east, the west, the north and the south with a violence of involution and a contortionary energy that made one think in the same breath of cork-screws and of lightning.

But what nonsense! All that labor and perilous asphyxiation for a beggarly sprat or a couple of inches of water-snake! Yet I make no doubt this same water-turkey would have thought us as absurd as we him if he could have seen us taking our breakfast a few minutes later. For as we sat there, some half dozen men at table in the small cabin, all that sombre melancholy which comes over the average American citizen at his meals descended upon us. No man talked after the first two or three feeble sparks of conversation had gone out; each of us could hear the other crunching his bread in faucibus, and the noise thereof seemed to me in the ghastly stillness like the noise of earthquakes and of crashing worlds. Even our furtive glances toward each other's plates were presently awed down to a sullen gazing of each in his own; the silence increased, the noises became intolerable, a cold sweat broke out over me. I felt myself growing insane, and rushed out to the deck with a sigh as of one saved from a dreadful death by social suffocation.

There is a certain position a man can assume on board the Marion which constitutes an attitude of perfect rest, and leaves one's body in such blessed ease that one's soul receives the heavenly influences of the voyage absolutely without physical impediment. Know, therefore, tired friends that shall hereafter ride up the Ocklawaha—whose name I would fain call Legion—that if you will place a chair just in the narrow passage-way which runs alongside the cabin, at the point where this passage-way descends by a step to the open space in front of the pilot house, on the left-hand side as you face the bow, you will, as you sit down in your chair, perceive a certain slope in the railing where it descends by a gentle angle of some thirty degrees to accommodate itself to the step just mentioned; and this slope should be in such a position that your left leg unconsciously stretches itself along the same by the pure insinuating solicitations of the fitness of things, and straightway dreams itself off into Elysian tranquility. You should then tip your chair in a slightly diagonal direction back to the side of the cabin, so that your head will rest there-against, your right arm will hang over the chair-back, and your left arm will repose along the level railing. I might go further and arrange your right leg, but upon reflection I will give no specific instructions for it, because I am disposed to be liberal in this matter, and to leave some gracious scope for personal idiosyncrasies, as well as a margin of allowance for the accidents of time and place. Dispose, therefore, your right leg as your own heart may suggest, or as all the precedent forces of time and of the universe may have combined to require you.

Having secured this attitude, open wide the eyes of your body and soul; repulse with heavenly suavity the conversational advances of the natty drummer who fancies he might possibly sell you a bill of white goods and notions, as well as the far-off inquiries of the real-estate person, who has his little private theory that you desire to purchase a site for an orange grove; thus sail, sail, sail, through the cypresses, through the vines, through the May day, through the floating suggestions of the unutterable that come up, that sink down, that waver and sway hither and thither; so shall you have revelations of rest, and so shall your heart for ever afterward interpret Ocklawaha to mean repose.

Company I.

[Lake Village Times.]

Yes, Henry, most assuredly we will be there.

When "the boys" rally at Manchester in October, you will see us parading up Elm street, with forty rounds of doughnuts in our haversack and three days' rations of "double thick" in our pockets.

Around the camp-fires will be revived reminiscences of battles, marches, camp and bivouac. Songs and genial mirth will rule the hour. Somewhere in the line of eighteen regiments we will find the familiar faces of "Joe Hooker's Pet Lambs," the glorious old Second—and among them we shall seek for our own little band, the boys of Company I.

How proud we had reason to be of that old company. Of what fine material it was composed, you and I, Henry, are modest, but shining examples. 'Twere a greater station to have been a private in that company than to have commanded in many regiments. How vividly the old faces are brought to mind at the prospect of reunion, while memory recalls scenes and incidents in its career, a strange commingling of the mirthful and the sad. We know pretty nearly who will be there. Let the roll be called:

PILLSBURY—Come hither and tell us of your wild charge with the Excelsior Brigade at Fair Oaks.

GLEASON—Let us see the familiar twitch of that oscillating nose once more, and prepare to explain philosophically why "the gol-darned thing bust" at Bull Run.

BILL RAMSDELL, old chum and companion—Would it not be a good time now to tell the entire story about those fence boards of Murphy's at Point Lookout? Perhaps we could give Gen. Marston an insight into matters which have hitherto seemed dark and "mysterious."

DEMOND—Ye murthering black-guard wid the nimble heels—av yees don't come down there'll be no fun at all. Come now, tell the crowd how the divil took the rint of your "knipersack" at Gettsyburg. None of yer blarney, mind!

GUNNISON—It will be of no earthly benefit to us now, but we would really like to know how you used to pass the guard at night when you were drinking up old Posey's persimmon brandy, and courting old Posey's daughter on the strength of being a rebel spy.

DICKEY—Tell us how you "kicked the stuffing" out of the imprudent Reb. who shot you at Groveton. If your legs had been as long as ours when you made that flying leap their sweep would have driven that unfortunate fellow half way to Yokohama by the underground route.

HOUSE—You will please give us the pitch, and we will "sound the jaffee office more, with old time spirit.

So let the roll be called, as the Orderly used to call it, from "Appleton" to "Woods." We might tell, perhaps, of our experience as the boss forager of the company. If there was any one branch of military art in which we displayed consummate genius, it was the dexterity with which we could go through a corn field, or a sweet potato patch. We believed in living upon the enemy's resources, especially when their resources supplied milk and honey and our commissary department nothing but musty poke and inhabited bread. Sheridan has told us, privately, that if we had been with him in the Shenondoah, there would have been no need to have issued his famous order in regard to devastating the Valley.

But when we "call the battle roll anew," how many who will never, never answer to their names. How that select hundred was thinned by disease and the bullet. Now a skirmish, and one or two familiar faces ever after missing from the line; then a comrade dying by the way of fever or malaria; and those great harvests of the dread reaper when the whirlwind struck as at Manassas, at Gettysburg and in many other historic fields. First review in fancy the old company line as it formed in the ropewalks at Portsmouth, then as it emerged from the trenches at Cold Harbor, at the end of three years' service with the Army of the Potomac.

Ah, Henry, it was a sad list—the boys who had fallen from the line.

With the meeting of the living will come with new force the memory of the dead. Poor Harvy Holt, our first victim, strangely killed by the premature explosion of a shell from one of our own guns, and Henry Morse, who followed but a few minutes after—both tentmates of ours, two out of six. And jovial, ruddy faced John Brown, dying upon his gory stretcher at Fair Oaks.

You cannot forget our quartette and how they sang their sweet songs in bivouac at Blackburn's Ford. It was their last free concert. The next day the shadow of death fell upon our singers, for Frank Robinson and Charlie Smiley lay dead upon the field of the Second Bull Run.

And that great harvest of Gettysburg. Capt. Joe Hubbard, model of manly beauty, wandering aimless into the rebel lines with a bullet lodged in his brain; Lieut. Charlie Vickery, clinging to the hope that his wounds were not mortal; Steve Palmer, with both feet crushed and a wrist shattered; Tibbetts, the 17th recruit, who talked politics, and was almost the first to fall; Charlie Parrott, whose boast that no Reb. bullet had been cast for him was sadly proved unfounded; Charlie Howard, with the peach-bloom on his youthful cheek. It was a sad inroad, taken with the wounded, into a company that took but thirty men into the fight. And Gordon, and Rod. Manning, and Nich. Biglin, and Will. Morgrage, and all the others, they will be remembered by their old comrades in our hours of reunion.

There must be a grand rally of the boys in October. Then, surrounded by peace, comfort and plenty, we will revive the memories of the times that tried men's souls.

Effects of Dissipation Counteracted.

Alcoholic excesses cannot be too earnestly deprecated, both for their destructive effects upon the constitution and their pernicious influence upon man's general welfare. At the same time there is little probability that he will cease to indulge in them until the end of time. Common humanity would therefore seem to dictate the suggestion of the most efficient means of counteracting their effects. There is not among medicated stimulants one so admirably calculated to counteract the physical consequences of hard drinking as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which relieve the nausea and headache produced by it, steady the trembling nerves, and yield that unfeverish repose which is the best recuperant of health shaken by excess. The bilious symptoms caused by dissipation are promptly relieved by the Bitters, which are also an excellent remedy for all disorders affecting the stomach, bowels, liver and urinary organs, to which it imparts unwonted regularity and tone.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Local Matters.

The Rising Tide.

The Concord Patriot says: "The rising tide is well illustrated in the last three elections in Portsmouth. The results are as follows: In the election of Mayor in 1874, the democratic majority was 11; at the State election last March it was 171, and at the election of Mayor on the 13th, it was 216. At this rate, our majority next March must be about 300."

A dissection of the foregoing boastful prediction shows its fallacy: The democratic candidate for Mayor in 1874 received 1101 votes; last March, the democratic candidate for Governor received 1251 votes; and on the 13th of the present month, the democratic candidate for Mayor received 1069 votes in a total registered number of 2400 or more. That "tide" seems to be on the "ebb," rather than the flood.

Jottings.

Cold fingers and cold feet were complained of at the horse trot on Wednesday.

"Is the approaching interesting obscuration of the sun's disc the cause of the present cold weather?" asks a correspondent. Possibly; that is, if our gushing young friend means the coming eclipse.

Yesterday, Sept. 22, was the fortieth anniversary of the copartnership of Messrs. Hill & Carr. How many business firms in this city or any other are there who can boast of an equal number of years?

The races at the Trotting park close today with one for a purse of $300 for 2:50 horses, and one for 2:29 horses, there being eleven entries. See advertisement.

Butler & Laighton exhibit the "boss" cucumber of the season. It is of the White Spine variety and tips eight and a quarter pounds on one of Fairbanks' standard scales. Any lover of good sized pickles would be likely to find his desire gratified in the possession of this mammoth cucurbitaceous production.

On Wednesday, at the Trotting Park in the 2.44 class Gen. Winthrop took the first money, Bessie Holbrook the second, Hiram third. Time 2.52 1-4, 2.46, 2.46. In the 2.34 class Eva took the first money, John Franklin second. Franklin winning first heat in 2.52. Time 2.44, 2.42 1-4, 2.45.

Good judges are of opinion that the democratic reservoir now being "sunk" on Madison street will cost $15,000 to $20,000, and be nearly or quite worthless when completed. But then, it gives our democratic retrenchment and reform city government good patronage for distribution. What with the laying out and building of new streets at the City Farm, (do democratic operations always tend toward the Almshouse?) the new reservoir, and the work for Richard's avenue, the democratic city government have considerable patronage to bestow to their hungry followers. Are republicans responsible for the Opposition securing control of any portion of this?

At last, at last—work seems actually to be beginning on Richard's avenue, under the direction of Mr. Wm. Marshall, a son of Portsmouth, recently returned from the West. Ditches are being cut through the marsh to the mill-pond; the picturesque and much regretted, but scraggy and impracticable row of old willows on the east side of the street, have been cut down, and the stone crusher on South street is grinding out filling for the road-bed. The avenue is to be widened a few feet on each side, so as to allow a sidewalk of ten feet on both sides. The improvements provided for by Mrs. Cutts' will, are to be made only below the residences, which will render all the more apparent the narrow and unsuitable condition of the upper and settled portion of the street. Unless the dwelling houses and buildings referred to, can be moved back on a line with the proposed new boundary, the outlay will be, comparatively, a waste of money, and the executors might as well have kept the old lady's bequest in their pockets.

Crutchfield on the Lobby.

The Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times says:

There is a deal of nonsense at times written from Washington and outside of it about the lobby. Very young writers arriving here either write grimly, ghoul-like descriptions of the lobby, or calmly, not to say scornfully, deny its existence entirely, according to the papers for which their precious articles are prepared. How often has one read the tales of the painted women of the lobby who wile the unsophisticated members on to blear-eyed ruin. Indeed, it makes one's blood curdle to think of all these things, but some way or other these tales so impress the reader as having that character of practicality, that entitles them to be believed. Washington is often visited by people living in the interior. The first they inquire after, when the round of public buildings, sight seeing is done, is the lobby. They look in vain for the painted women, the seductive men, go away concluding that their country paper employs a fiction writer in the position of "Our Own Correspondent." Even so sharp and all penetrating a man as James Parton came here some time ago, and after spending three weeks here went away fully convinced that the lobby was a myth. Upon this subject it is important to have testimony from a witness who has been on the inside of Congress.

William Crutchfield is the man. He is a rough mountaineer from Chattanooga, Tennessee, who acted as a scout during the war. He owns a small hotel there, and among the simple-minded of his locality he passes for an oracle. He is a very rough man, and his elections to Congress by his admiring fellow-constituents never changed his habits one iota. He used to go about in his rough, gray country dress, unkempt and uncombed, with the nonchalance of a farmer at a cattle show. He was a member of the House Committee on Patents. At one time last Winter this committee had before it a proposition to extend the patent on some very popular sewing machines. It was understood that a well-moneyed lobby was back of the scheme, and as very large interests were involved it was important to know what would be the decision of the committee. I selected Crutchfield as the most approachable member of the committee, and first asked him what he knew about the lobby back of it. "Lobby," said he with a queer start, "that is the spook that is always arter me."

"How is that?"

"I hain't been in Congress only one term, and I don't want to no more. I'll be doggoned if I can stand it. I am just pulled and hauled until I don't know where I am. Ye'd ought to hev seen me in my tavern last Summer telling the boys about the doin's in Congress. Every one said he be doggoned if he'd thought it was so bad, but I had been thar, and thar was no use in telling 'Crutch' he was lyin'. This is my last yer in Congress. I'm goin' to get shet of it at once. I can't stand it. Young man, when this yer Congress is busted and I ken in honor tell ye all I know, I will give ye still more than enough to fill a book of the blamedest, d—dest stuff ye ever dreamed about. I'm goin' to have my experiences published if I hev to writ 'em out myself. Lobby, did ye say backing of them sewing machines? I should say so, Lobby? If ye were a member ye'd find that out. When I came here I learned a few things. Does a member love good feedin'? then it rains invitations to the biggest kind of feeds. Does he love drinkin'? Whiskey runs in rivers for him upon every ban'? Is it women he wants to persuade him? Then women it is of every kind, big, little, old, young, and nary one of 'em with any morals to bother 'em. Last, if all these fail to fetch him, money can be had in bales rather than to lose him, I am a pore man, but I want to stay an honest one. I hev stood it out two years in this yer place, and I ain't goin' to resk myself here any longer."

At the close of the Forty-third Congress Mr. Crutchfield returned to the pure mountain air of Western Tennessee strongly fortified in his philosophical conclusion to renounce the pomps of congressional life. As he has not been since heard from, it is but reasonable to conclude that he is preparing his great work, in which he will show up the lobby at Washington. How much more of an oracle will "Crutch" now be considered by his fellow-townsmen, as he recites the fiery furnace of temptation through which he passed unscathed!

After having produced such powerful testimony in proof of the existence of the lobby, it would be idle to say more to convince the uninitiated that there are powerful influences always at work in Washington to sap the purity and honesty of public officials.

—A little girl, aged 10, whom I will call Eva, was sternly reproved by her sternly-virtuous governess for carelessness of a certain kind, and told that she must never, on any occasision, allow herself to be seen in her chemise by boys or gentlemen. The lesson having sunk deep into Eva's mind, an occasion for practicing it soon arose. Her young cousin was rushing into the room, one morning, and the girl screamed: "stop, you mustn't come in! I am in my chemise." There was a pause, after which Eva cries: "Now you may come in." The dear child had slipped off her chemise—her only garment—and stood, a statue of innocence.—Moncure D. Conway's London Letter.

RATTAN WARE MANUFACTORY.

ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East India Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Don't fail to call up, and see what few people in the United States have seen; viz., a collection of this ware. OVER FREEMAN'S OYSTER HOUSE, on Congress street, up one flight.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT" PANTOSCOPIC SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured especially for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratch d.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F L B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, BRUSHED and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 59 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life.

S. S. RING.
Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H.,
November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 5, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package per return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NOECROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages.

ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be seen in that section.

MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them.

A. L. FAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be glad to recommend them to others.

WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. P. Union Store, Market Street.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN,

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING;

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or scores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the hurtful trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE OCKLAWAHA IN MAY.

[Lippincott's for October.]

Some twenty miles from the mouth of the Ocklawaha, at the right hand edge of the stream, is the handsomest residence in America. It belongs to a certain alligator of my acquaintance, a very honest and worthy saurian, of good repute. A little cove of water, dark-green under the overhanging leaves, placid, pellucid, curves round at the river-edge into the flags and lilies with a curve just heartbreaking for the pure beauty of the flexure of it. This house of my saurian is divided into apartments—little subsidiary bays which are scalloped out by the lily-pads according to the sinuous fantasies of their growth. My saurian, when he desires to sleep, has but to lie down anywhere; he will find marvelous mosses for his mattress beneath him; his sheets will be white lily-petals; and the green disks of the lily-pads will rise above him as he sinks and embroider themselves together for his coverlet. He never quarrels with his cook, he is not the slave of his kitchen, and his one house-maid, the stream, for ever sweeps his chambers clean. His conservatories there under the glass of that water are ever and without labor filled with the enchantments of strange under-water growths; his parks and his pleasure grounds are bigger than any king's. Upon my saurian's house the winds have no power, the rains are only a new delight to him, and the snows he will never see; regarding fire, as he does not employ its slavery, so he does not fear its tyranny. Thus all the elements are the friends of my saurian's house. While he sleeps he is being bathed; what glory to awake sweet and clean, sweetened and cleaned in the very act of sleep! Lastly, my saurian has unnumbered mansions, and can change his mansion as no human housekolder may. It is but a mere fillip of his tail, and lo! he is established in another palace, as good as the last, and furnished to his liking.

For many miles together the Ocklawaha is, as to its main channel, a river without banks, though not less clearly defined as a stream for that reason. The swift deep current meanders between tall lines of forests; beyond these, on both sides, there is water also—a thousand shallow runlets lapsing past the bases of multitudes of trees. Along the immediate edges of the stream every tree trunk, sapling, stump or other projecting coign of vantage is wrapped about with a close-growing vine. At first, like an unending procession of nuns disposed along the aisle of a church these vine-figures stand. But presently, as one journeys, this nun-imagery fades out of one's mind; a thousand other fancies float with ever-new vine-shapes into one's eyes. One sees repeated all the forms one has ever known, in grotesque juxtapositions. Look! here is a graceful troop of girls, with arms wreathed over their heads, dancing down into the water; here are high velvet armchairs and lovely green fauteuils of divers patterns and of softest cushionment; now the vines hang in loops, in pavilions, in columns, in arches, in caves, in pyramids, in women's tresses, in harps and lyres, in globular mountain-ranges, in pagodas, domes, minarets, machicolated towers, dogs, belfries, draperies, fish, dragons; yonder is a bizarre congress—Una on her lion, Angelo's Moses, two elephants with howdahs, the Laocoon group; Arthur and Lancelot with great brands extended aloft in combat; Adam, bent with love and grief, leading Eve out of Paradise; Cæsar shrouded in his mantle, receiving his stab; Greek chariots, locomotives, brazen shields and cuirasses, columbiads, the twelve apostles, the stock exchange; it is a green dance of all things and times.

The edges of the stream are further defined by flowers and water-leaves. The tall blue flags; the ineffable lilies sitting on their round lily-pads like white queens on green thrones; the tiny stars and long ribbons of the water-grasses; the cunning phalanxes of a species of bennet which, from a long stem that swings off down stream along the surface, sends up a hundred graceful stemlets, each bearing a shield-like disk, and holding it aloft as the antique soldiers held their bucklers to form the testudo in attacking,—all these border the river in infinite varieties of purfling and chasement.

The river itself has an errant fantasy and takes many shapes. Presently we come to where it seemed to branch into four separate curves, like two opposed S's intersecting at their middle point. "Them's the Windin' Blades," said my raftsman.

To look down these lovely vistas is like looking down the dreams of some young girl's soul; and the gray moss-bearded trees gravely lean over them in contemplative attitudes, as if they were studying in the way that wise old poets study, the mysteries and sacrednesses and tender depths of some visible reverie of maidenhood.

And then after this day of glory came a night of glory. Down in these deep-shaded lanes, it was dark indeed as night drew on. The stream, which had been all day a ribbon of beauty, sometimes blue and sometimes green, now became a black band of mystery. But presently a brilliant flame flares out overhead; they have lighted the pine-knots on top of the pilot-house. The fire advances up these dark sinuosities like a brilliant god that for his mere whimsical pleasure calls the black chaos into instantaneous definite forms as he floats along the river-curves. The white columns of the cypress trunks, the silver-embroidered crowns of the maples, the green and white galaxies of the lillies,—these all come in a continuous apparition out of the bosom of the darkness and retire again; it is endless creation succeeded by endless oblivion. Startled birds suddenly flutter into the light, and after an instant of illuminated flight melt into the darkness. From the perfect silence of these short flights one derives a certain sense of awe. The mystery of this enormous blackness which is on either hand appears to be about to utter herself in these suddenly-articulate forms, and then to change her mind and die back into mystery again.

Now there is a mighty crack and crash; limbs and leaves scrape and scrub along the deck; a bell tinkles below; we stop. In turning a short curve the boat has run her nose smack into the right bank, and a projecting stump has thrust itself sheer through the starboard side. Out, Dick! out Henry! Dick and Henry shuffle forward to the bow, thrust forth their long white pole against a tree trunk, strain and push and bend to the deck as if they were salaaming the god of night and adversity. The bow slowly rounds into the stream, the wheel turns, and we puff quietly along.

Somewhere back yonder in the stern Dick is whistling. You should hear him! With the great aperture of his mouth and the rounding vibratory surfaces of his thick lips he gets out a mellow breadth of tone that almost entitles him to rank as an orchestral instrument.

If you will follow the course of Dick's musical reverie—which he now thinks is solely a matter betwixt himself and the night as he sits back there in the stern alone—presently you will hear him sing a whole minor tune without once using a semitone; the semitone is weak, it is a dilution, it is not vigorous and large like the whole tone; and I have heard a whole congregation of negroes at night, as they were worshipping in their church with some wild song or other, and swaying to and fro with the ecstasy and glory of it, abandon as by one consent the semitone that should come according to the civilized modus, and sing in its place a big lusty whole tone that would shake any man's soul. It is strange to observe that some of the most magnificent effects in advanced modern music are produced by this same method—notably in the works of Asger Hamerik of Baltimore and of Edward Grieg of Copenhagen. Any one who has heard Thomas' orchestra lately will have no difficulty in remembering his delight at the beautiful Nordische Suite by the former writer and the the piano concerto by the latter.

As I sat in the cabin to note down Dick's music by the single candle therein, through the door came a slim line of dragon-flies, of a small whitish species out of the dark toward the candle-flame, and proceeded incontinently to fly into the same, to get singed and to fall on the table in all varieties of melancholy mayhem, crisp-winged, no-legged, blind, aimlessly-fluttering, dead. Now, it so happened that as I came down into Florida out of the North this Spring, I passed just such a file of human moths flying toward their own hurt; and I could not help moralizing on it, even at the risk of voting myself a didactic prig. It was in the early April (though even in March I should have seen them all the same), and the Adam-insects were all running back northward—from the St. John's, from the Ocklawaha, from St. Augustine, from all Florida—moving back, indeed, not toward warmth, but toward a cold which equally consumes, to such a degree that its main effect is called consumption. Why should the Florida visitors run back into the catarrhal North in the early Spring? What could be more unwise? In New York is not even May simultaneously warm water and iced vinegar? But in Florida May is May. Then why not stay in Florida till May?

But they would not. My route was by the "Atlantic Coast Line," which brings and carries the great mass of the Florida pilgrims. When I arrived at Baltimore there they were; you could tell them infallibly. If they did not have slat-boxes with young alligators or green orange-sticks in their hands, you could at any rate discover them by the sea-beans rattling against the alligators' teeth in their pockets; when I got aboard the Bay Line steamer which leaves Baltimore every afternoon at four o'clock for Portsmouth, the very officers and waiters on the steamer were talking alligator and Florida visitors. Between Portsmouth and Weldon I passed a train-load of them; from Weldon to Wilmington, from Wilmington to Columbia, from Columbia to Augusta, from Augusta to Savannah, from Savannah to Jacksonville, in passenger-cars, in parlor-cars, in sleeping-cars, they thickened as I passed. And I wondered how many of them would in a little while be crawling about, crippled in lung, in liver, in limbs, like these flies.

And then it was bed-time.

—A strange case of mistaken identity was before the Exeter (England) magistrates the other day. A woman named Knight was charged with breaking a pane of glass. The chief constable said the accused had been convicted of felony in 1867. He called an inspector to corroborate this, who said he himself took the charge, and he had known the woman from a child. She protested her innocence, but the police insisted that she was the person mentioned in the police book produced. It was, however, afterward found that the police were mistaken, and the chief constable apologized to the woman, and the magistrate accepted his explanation.

A Romance of Crime.

The recent arrest in New York of Tollomeo de Chivetta, the barber who had in his possession $4000 worth of revenue stamps, which proved to be a part of $70,000 worth recently stolen from the revenue agent in Baltimore by burglars, has led to the unfolding of a strange story of crime, and possibly also to the discovery of the murderer of Torrino, the Italian, who was killed in Brooklyn some time ago. Chivetta formerly belonged to a gang of counterfeiters that included the murdered Torrino, and a barber named Polagniac. The work of detecting all the misdoings of these counterfeiters has developed the motive of Torrino's murder, and an incidental romance that does not need the connection with that crime to be interesting. The hero of it is Tollomeo de Chivetta, one of the counterfeiters, and the heroine is the wife of Polagniac, the leader of the party. Chivetta is a young Italian, with the jetty hair and eyes and swarthy skin that make so many of his race the school girl ideal of impassioned lovers. He is an uncommonly skillful engraver, and on arriving in this country, about three years ago, he associated himself with some Italians in the counterfeiting of United States currency. He affirms that he was led into the business by his older associates, and that previously he had been honest. Madame Polagniac believed so, and she knew, too, the character of her husband. She set about the task of saving Chivetta from a career of crime. The supposition is that his good looks won for him her affections; yet there is nothing in her behavior to show that she had at first anything beyond a kindly interest in his welfare. During several weeks of the counterfeiters' frequent conferences Polagniac's wife had time enough to fall in love with the young engraver. That she did so may be inferred from the fact that, when a scheme for operations had been perfected, she implored him to withdraw from it and free himself from the society of her husband. She offered to help him get honest employment, to give him money until he could honestly earn his own living, and to send him to some other city in which he might be out of temptation. Chivetta's account of these interviews represents her as weeping over his refusal to take her advice, and urging him, for her sake if not for his own, to abandon the business of counterfeiting. Excited by the failure of her appeal, she angrily accused her husband of ruining Chivetta, and threatened to expose him to the police. Chivetta was not influenced by Madame Polagniac's effort. He went with the counterfeiters to a house near Nanuet, New York, and there set to work on plates for Government bonds and currency. Torrino, who was subsequently murdered, was his constant companion during the five weeks that he was engaged in the work. One day Madame Polagniac rode to the house in a carriage, and, in an interview during which she seemed to be much agitated, warned him that he was in imminent danger of arrest. This time her words were more potent, and he promised her that he would at once quit the work. Torrino too was frightened, and together they quitted the house that night. Their old companions hounded them, and one of them attempted to kill Chivetta, but without success, and he soon disappeared from the city. A few days after the desertion of the Nanuet workshop by Torrino and Chivetta, Torrino was mysteriously stabbed to death in Brooklyn. He was found dying in a vacant lot, early in the evening, within sight and hearing of a busy street. The police could not detect the murderer, nor any motive for the deed. Some arrests were made, but the reward offered for the murderer was not earned. The discoveries herewith narrated, although they reveal nothing that may positively identify the murderer, indicate that Torrino may have lost his life by heeding Madame Polagniac's warning to the man she loved. The theory of the police is that he was killed because he had deserted the scheme. It had begun to be believed that Chivetta had been killed also, but his recent arrest in New York has disposed of that supposition. That Chivetta had of late embarked in another kind of crime is shown by his arrest with $4000 in genuine stolen revenue stamps in his possession.

—The scenes in the Philadelphia courtroom on Monday, when Westervelt was found guilty of the conspiracy with Mosher and Douglas in the abduction of Charlie Ross, were of peculiar interest. The counts upon which Westervelt was acquitted charged him with kidnapping and harboring, and concealing the child after the kidnapping. The three upon which he was convicted are the conspiracy counts, and are the third, fourth and fifth in the bill indictment. The third charges him with conspiracy to kidnap; the fourth with conspiring to extort money by means of threatening letters, and the fifth with conspiring to defraud the child of its liberty. The prisoner appeared greatly unnerved when brought into Court. He looked weary and haggard and his swollen eyelids showed traces of long-continued weeping. His wife came in with the two children before the jury gave in their verdict. As he kissed her and the two little children his fortitude gave way, and he burst into tears. Mrs. Westervelt stood by the dock for a few minutes, holding him by the hand, both weeping silently; she then left the court-room, feeling that she could not endure the final ordeal. When the verdict was pronounced, the prisoner, who had bowed his face in his hands as soon as he lost sight of his family, cried and sobbed like a child. The verdict pronounced by the jury is universally admitted to be in accordance with the law and the evidence, and at last it is known that, while the two principal scoundrels in this infamous crime have been snatched by violent deaths from the clutches of the law, the accomplice who conspired with them to steal Charlie Ross from his home has been slowly tracked and surely convicted of his crime. Whether he will now reveal the whereabouts of the lost boy, now that the consideration of personal safety and freedom no longer seals his lips, remains to be seen.

—Mr. Moody continues his revival work at Northfield, and crowds still flock to hear him preach. Now that the other evangelists are gone there is less of an artificial character given to the meetings, and the historic talent which Mr. Moody possesses comes out in a stronger light. On Sunday the little church where he preaches was packed full, chiefly with visitors from the country. It was a field day among the churches of the little village. At the Unitarian church, Rev. Mr. Sunderland felt that it was a proper time to reinforce any in his congregation who might not be confirmed in all their opinions, by a reiteration of the doctrinal points of his church. His audience was large, and included a portion of Mr. Moody's own family, the members of which, almost without exception, are regular attendants at his church. He objected very earnestly to the orthodoxy of which Mr. Moody is an exponent, and it is anticipated that Mr. Moody will reply next Sunday. Notwithstanding this opposition, however, the evangelist seems to be getting on famously. Among the converts are a number of the old residents who, before Mr. Moody's coming, had not been in the old church for a decade. One of the most conspicuous conversions is that of a prominent business man over 50 years of age—a man of wealth, but a notoriously profane man. It is impossible to say just how many have met with a change of heart during this revival, but there is said to be every reason to believe that among the North church people alone there are already over ten converts fully persuaded and beyond the slightest hesitation.

—A warning to Washington girls who are in the habit of letting their heads get turned in their admiration for the suckers that shoot up every year around the foreign legations is the case of a former attache of the legation of Holland at Washington, a young man, by the name of Zuyderhoff, who has just been brought before the tribunal of Nice on a charge of swindling. He went, it appears, to Monaco, where he lost everything he possessed in the world at the gaming table. Then he proceeded to Montone, where, with singular but perhaps unconscious appropriateness, he took the name of Stiel. He swindled a number of persons there, including the keeper of the hotel where he lodged, and a foreign doctor whom he consulted, out of various sums of money. He also replenished his wardrobe at a fashionable tailoring establishment, and soon afterward disappeared without paying a sou to any of the victims. He was arrested at Contrexville, and has been condemned to six months' imprisonment. He is said to belong to an excellent Dutch family, but a passion for gambling has brought him to his present position.

Waiting for a Cave.

[Vicksburg Herald.]

Three or four days ago, within two or three miles of this city, a Washington street merchant, who had business in the country, came to a small creek, beside which a native was washing his shirt. The man was sousing the garment up and down and around, and as he "soused" he whistled a merry tune.

"Do you have to wash your own shirt?" inquired the merchant, as he halted.

"Not allus, but old Bet has got one o' her fits on jest now," was the ready reply.

"Then you don't agree very well?"

"Purty well on the general thing. Bet's kind o' mullish, and I'm kind o' mullish, and when we get our backs up we crawl off to see who'll cave first."

"I should think you would want some soap?"

"I do."

"Why don't you get it, then?"

"That would be caving to Bet, stranger. She's squatted on the only bit of bar soap 'tween here and Vicksburg, and she's jest aching for me to slide up and ask her for it."

"And you won't?"

"Stranger," replied the native, as he straightened up, "don't I look like a feller that would wear a shirt three months afore I'd cave in and holler for soap?"

The merchant sided with him, and as he drove on, the man soused the shirt up and down and whistled:

I'm gwine up the river—
Hear me holler.

She Wanted to "Bakerize" Him.

[London Letter.]

So alarmingly numerous and outrageous have become indecent assaults in railway carriages since the Colonel Baker incident, that no decent gentleman now ventures to travel alone even for the shortest distance without a protector. Here is one of the latest illustrations of the dangers which encompass us. A correspondent writes to the Hour newspaper:

"Seeing a day or two ago another reported case of indecent assault in a railway carriage in the country, I think it but right that I should give you the particulars of an incident that happened to myself, last week, in a train on the Metropolitan District Railway and I feel certain that cases of this kind occur I may say daily, and that unfortunate gentlemen pay over the fine demanded rather than run the risk of fighting an unjust charge in a Police Court. Early last week, about 1 o'clock in the day, I got into a first-class smoking carriage at St James' Park. Opposite to me sat a lady, apparently rather sleepy, two gentlemen occupying seats in the same compartment. At Victoria both gentlemen got out, and I was left alone with the lady. No sooner had the train left the station than she started up, and, disarranging her dress in a very indelicate manner, she sat down on my knees and threw her arms around my neck, saying at the same time, "You had better settle with me, or I'll Bakerize you at the next station." For a moment I was completely nonplussed, but an inspiration seized me. I said, "Madam, get off my knees and show me your ticket." She did so, and I replied, "I don't think the charge of a woman who travels in a first-class smoking carriage with a third-class ticket will be much regarded, and at Sloane square I will call the guard's attention to it." At Sloane square a young gentleman got into the carriage, and she was so taken aback that she never said another word, but at the next station she got out, and I thanked my fellow traveller for so opportunely arriving on the scene, and I told him what had occurred. I have no doubt that there are many gentlemen, who could relate incidents like the above, who have suffered in pocket for lack of the "happy thought" which saved your lucky correspondent from an unfounded criminal charge.

Grace Greenwood, who in "takin' notes" in Brussels, says Belgic royalty is very little known or cared about there. An eternal "Court circular" does not confront you in every Belgic journal. Loyalty run mad does not break out in sign-boards, as it does in England, where even the meanest metiers are under the patronage of Royal Highnesses. Indeed, nothing about the King and Queen or their way of living is very dazzling or imposing. The Queen at the last high festival was dressed prettily but simply in blue, and wore a bonnet and carried a parasol and fan. If these royal dames would only don crowns and jewelled orders, carry the sceptre and ball, and wear wide ruffs and hooped farthingales, the divinity that once did hedge a Queen, it were worth while to watch one. As it is, you get enough Queen in about five minutes. At the lace factories Grace was keenly interested in watching the working-out of the exquisite patterns, though almost as imperceptible as the growth of real foliage and flowers, and in regarding the pale, silent workers. In the lace shops she saw snow-drifts of the costly fabric piled on the counters, and grew distracted at the lovely sight and discontented with divine Providence, not for not having created her a lace-maker, with attenuated fingers and more attenuated soul, and eyesight surely dying out into untimely darkness, but a lace buyer and wearer—gay ladies of the court, with "human creatures' lives" wrought into their flounces, weary sighs into their dainty sashes, and white ghosts of the flowers of youth and hope floating even in their bridal veils.

—The peach season is about over, and the Delaware growers have already commenced to count the cost of their enormous yield. There can be no doubt but that their fears for the profits have been fully realized, and the returns have been absolutely a loss in many cases. Fully a third of the fruit has been allowed to rot on the trees and many of the farmers had not picked any of their peaches since the shipment of Hales. From the beginning of the season up to last week 3,139,000 baskets of fruit have been shipped to North, East and West; adding to this one million baskets, which have been shipped by various water lines, the total will foot up over four million of baskets already marketed. This is an average of a hundred and sixty thousand baskets sent from the Peninsular orchards every day to supply the Western, New York and Northern markets. Of this enormous quantity of fruit New York has received about 1,800,000 baskets. The Boston markets have been well supplied, and coupled with the points of shipment in New England, have been, next to the Western points, the most remunerative to the growers, about fifteen cars per day having been sent, the total number shipped to these points being nearly 350,000 baskets. The cost of shipment is about 40 cents per basket, or about $150.000 in freight has been paid for fruit shipped to New England. The entire cost of picking, shipping and marketing the enormous crop has been about $2,000,000, and when the season closes this will be increased to nearly $2,500,000. There now remains about six days of large shipments, the Smock, late Crawford, and various canning varieties constituting the bulk of the remaining crop. This will swell the total shipment this season to about 6,000,000 baskets of fruit; but, had the markets warranted it, there is little doubt but that even 12,000,000 baskets could have been shipped from the Peninsula. Altogether, the effect of the present crop has been disastrous to the peach interest of the Peninsula, and will result in the grubbing out of many of the orchards, and it is quite likely that many years will elapse before such another immense crop of fruit will be grown in Delaware and Maryland.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the issue in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete in itself, and will contain Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"
By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, postpaid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.0 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

The Brief Visit of a Fortune Teller.

A fortune teller folded her fair wings and rested in our midst a day or two since, at the same time, by means of the printer's ink, pleasantly announcing her vocation. She claimed to be one of those unnatural productions of nature who are ushered into the world with a veiled face, which, anomalous as it may appear, gave her the power to see clearer than we common mortals whose facial organs are unprotected at the interesting hour of birth. By this gift, the fair female alluded to, had us, (to use a trite expression of the sporting fraternity) "on the hip;" that is, having the hearts of men spread out before her double-barrelled vision like a map, she could easily discriminate between the good and bad, enabling her to avoid the latter and cleave to the former. A day or two passed without a cloud arising to obscure her moral pathway; but from some cause, (either through the luring influence of the festive wine-cup, or the Puritanic preciseness of our people) she essayed too much, and was ordered to leave town at once or take her chances before the Police Court. Our faithful Assistant Marshal, true to his virtuous instincts, had been "shadowing" her since her arrival, and having an innate repugnance to those baneful precepts taught by the Twin Mountain house divine, such as "true inwardness," "better man in my place, etc., he relentlessly pursued her from the time of her arrival here to the hour of her departure. In so doing, however, he has incurred the displeasure of one female, at least, and her name is Millie Ahounshell. "And there's where the latgh comes in."

The Ladies Still At It.

The ladies concerned in the Public Library scheme, have resolved to further add to their exchequer by giving a Ladies' Quaker Party on the evening of the 20th of October, at which the public are cordially invited. Every lady will be dressed in the peculiar garb of the Quakers and deport herself with that degree of prudishness common to those singular people. A pleasant time is anticipated, and as dancing will form a prominent feature of the evening's entertainment, it is expected that there will be a large attendance. Tickets can be had of the parties who so successfully managed the Ladies' Muslin Party last Spring. It is also proposed to hold a grand Bazaar about the first of December, of which we shall give further particulars hereafter.

The Bow Mission.

Editor Chronicle; I saw in your issue of Sept. 20th, a notice of the Bow Mission, and with your permission I would like to correct a mistake. It is stated that through the efforts of Messrs. Hurd and Loyne, the room over Myers' tailoring establishment has been secured for a reading room for all who desire to spend their evenings in such a place. It is true that a room has been kindly given, but not for such a purpose. It is for a Sunday evening mission work, for those who cannot be prevailed upon to attend any of the chapel services. Our object is to make the mission a stepping stone to the church. All interested in the work are cordially invited to the opening service Sabbath evening, Sept. 26th, at 7 P. M. Subject for the evening, "The Nature and Object of the Mission." Yours,

WILLIAM A. LOYNE, Missionary.

Society for Young Men.

Editor Chronicle: The article in one of your late issues signed "One of the young men" is worthy of attention from more than one pen.

The young man puts the captions to his "queries" as being very "sensible" and from their tone and spirit he evidently knows some things are better than others and that some good things are better than bad things, but in reviewing them one can hardly fail of being reminded of the old proverb, "The soul of the sluggard desireth and hath nothing" but "the hand of the diligent maketh rich," will just cast up the amount of the pennies that he must of necessity part with when he drifts into bad company, he will perhaps find it large enough to pay for a seat in any one of our churches, a free use of our public reading rooms, purchase the works of Benj. Franklin, and do many other advantageous things. The best part of all would be that he would not be a pauper on any body's enterprises. But supposing him to be really sincere and the fault to be only in the mode of expressions.

Then it is manly and womanly precedents that he seeks: in the present state of society these are very difficult to be found: but somewhere in the realm of mind they can be found, if these be due diligences in the searching.

If he fails in the search among the people immediately around and about him then it is a "conclusion inevitable" (as a Geometrician would say) that this "one of the young men" was himself "born" and sent into the world for the express purpose that he should himself become a precedent and example in all those things of which he may justly complain of the delinquency of his fellow men.

Any further word of sympathy or suggestion I shall be ready to give to any "young man" on call.

ANDREW J. PENHALLOW.

Jottings.

Miss Jennie Franklin the talented soprano singer, has tendered her resignation as a member of the choir of the Middle street Baptist church, to take effect immediately, that she may accept a more important situation.

The Rockingham county members of the Legislature are holding a convention in Exeter to decide on the state of the County Farm improvements to be made, and whether it is advisable to sell a part of the farm.

Eben Tasker, a well-known resident of Berwick, Me., died suddenly of heart disease Tuesday night, aged 60.

—The most cutting remarks are made by the bluntest men.

—The way to meet a man of doubtful credit is to take no note of him.

—Is it any proof that logic has legs because it always stands to reason.

—Jones says he loves two charming girls —Jenny Rosity and Annie Mation.

—Strong drink is not only the devil's way into man, but man's way to the devil.

—For thin people to get suddenly fat—step on a banana peel and come down plump.

—Not all the ex-Presidents are gone, there's J. Davis, for instance.

—He fondly hoped it would have been a boy, but it wasn't, and ever since that he's been wringing his hands and murmuring, "A lass, a lass."

—The Sultan of Zanzibar, on his visit to the gun factory at Woolwich, where the forty-ton trip-hammer was at work, saw the workmen lift an immense iron grating, revealing a furnace about the size of an ordinary room, which sent forth such a glare and heat that the party were compelled to shield their faces for a time from the hot blast. "When shall we get to prayers?" he exclaimed on the return journey, "for I have seen the gate of hell."

DIED.

RICHARDSON. In this city, Mrs. A. M. Richardson, born in Kittery, Me., Aug. 19, 1792, died in Portsmouth, Sept. 23, 1875.

Effects of Dissipation Counteracted.

Alcoholic excesses cannot be too earnestly deprecated, both for their destructive effects upon the constitution and their pernicious influence upon man's general welfare. At the same time there is little probability that he will cease to indulge in them, until the end of time. Common humanity would therefore seem to dictate the suggestion of the most efficient means of counteracting their effects. There is not among medicated stimulants one so admirably calculated to counteract the physical consequences of hard drinking as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which relieve the nausea and headache produced by it, steady the trembling nerves, and yield that unfeverish repose which is the best recuperant of health shaken by excess. The bilious symptoms caused by dissipation are promptly relieved by the Bitters, which are also an excellent remedy for all disorders affecting the stomach, bowels, liver and urinary organs, to which it imparts unwonted regularity and tone.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

Utility, Durability and Brilliancy.

The following advantages are claimed for the

"BRILLIANT"
PANTOSCOPIC
SPECTACLES and EYE-GLASSES.

FIRST. That, from the peculiar construction of the Glasses and Frame, they assist and preserve the sight, rendering frequent changes unnecessary.

SECOND. That they confer a brilliancy and distinctness of vision, with an amount of Ease and Comfort not hitherto enjoyed by spectacle-wearers.

THIRD. That the material from which the Lenses are ground is manufactured expressive for optical purposes, and is Pure, Hard and Brilliant, and not liable to become scratched.

☞ The "BRILLIANTS" are unrivalled for strengthening and preserving the Eyesight, and for their lasting qualities. Every pair is stamped F. L. B., and can be procured only from Resident Agents

☞ A full assortment of sizes, set in GOLD, STEEL, RUBBER and SHELL, of the FINEST QUALITY, and warranted not to break from any imperfection in the manufacture, can always be obtained of

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complant many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years: three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, compensate their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 30 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE,—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called sugar cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for diseases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague. Yours, most respectfully,

MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better. I can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail. MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possib e. MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 8, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think those pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent us, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralysis of left side that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New Eng and, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did, am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 15, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,
Picturesque Scenery and Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices, should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to aid them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than ther nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6 No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any offal meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or cross over or slide or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offal of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisances shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 15. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue the bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of this enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will see a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to rear in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,330,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,
Croup,
Diphtheria,
Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial,

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

THE OCKLAWAHA IN MAY.

[Lippincott's for October.]

Let me tell you how to sleep on an Ocklawaha steamer in May. With a small bribe persuade Jim the steward to take the mattress out of your berth and lay it slanting just along the railing that encloses the lower part of the upper deck, to the left of the pilot-house. Then lie flat-backed down on the same, draw your blanket over you, put your cap on your head in consideration of the night-air, fold your arms, say some little prayer or other, and fall asleep with a star looking right down your eyes.

When you awake in the morning your night will not seem any longer, any blacker, any less pure, than this perfect white blank in the page, and you will feel as new as Adam.

At sunrise, when I awoke, I found that we were lying still with the boat's nose run up against a sandy bank, which quickly rose into a considerable hill. A sandy-whiskered native came down from the pine-cabin on the knoll. "How air ye?" he sang out to our skipper with an evident expectation in his voice. "Got any freight for me?"

The skipper handed him a heavy parcel in a brown wrapper. He examined it keenly with all his eyes, felt it over carefully with all his fingers; his countenance fell, and the shadow of a great despair came over it. "Look a-here!" he said, "hain't you brought me no terbacker?"

"Not unless it's in that bundle," said the skipper.

"Hell!" said the native; "this's nuthin but shot;" and he turned off toward the forest, as we shoved away, with a face like the face of the apostate Julian when the devils were dragging him down the pit.

I would have let my heart go out in sympathy to this man—for the agony of his soaked soul after "terbacker" during the week that must pass ere the Marion come again is not a thing to be laughed at—had I not believed that he was one of the vanilla-gatherers. You must know that in the low grounds of the Ocklawaha grows what is called the vanilla-plant, and that its leaves are much like those of tobacco. This "vanilla" is now extensively used to adulterate cheap chewing tobacco, as I am informed, and the natives along the Ocklawaha drive a considerable trade in gathering it. The process of their commerce is exceedingly simple, and the bills drawn against the consignments are primitive. The officer in charge of the Marion showed me several of the communications received at various landings during our journey, accompanying shipments of the spurious weed. They were generally about as follows:

"DEER SIR: I send you one bag Verneiler, pleeze fetch one par of shus numb 8 and ef enny over fetch twelve yards hoamspun. Yrs truly,

The captain of the steamer takes the bags to Palatka, barters the vanilla for the articles specified, and distributes them on the next trip up to their respective owners.

In a short time we came to the junction of Silver Spring Run with the Ocklawaha proper. This Run is a river formed by the single outflow of the waters of Silver Spring, nine miles above. Here new astonishments befell. The water of the Ocklawaha, which had before seemed clear enough, now showed but like a muddy stream as it flowed side by side, unmixing for a little distance, with this Silver Spring water.

The Marion now left the Ocklawaha and turned into the Run. How shall one speak quietly of this journey over transparency? The run is in many places very deep; the white bottom is hollowed out in a continual succession of large spherical holes, whose entire contents of darting fish, of undermosses, of flowers, of submerged trees, of lily-stems, of grass ribbons, revealed themselves to us through the lucid fluid as we sailed along thereover. The long series of convex bodies of water filling these great concavities impressed one like a chain of globular worlds composed of a transparent lymph. Great numbers of keen-snouted, long-bodied garfish shot to and fro in unceasing motion beneath us; it seemed as if the under-worlds were filled with a multitude of crossing sword-blades wielded in tireless thrust and parry by invisible arms.

The shores, too, had changed. They now opened into clear savannas, overgrown with broad-leafed grass to a perfect level two or three feet above the water, stretching back to the boundaries of cypress and oak; and occasionally, as we passed one of these expanses curving into the forest with a diameter of half a mile, a single palmetto might be seen in or near the centre—perfect type of that lonesome solitude which the German calls Einsamkeit—one-some-ness. Then again, the palmettoes and cypresses would swarm toward the stream and line its banks.

Thus for nine miles, counting our gigantic rosary of water-wonders and lonelinesses, we fared on. Then we rounded to in the very bosom of Silver Spring itself, and came to wharf. Here there were warehouses, a turpentine distillery, men running about with boxes of freight and crates of Florida vegetables for the Northern market, country stores with wondrous assortments of goods—physic, fiddles, groceries, school-books, what not—and, a little farther up the shore of the spring, a tavern. I learned in a hasty way that Ocala was five miles distant, that I could get a very good conveyance from the tavern to that place, and that on the next day, Sunday, a stage would leave Ocala for Gainesville, some forty miles distant, being the third relay of long stage-line which runs three times a week between Tampa and Gainesville via Brooksville and Ocala.

Then the claims of scientific fact and of guidebook information could hold me no longer. I ceased to acquire knowledge, and got me back to the wonderful spring, drifting over it face downward as over a new world. It is sixty feet deep a few feet off shore, they say, and covers an irregular space of several acres; but this sixty feet does not at all represent the actual impression of depth which one gets as one looks through the superincumbent water down at the bottom. The distinct sensation is, that although the bottom down there is clearly seen, and although all the objects in it are about of their natural size, undiminished by any narrowing of the visual angle, yet it and they are seen from a great distance. It is as if Depth itself, that subtle abstraction, had been compressed into a crystal lymph, one inch of which would represent miles of ordinary depth.

As one rises from gazing into these quaint profundities, and glances across the broad surface of the spring, one's eye is met by a charming mosaic of brilliant hues. The water-plain varies in color according to what it lies upon. Over the pure white limestone and shells of the bottom it is perfect malachite green; over the water-grass it is a much darker green; over the moss it is that rich brown-and-green which Bodmer's forest engravings so vividly suggest; over neutral bottoms it reflects the skies' or the clouds' colors. All these hues are further varied by mixture with the manifold shades of foliage reflections cast from overhanging boscage near the shore, and still further by the angle of the observer's eye. One would think that these elements of color-variation were numerous enough, but they were not nearly all. Presently the splash of an oar in some distant part of the spring sent a succession of ripples circling over the pool. Instantly it broke into a thousandfold prism. Every ripple was a long carve of variegated sheen; the fundamental hues of the pool when at rest were distributed into innumerable kaleidoscopic flashes and brilliancies; the multitudes of animated gems, and the prismatic lights seemed actually to waver and play through their translucent bodies, until the whole spring, in a great blaze of sunlight, shone like an enormous fluid jewel that without decreasing forever lapsed away upward in successive exhalations of dissolving sheens and glittering colors.

Daily Chronicle.

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 25, 1875.

Democratic Perverseness.

Just as certain as there arises any question of vital importance to the country's interests, so certain does the democratic party hasten to the support of the wrong side of the question, with speedy determination to ruin rather than allow any other party to rule. The democratic mind always tends to mischief, striving to appear especially virtuous to conceal its own vices, prone to mischief "as the sparks fly upward." From the day of the repeal of the Missouri Compromise in 1854 it has been consistently in the wrong, never endorsing the right; representing the worst elements of the population, catering to prejudice, never noble in thought or deed. Out of power, democracy puts forth its best men to conceal its underlying hideousness. Success assured, its organization becomes the prey of designing and unscrupulous leaders, and at the first opportunity is made to deal the heaviest blows against the prosperity of the nation. That it ever assumes power is due to the fact that thousands of its opponents have a disrelish for politics, tire of the strife unless they discern a crisis of more than ordinary importance, and engrossed with business and other cares, forget their duty until questions of overshadowing importance recall them to its responsibilities.

The repeal of the Missouri Compromise was an initial step to other and more disturbing movements. The rebellion naturally followed, and as naturally did the democratic party array itself in antagonism to principles of loyalty and right. Openly defending the monstrous idea that white men were entitled to the free service of colored men, for no other reason than that they were colored, it openly upheld rebellion where it dared, and in localities where it dare not, stealthily instilled its insidious ideas in a manner calculated to breed treason and inspire anything but a love of country among its followers. Its treasonable course alienated hundreds of thousand from its ranks, and nothing but temporary disaster to the Union armies encouraged or brought it to the surface during those four terrible years of the nation's peril. It was like the balky mule in the team which a farmer was endeavoring to drive up a steep hill, resisting with all the brute stupidity at its command, and finally drawn against its will to the summit. Then assuming the position of resignation, because no other position was tenable, it claimed a share in the great triumph which ended in an indissoluble Union, and entrenched itself in the works to which it had been dragged, abandoning them only for a more advanced position when forced to do so by the sheer force of circumstances. Never to the front on matters of equity or justice, it has occupied a negative position, always prepared to grumble, never to suggest any line of improvement, never ready to lead in any contest where principle has been at stake.

The democratic party is unchanging and unchangeable. Its sympathy with rebellion made the task of subduing that rebellion almost an impossibility. Even when the chief battle for the Union was being fought, deciding the fate of the nation, it met in national convention and boldly flaunted the idea that "the war was a failure." Nothing but a coup d'etat saved it from nominating for the Presidency an avowed repudiationist. That it did not was no indication that it would not if it dared. Following the subsidence of the rebellion, and the failure of the confederacy it desired established, it opposed the constitutional amendments and endeavored to render them void by the passage of resolutions of repeal in States which relapsed into democratic servitude. When the tide of rebellion was at its height, democracy was noisy and blatant, true to its instincts; when national issues were largely forgotten and it came to the front through the mistakes and neglect of its opponents, it was again bold and defiant. Success spoils it with egotism, and defeat embitters it.

Its present aim is to destroy the credit of the government. From hard money protestations, it is prepared to advocate inflation, for political purposes, knowing that disaster lies in that direction. The Ohio and Pennsylvania wings have adopted this theory as their own, and on the same platform place for figure-heads men whose hard money record they hope to make of avail in the appeal for votes, with as much success as they have achieved in seducing them from principle by nominations for high office. The Eastern and New York democrats will with an appearance of frankness and candor resolve that they favor hard money, yet they hope with the tenacity of long abstinence from official position, for the triumph of their brethren in Ohio and Pennsylvania, even with the knowledge that such a triumph would set the whole South and West in an uncontrollable demand for more paper money, and that the nomination of an inflationist and the consequent increase of the volume of promises to pay, in case of their success in the Presidential canvass, can but impair the national credit, and place farther off than ever the resumption of specie payment, with the natural results of an inflated currency, high prices. But the average democrat does not care. He does not see beyond his own immediate surroundings. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof," to him. The national debt, incurred by a democratic rebellion and democratic sympathy with that rebellion at the North, is a just debt, honestly due. The man of honor desires to pay his debts when he can, and knows that to issue more promises to pay places him farther from a settlement, and renders the day of reckoning, to which every day's delay adds interest, more to be feared. The inflationist, however, hopes to tide over his present responsibilities, and live on the quicksands of indecision. The time of settlement may be far off, the farther the better for him, he thinks. He may be in better circumstances, or death may relieve him of his earthly dues. No instinct of honor bids him follow the safe path wherein he can face every fellow-man whom he meets. Having encouraged rebellion against his own country, aided in checking that country's growth, endeavored to destroy its influence, and having a constitutional objection to his paying his debts, he finds no hesitation in voting a democratic ticket resolutely, regularly and with a defiance of consequences.

News and Notes.

The Boston Journal's Candia poisoning case seems to have been no case of poisoning at all. Charles H. Carr, the alleged victim, died from the effects of intoxicating liquors, and State Assayer Hayes of Massachusetts found no trace of poison in the stomach of the deceased. If our good friend Pecker continues unearthing the bodies of topers at this rate, the rum trade in New Hampshire will be liable to fall off amazingly in the country towns. Who knows but that "F. F." is a regularly employed agent of the State Reform Association?

The yacht America, Friday night last, coming from New York, made 240 nautical miles in 16 hours, and during eight miles of that distance she was run under bob jib.

Gov. Hendricks' does not agree with those who predict a large majority for Gov. Allen in Ohio. He thought he would be elected, but by a small majority, adding: "Ohio is republican; and if I were in Allen's shoes I would be willing to compromise on an election and say nothing about a big majority."

Mr. Lester Sykes of Springfield, Mass., was buried in a well at a depth of forty-five feet, Wednesday afternoon, the 22d, and was rescued so nearly exhausted early Friday morning, that he died soon after.

A workman at the Chipman Mine, Newburyport, fell forty feet, head foremost into the shaft, caught the rope, turned over and landed on his feet, badly bruised but not fatally injured.

Mrs. Mehitable Gardner, who was arrested in connection with David L. Magoon for the murder of Mrs. Magoon at Raymond over a year ago, and lodged in jail in this city, has been released from custody by County Solicitor Frink, there being no evidence strong enough to hold her.

Charles Jackson of Tamworth has struck a gold mine on his land.

Both the lumber mills of the Messrs. Brown at Whitefield are in active operation. And three new pulp mills, the largest of the kind in the country, are nearly finished and will soon be in operation.

The Boston Herald calls New Hampshire the wickedest State in New England, because of so many rumored cases of poison.

Gov. Allen talks very loudly in public about his majority of 30,000 or 40,000, but in private he is more cautious. He is reported to have said to a delegation of Pennsylvania democrats who asked him to go to their State and speak after the Ohio election: "Gentlemen, it is altogether too soon to talk of my going to Pennsylvania to take part in the canvass. Suppose I should be beat like h— in my own State, wouldn't I be a pretty looking thing making speeches in Pennsylvania?" This profound observation ended the conversation.

Somersworth holds a town meeting Oct. 6, to see if the citizens will vote to unite with Berwick in building an iron bridge over Salmon Falls river.

Eugene Downs and his little dog got five coons out of one tree, at Lebanon.

Mrs. Goodwin, of Newton, uses a hoe to defend herself with, and three tramps will stand up and tell you that she made them toddle with the aforesaid weapon.

Mr. P. A. Tomlinson, a Philadelphian, who has been spending a month or two at the Crawford House, came very near losing his life, Tuesday night, the 21st. He had passed the day on Mount Washington, and at about four o'clock began to descend. When within two miles of the Crawford, owing to the driving snow storm which was raging, he strayed from the road, and to his horror found himself lost in the storm and gathering darkness of the night. He had no means for kindling a fire and his limbs were rapidly chilling with the intense cold. As a last hope he shouted with all the energy despair could furnish, and strange to say the inmates of the Crawford heard his cries, and a party of eight started with lanterns to the rescue. He was found in an almost helpless condition and carried to the house.

At the meeting of the Dartmouth Boating Association the other day, it was voted to raise $1000 to support the University crew at next year's regatta.

Enoch Glover, of Nottingham, died about six o'clock Wednesday night, the 22d, under suspicious circumstances. He and his wife, Amy, were at Newmarket during the day. Going home he was taken with vomiting, and died soon after arriving there. Suspicion falls upon his wife. It is asserted that she poisoned him once before. Glover and his wife have had frequent quarrels, coming to blows.

The Camp Cook.

One of the Wheeler expedition writes to the Boston Globe of cooking in camp: Although every one of us is an amateur cook, yet we have one unfortunate being who is professionally so. Sometimes he comes to us from the Chinese kitchen or the French restaurant, and in the first few days of travel he is liable to make feeble attempts at fancy touches in the dressing of meats or the serving of dishes, but in the course of time he comes to realize that this field cooking is a sober reality and not a fine art, and then he abandons his idiosyncrasies and allows his supper to assume that flavor of Dutch oven and camp-kettle which is inseparable from this manner of life. It is not only somewhat high-toned, but very nice to have a Chinaman for your kitchen-king, for he is clean, handy, obliging, and then it is so convenient to call him John. Still he is unsuited for this business, being unhappy if isolated from his companions, who may gather in his bones if he die, as he is very likely to do. "No, I will go no more," said one of them who started with us, speaking in that pathetic vernacular which I cannot imitate, "for if I ride in the wagon the teamster will kill me, and if I ride on a mule the mule will kill me. So I will go back to my wife at Los Angeles." This John had his bad habits, for he would drink the brandy from his pickle of natural history collections, composed mostly of horned toads and blue-tailed lizards, and he would pronounce rice with an initial "l" in place of the "r," which lapsus linguæ, as this grain is a prominent part of our dinner, was somewhat disagreeable. An old soldier makes a very good cook. An old miner would be so if he were not possessed with a passion for prospecting, as all miners are. A Frenchman would be invaluable if he were not eternally striving to disguise tripe under some very savory appearance and palm it off on you as something eatable. A German puts too much salt in his bread and onion in his stew, and an Irishman's broth is nothing if not potatoes. But an old soldier is the best, for he possesses that happy knack of preparing something of victual out of nothing, of material which comes so handy in this business sometimes. A veteran soldier is also cleanly uncomplaining, accustomed to scanty accommodations, long marches, and night-work in the kitchen. And never was the mother of ten children more of a drudge than our cook is; from five in the morning till ten at night he knows not a moment's rest. He must be at his breakfast before daylight, while the others sleep. He waits at the table while they eat. He snatches a bite for himself, washes the dishes, and packs the kitchen while the train is being prepared. Then he takes the lead with the bell-horse, and is damned throughout the day by the packers because he goes too fast or too slow. Since his animal is a slow and steady one, he must carry a barometer, a precious instrument containing a column of quicksilver in a fragile tube of glass, which is empty of air, and which is liable to be broken by a rude jar of its weighty contents. The trotting of a horse, a leap over a ditch, or a stumble among the rocks would carry ruin to a barometer, and it is a very careful meteorologist who brings his back in safety after a march of thousands of miles of this rough route. When camp is made cook goes for his firewood. Happy is he if it be a timbered country; unhappy if it be the plains, where there is nothing of fuel but sage-brush and the chip. Then he carries some water and gets supper, for in this life we have but two meals a day, breakfast at six and dinner and supper at six. This finished he washes his dishes again, and then until ten o'clock over the embers of the fire he bakes bread for the morrow, and his work is done.

—An eminent lawyer of Boston tells the following joke: A flashily-dressed young sprig entered Ben Butler's office and was requested by Benjamin to be seated. The request was complied with, and the young man was asked to state his business. "Well, Mr. B., what would be the first thing for me to do in order to learn the profession?" Benjamin fixed his weather eye upon the nobby-dressed young man and surveyed him from his flashy necktie to his highly-polished boots, and exclaimed: "The first thing you had better do would be to go and roll in a barn yard." An answer came as quick as the suggestion in the following terse language: "If I should come and study two years in your office, wouldn't it do just as well?"

—The rumor that Gen. J. E. Johnston was to take service under the Khedive of Egypt having been mentioned at one of the Virginia springs, a Confederate officer remarked, "If he should go there and an enemy should land a force on the Mediterranean shore of Egypt the sources of the Nile will be discovered at last."

—A Wyoming jury, composed of seven men and five women, were shut up for two days and nights and yet they couldn't agree. It is said that if they had remained out for seventeen years there would have been no verdict, as the women talked the seven men deaf the first six hours.—Brooklyn Argus.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the issue of The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $40.00, but costs only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas," By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descriptive of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most intensely interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 15 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.0 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents.'

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

City Councils.

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen held the final meeting Thursday evening. A bill entitled "An Ordinance providing for an annual convention of the City Councils, to declare the election of Mayor," was read, the rules suspended, passed, and sent to the Common Council for concurrence.

The Common Council gave notice that they had passed said bill in concurrence; also "A Joint Resolution relating to an act passed at the June session of the Legislature entitled 'An Act in relation to Sidewalks &c.'; "A Joint Resolution in regard to the north-westerly line of Middle st. between Cass st. and land of C. H. Mendum, and others;" and "A Joint Resolution relating to Surveyors' Districts."

Ordered, That the sum of $300 be paid Messrs. Brown and Barri for sprinkling the streets for 1875.

The Board then met the Common Council in convention.

The City Clerk laid before them the returns of the votes cast for Mayor in the several Wards on the second Monday of September, 1875.

The City Councils having examined the same declared Hon. Moses H. Goodrich elected Mayor for the municipal year beginning on the fourth Tuesday of September, 1875.

On motion the Convention arose.

In Mayor and Aldermen leave was granted Harry J. Freeman to encumber Islington st., and George Bilbruck to encumber Creek and Cambridge streets for building purposes under the usual restrictions.

A communication from the chairman of the Board of Health relative to a nuisance near Market Square was referred to the next Board.

The following resolution was adopted:

Resolved by the Board of Aldermen of the city of Portsmouth—That by the passage of this Resolution they wish to express their hearty approval of the able and impartial manner in which His Honor, the Mayor, has discharged his official duties in connection with this Board, and hereby express their best wishes for his future success and welfare.

Voted—That all unfinished business before this Board be referred to the next Board.

The committee on streets reported a bill entitled "An ordinance to secure a better sanitary condition of this city."

The bill was read a first and second times and passed under the suspension of the rules.

Voted—That the bill of Samuel S. Whidden and other bills now before the committee on claims be referred to the next Board.

Dr. Norton Again.

A Newburyport dispatch says that about one o'clock Thursday morning, Dr. Norton of Amesbury was called up to pull a tooth. After extracting the tooth the party handed him a bill to change and the Doctor took out his pocket book for the purpose. The men left the house, and very soon afterward he had a summons to go up on Friend street, near the Quaker meeting house. As he was on his way to answer the call he was assaulted by two men who shot twice at him, one ball passing through his hat and the second through his shoulder. He was then knocked down, and a towel saturated with chloroform was forced into his mouth and held over his nose. He was badly bruised during the scuffle. He was robbed of a gold watch and his pocket book containing $165. He was discovered some time afterward lying in the street in an unconscious condition. He was taken home and fainted twice while they were changing him from one room to another, and is now in a very critical condition, but the chances are in favor of his recovery. Dr. Norton thinks he recognized one of his assailants as one of the party to the tooth pulling performance. Dr. Norton is about forty years of age, moving to Amesbury from Portsmouth about a year since.

A dispatch to the Boston Globe says Dr. Norton was not wounded, and that for some reasons the public generally do not credit his story, though he bears a good reputation. The physicians are not very communicative, and it is not known at present whether any bones are broken or not, but the bullet holes have been examined, and, strangely though, are burnt. The query is, can a pistol-shot, discharged from across the road, burn a hole? And it is remarkable that a man could make three such shots without wounding the one fired at. However it may turn out, it is a very strange affair; if an attempt at robbery and murder, it was a most desperate and dastardly act, and if, as many suppose, it is a deception, practised for a purpose, it is, to say the least, a very bold step.

Jottings.

Three days' capital trotting closed at Rockingham Park Thursday, with a 2:50 race, and a match trot between Belle Dean and Snowflake. The 2:50 trot was won by Bessie Holbrook in 2:50, 2:50, 2:50 1-2, Stanstead second, (he taking first heat in 2:50) Nettie of Saco third. Belle Dean beat Snowflake three heats in 2:37 1-2, 2:37, 2:38, Snowflake taking first heat in 2:40. The sport has been excellent all through, but the attendance small, and consisting largely of out of town people. Portsmouth citizens do not seem to take kindly to horse trots, unless connected with a fair.

The pay-roll for laborers at the Concord railroad wharf has averaged $1000 per week during the season.

Mr. George G. Lougee, proprietor of the Sea View House, Rye Beach, has purchased a lot near the hotel, and will put up steam water works thereon for the supply of his hotel.

Mr. George Thompson has accepted the position of first clerk to Paymaster Putnam, at the navy yard. Mr. Hall Varrell, formerly first clerk, takes the second clerkship.

The 7:15 train from this city, Friday morning, ran over an unknown man while entering Dover. He stepped off one track and on the other, just as the train came along. He was thought to be a tramp and had no papers in his possession tending to identify him, with the exception of a card found in one of his pockets on which was a name, possibly of some other person. He was about sixty years old.

A tramp recently assessed several religious people in Danville a dollar each. He claimed to be a needy and worthy brother from Portsmouth.

There has been such a general desire for another excursion to the mountains that Station Agent Barrett has expressed himself as willing to forward any arrangement that the Eastern Railroad Company may find feasible. There is a movement on foot for a special train to be run, stopping only at Kittery and for wood and water. If two hundred tickets can be sold the train will be secured, the price of tickets to be but $2.50 each, and good for three days if the excursionists start on Thursday, or four days if on Wednesday. This is the most delightful season of the year for mountain travel.

Mr. Robert C. Sides, Jr., caught a cod-fish on Thursday, about two miles east of Boone island light, which weighed forty-six and a half pounds.

The County Convention heard the report of their committee appointed in June last, and of which 2000 copies were ordered to be printed. The committee and convention expenses foot up about $1000, and $14,000 additional appropriations were made for pauper and building expenses. The committee were authorized to complete the county house of correction at Brentwood, and erect a new asylum for the female insane paupers.

The proprietors of Congress Hall have arranged to have it entirely repainted, the walls frescoed in oil, and other improvements made that will add to the attractions of the Hall, which is extensively used for fairs, levees, assemblies, balls, etc.

Our dyspeptic neighbor of the Times became exceedingly muddy in expression on Thursday, and blazed away in a manner that indicates softening of the brain. Gup. is nothing if not personal, and the poor thing is so jealous and ill-natured because other people enjoy themselves, that he straightway falls into a condition of mind indicating a sour apple diet which is productive of more wind than nutriment. If we say the new caved-in reservoir is likely to cost a considerable sum, he observes that the Fabyan House waiters (judging by his own manner of conducting business) are slow because they are not "greased," which may be a fact, but as we are not there to see we cannot vouch for it. The eager greed with which the Times takes patronage from the city government is ever-present evidence that it only "lives in hopes," and so it defends every act of the democratic administration. When Gup. has the gripes, financial and otherwise, he goes on in a way that is ludicrous to observe, but as the cause is so well known, he only makes of himself a laughing stock for charitably disposed people, who, though having no sympathy with his state of billiousness, still have pity for the weakness he displays. The poor city organist must come out into the pure air and unload himself of the gathered-up inwardness of his truly moral nature occasionally, and then he is Gup. once more—the same old Gup., ready for mis-representation and the development of the meanest features of democratic journalism.

—The English critics complain that Carlyle is played out. In his latest book on the early Kings of Norway they accuse him of dealing out trifling commonplaces in his usual knotty style; commonplaces, moreover, gathered by him at second-hand, as he is unacquainted with the language of the early Northmen whom he writes about, and had to get his material from German translations.

—If the democratic party persists in its present headlong rush toward inflation and repudiation, it will lose the mass of the German vote. Deprived of this, it has but a slim chance of carrying a single Northern State next year. Just think, what Northern State can it carry without the German vote? The German vote of this State is solid for solid money.—Chicago Tribune.

Effects of Dissipation Counteracted.

Alcoholic excesses cannot be too earnestly deprecated, both for their destructive effects upon the constitution and their pernicious influence upon man's general welfare. At the same time there is little probability that he will cease to indulge in them until the end of time. Common humanity would therefore seem to dictate the suggestion of the most efficient means of counteracting their effects. There is not among medicated stimulants one so admirably calculated to counteract the physical consequences of hard drinking as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which relieve the nausea and headache produced by it, steady the trembling nerves, and yield that unfeverish repose which is the best recuperant of health shaken by excess. The bilious symptoms caused by dissipation are promptly relieved by the Bitters, which are also an excellent remedy for all disorders affecting the stomach, bowels, liver and urinary organs, to which it imparts unwonted regularity and tone.

LYON'S KATHAIRON prevents the Hair from falling out or turning gray, renews its growth, and gives strength and vigor. It is delightfully perfumed, and makes a splendid dressing. It is the cheapest and most desirable Hair Tonic ever produced. Used by the elite. Price only 50 cents.

RATTAN WARE
MANUFACTORY.
ONLY 4 Rattan Ware Factories in the United States, and one of them has just begun manufacturing in Portsmouth. The furniture made by this firm is made of the very best quality of East Indian Rattan, and for beauty, attractiveness, ease and durability is more desirable than any other furniture. We claim that the generality of our work is better than can be procured elsewhere in the United States. Few people comparatively have ever seen many pieces of this attractive furniture, and we cordially invite any one to call and examine our work even if they have no idea of purchasing. We warrant every piece of our ware to be as good as can be bought elsewhere and at less price.

Daily Chronicle.

—"Aunty, did God make that man?" whispered a little four-year-old to his companion, in the Jamaica Plains horse car, as he looked askance at Mr. Wah Lee, one of the new laundrymen from the flowery kingdom, who sat opposite. "Certainly, my dear," was the reply; "and why do you ask such a question?" "Because, aunty, He didn't make the hinges to his eyes on straight," said our little incipient mechanical engineer.—Boston Transcript.

DR. QUAIN'S MAGIC CONDITION PILLS.

NEW TESTIMONIALS.

—FOR—

Weak Lungs,
Constipation,
Lameness,
Liver Complaint,
Dyspepsia,
Paralysis,
Poor Blood and
Kidney Troubles.

One Box Dr. Quain's Condition Pills "Nearly Cured Where All Else Failed."

LOWELL, MASS, July 20th, 1874.

T. W. LANE:—I have used one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, am glad to state in my case they have proved all that you claim for them. I have been troubled with Bad Blood and all its consequent diseases, and have tried several kinds of Bitters and Pills without receiving much benefit, until I tried the CONDITION PILLS, and they have nearly cured where all else failed. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, very truly,
J. D. WHITAKER.

Testimony of a Clergyman---Liver and Kidney Troubles.

EAST TILTON, N. H., April 14, 1873.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are not only the best, but the very best I ever used. My wife has been troubled with Kidney Complaint many years; one half of a package has cured her, so that she feels as well as ever. I have been troubled with Liver Compaint for many years; one-half of a package has done me more good than all the Pills I ever took. One of my neighbors took them, who has been troubled with Liver Complaint for many years; three Pills have helped him. Your Pills, where used, commend their virtues. Please send to my address one package.

REV. JOHN DAVIS.

Liver Compaint and Rheumatism so that he Could not Sleep Nights.

I was born and always lived in Pittsfield, N. H.; am now 50 years old; been troubled with Liver Complaint for 20 years, and Rheumatism for 20 years, sometimes so I could not sleep nights. I have taken one package of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and they have done me more good and relieved more suffering than all the medicine I have taken during my life. S. S. RING.

Pittsfield, N. H., Dec. 17, 1874.

Fever and Ague.

NEW BOSTON, N. H., Feb. 1, 1875.

T. W. LANE.—Sir:—Last month I sent to you for a package of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS. I had tried five so-called ague cures, and I received more benefit from five of your pills than from all the "Cures" "Cholagogues," "Quinine," &c., that I have taken in two years. I cannot recommend it too highly for ague cases resulting from long standing Fever and Ague.

Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. C. GARLAND.

Scaly Humor Cured by One Package---Liver Complaint Helped.

NORTH SALEM, N. H., Jan. 5, 1875.

MR. LANE.—Dear Sir:—Your Pills are all they are recommended. I was troubled with a Scaly Humor on my legs; I took one package and my legs are quite smooth. My wife was troubled with Liver Complaint; she took one package and they helped her greatly.

Yours, with respect,
JOHN H. BLAKE.

From a Leading Citizen of Rindge.

WEST RINDGE, Cheshire Co., N. H., November 17, 1874.

THOS. W. LANE:—After taking three packages of DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, I am prepared to say they are the very best, for I have tried a great many kinds, and faithfully too, believing they would help me, to no effect.—These I do believe are the very best ever made; just the kind a man needs. May they be spread all over the wide world, and Dr. Quain's name a household word.

Yours truly,
ASA STICKNEY.

Felt Better, Stronger and Gained Flesh in One Week,

AFTER TAKING DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS.

ROLLINSFORD, N. H.

THOS. W. LANE:—I commenced to take DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS, and in one week I was heavier, felt better, and was stronger than before, and any one troubled with BAD BLOOD can find sure remedy in these Pills.

Nov. 3, 1874. L. M. YEATON.

CHESTER, N. H., Feb. 24, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been out of health for some time, and I took a very bad cold and it left my lungs in a very weak state. I received Dr. Quain's Condition Pills and took them according to the directions, and my lungs are some better, and can recommend them to any one who is troubled with weak lungs, for they have done me good, and I think another package will cure me. Dr. Quain's Pills ought to be known throughout the world. Please send me another package as soon as convenient.

Yours, &c., CYRUS LANE.

HILLSBOROBRIDGE, Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—Dr. Quain's Condition Pills are the best I ever used for lameness and pain. The first dose I took removed the pain and lameness that I have been troubled with for several years. Others have used quite a number of the pills besides myself. Please send another package by return of mail.

MRS. DANIEL KIMBALL.

GILMANTON I. W., N. H., Feb. 25, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have been taking Dr. Quain's Condition Pills, and can recommend them as far ahead of common pills for constipation of the bowels; they do not have the debilitating effect of common purgatives I have taken.

MRS. J. B. GOODWIN.

NORTHWOOD CENTRE, March 1, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I saw Dr. Quain's Condition Pills highly recommended, and sent for a package, and I feel that they have done more for me than all the medicine I have taken for years, and can freely recommend them to others, as a good and sure medicine. Please send me another package as soon as possible.

MARTHA NORCROSS.

BRISTOL, N. H., Feb. 27, 1875.

MR. THOS. W. LANE:—I have made a fair trial of those Condition Pills, and liked them very much. I think they are all they are recommended. They are a good Liver invigorator.

N. F. DANFORTH.

SALEM DEPOT, N. H., March 3, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I think these pills (Dr. Quain's Condition Pills) are all they claim to be; my wife and I are both victims of Liver and Kidney Complaint, and general debility. We have taken about half that package you sent me, and find a marked improvement in our health. I want four packages to give away in the north part of Vermont, to friends up there. I enclose $2.00, and if you can, send me four Packages. ROYAL SCOTT.

SOUTH PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., March 11, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have given Dr. Quain's Condition Pills a trial, and find I can honestly recommend them, they having materially improved the soreness and lameness with which I have been afflicted since getting upon my feet after the Paralytic stroke that I suffered last October. I desire you to send me another package as soon as convenient, as I am anxious to continue their use. Though not now a resident of New England, I have lived in Central Vermont more than fifty years, and trust Dr. Quain's Pills will not long be new in that section. MOSES SHELDON.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have been troubled with Biliousness, Headache, and Dizziness, for a long time, and had the Dyspepsia so bad there were but few kinds of food my stomach would bear at all. I commenced taking your pills, have taken most of one package, and now enjoy eating as well as I ever did. I am not troubled with dizziness unless by taking cold, and have been greatly benefited by the use of them. A. L. PAGE.

FRANCESTOWN, March 13, 1875.

THOS. W. LANE:—I have found Dr. Quain's Condition Pills to be all you claim for them in Kidney Complaint, poor blood, and weak nerves. May they be circulated over the land and found in every household where medicine is needed. I enclose 50 cts. for another package as soon as convenient.

JOHN T. FELCH.

Better Health than for 10 Years.

CHESTER, N. H., Oct. 17, 1874.

MR. LANE:—I have taken one package of Condition Pills; find them in my case all they are recommended; have not enjoyed so good health for the last ten years as I have since I commenced taking the Condition Pills. Shall be happy to recommend them to others. WILLIAM H. FELLOWS.

☞ DR. QUAIN'S CONDITION PILLS are sold by the Agent of the American Medicine Co. A package will be forwarded upon receipt of fifty cents, by THOMAS W. LANE, agent, Manchester, N. H.

For the convenience of the citizens of Portsmouth and vicinity an agency for the sale of DR. QUAIN'S PILLS has been established at the N. E. F. Union Store, Market street.

WARNER AND KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN HOTEL.

WARNER, (Merrimack County) N. H.,

FRED. SMITH, - - - - - - Proprietor.

THIS new house, containing fifty rooms in suites, having been thoroughly furnished with best spring beds and first-class furniture, was opened July 20th, 1875, for the reception of guests.

The magnificent drive over

THE NEW CARRIAGE ROAD, 8 MILES TO THE TOP OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN

and the view from the top, where

a hundred towns and villages, and fifty lakes and bodies of water

can be seen with the naked eye, will well repay the tourists for a trip from Boston or New York, while the other

Beautiful Drives,

Picturesque Scenery and

Pleasant Surroundings

make it one of the

MOST ATTRACTIVE SUMMER RESORTS

in New Hampshire. It has a good stable, laundry, and billiard room. It is only one hour's ride over the Concord & Claremont Railroad, from Concord, N. H., and three and a half hours from Boston, affording three daily mails from Boston during the summer. Families and invalids desiring to find health, comfort, pleasure, and a delightful summer home among the mountains, at reasonable prices, should not fail to visit Warner the coming season.

Hardy's White Sulphur Springs,

within five miles of the Hotel, the

BEAUTIFUL BEACHES

at Bradford Pond and Lake Sunapee, furnish

EXCELLENT FACILITIES FOR BATHING.

Mr. Proctor's new hotel at Andover, and the Winslow House on the opposite side of the mountain afford opportunities for splendid drives and excursions for guests stopping at this new chain of hotels around the

FAMOUS OLD KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN.

Business men residing in Boston or New York can spend Sunday with their families at Warner, losing but very little time,—in short, they

SAVE AT LEAST TWO DAYS' TIME

every week that would be required to join their families as far even as the White Mountains.

Warner Village, containing about one thousand inhabitants, is situated midway between the Merrimack and Connecticut rivers, AT THE FOOT OF KEARSARGE MOUNTAIN, and is fast becoming a popular place of summer resort. A LARGE NUMBER OF NEW COTTAGES are being built for the use of those desiring to keep house during the summer months, and arrangements have been perfected whereby HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE who do not desire to remain at the hotel permanently can be furnished with EXCELLENT ACCOMMODATIONS IN PRIVATE FAMILIES, AND AT FARM-HOUSES, at from $4 to $8 per week. In a word, it is proposed to open up around this fine old mountain, standing by itself

Nearly 3000 Feet Above The Level Of The Sea,

and from whose summit can be seen the WHITE MOUNTAIN RANGE, MTS. TOM AND HOLYOKE, THE UNCANOONUCS, JOE ENGLISH, and the towering peak of GRAND OLD MONADNOCK, with LESSER PEAKS AND MOUNTAIN-TOPS INNUMERABLE, an agreeable resort for tourists and invalids, with first-class accommodations, at moderate prices.

Health Regulations.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH OF THE CITY OF PORTSMOUTH call the attention of the public to the following sections of Chapter 10 of the City Ordinances and invite all interested in the preservation of health in the city to them in the execution of their duty.

CHAPTER X.

Sec. 3. All waste water of houses, yards, cellars, sinks, pumps, &c. shall be conveyed by their owners or occupiers to the common sewers, or to such places as the health officers may direct.

Sec. 4. No person shall be allowed to throw any vegetable or dead animal substance or any other matter capable of producing infection, into any street, lane, alley or dock, or upon any wharf, but shall bury them or throw them into the river below low-water mark.

Sec. 5. The contents of vaults and privies shall not be permitted to rise within one foot of the surface of the earth. And all owners or occupiers of buildings having such buildings having such vaults or privies as may require it, shall cause them to be emptied within ten days from the promulgation of this ordinance, and in future on or before the first day of May in each year. And any such owner or occupier neglecting so to do, shall forfeit and pay for every such neglect a sum not less than than three nor more than twenty dollars, and a like sum for every week's neglect after the time above specified.

Sec. 6. No vender of meat at the stalls shall be permitted to leave any stale meat, heads, feet or offal of any kind about their stalls or stores over night, or suffer them to be thrown into any street, lane or alley of the city. Nor shall any sellers of fish be permitted to throw any offals of fish into any street, lane or alley of the city, or upon any wharf but shall either bury them or throw them into the river beyond low-water mark.

Sec. 7. If any dead animal or decaying vegetable substance, or any other nuisance, shall be found in any part of the city, the owners or occupiers of the premises where such nuisance shall be found, shall cause the same to be removed within twenty-four hours after being notified so to do by one or more of the health officers.

Sec. 12. When any householder shall know that any person within his family is taken sick of the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, he shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 13. When any physician shall know that any person whom he is called to visit is infected with the small pox, or any other disease dangerous to the public health, such physician shall immediately give notice thereof to the health officers.

Sec. 14. If any such householder or physician shall refuse or neglect to give the notice required in the preceding sections, he shall for each refusal or neglect forfeit the sum of twenty dollars, to be recovered by either of the health officers in the name of the city.

Sec. 16. The health officers may give written notice to the owner or occupier of any building, vessel or enclosure, to remove or destroy any nuisance or other thing deemed by them, on examination, to be injurious to the public health, within a certain time limited therein; and in case such owner or occupier —the said notice having been given to him, or left at his usual place of abode—shall neglect to comply therewith, the said health officers may, by direction of the mayor and accompanied by the city marshal forcibly enter such building, vessel or enclosure, and cause said nuisance or other thing aforesaid to be removed or destroyed.

Sec. 21. No person shall erect, keep or continue or permit to be erected, kept or continued, upon any land occupied by him, any pen for the keeping of swine, or privy, over either of the mill ponds in this city, or so placed that offensive substances therefrom shall be discharged or drained into either of said ponds, or into any creek, or cove or drain leading thereto. And no person shall construct, keep or continue any drain leading from any pen for the keeping of any swine, slaughter-house, privy vault, or other unwholesome or offensive place, into either of said ponds, or to any flat or marsh adjoining the same. And no person shall throw or suffer to be thrown from his land into either of said ponds, or upon any of said flats or marshes, any dead, decaying, unwholesome or offensive animal or vegetable substances.

LOCAL AGENTS WANTED.

An Agent Wanted for Each Town and County in the United States.

Parties desiring to act as agents must accompany their application by a letter of recommendation as to character and responsibility from and signed by the Editor of a newspaper published in the town or county for which the agent proposes to act. The agency is to sell the bonds of the Industrial Exhibition Company.

BONDS, $20 EACH.
HALF BONDS, $10 EACH.
QUARTER BONDS, $5 EACH.

The Industrial Exhibition Company will furnish agents with circulars, etc., etc.

Each newspaper published in the town where an agent is located will, as soon as the agency is established, be given an advertisement, advertising such agency and the Company, and fully explaining the plans, purposes and objects of the Company. Such advertisement will continue in such papers as long as an agency is successfully conducted.

The Industrial Exhibition Company is the first to adopt the plan so long in use by the European governments of issuing bonds when the principal is made secure and not risked, but where there is a chance for a large premium, an investment of $20 is sure to return to the investor $21—one dollar more than cost—and the holder of a $20 Bond may obtain a premium either of $50, $100, $200, $500, $1,000, $3,000, $5,000, $10,000, $25,000 or $100,000. The interest, which is ordinarily distributed to all the bond holders pro rata, is in this loan distributed by chance. The purchaser of a bond knows he will receive back his investment, with a small rate of interest, he has a chance in the above named premiums, which are simply the distribution of interest on the whole loan.

Each bond participates in four drawings each year, until it has drawn a premium, when it is surrendered, the premium paid, and the bond cancelled.

The Industrial Exhibition Company, under a special charter granted by the State of New York, is given authority to issue these bonds. The Legislature of the State, recognizing the great benefits which will arise from the success of late enterprise, have exempted all the real estate and property of the Company from taxation and assessments for five years, and has also conferred other great privileges.

Every American who understands the purposes of this Company will, of a necessity, feel a pride in aiding it to a successful termination.

Each individual who buys a bond becomes an owner and an interested party, and when he views the structure erected with his money can say, "I aided to erect in our country the most magnificent building the world has ever seen, a palace which, in truth, represents the industry, energy and mechanical genius of the American people."

The manufacturers and the inventors of America are peculiarly interested in the success of this enterprise, for the reason that it is to be their home, where all their inventions and manufactures can be exhibited and sold.

The building will contain 5,320,000 square feet of space.

Purchasers desiring Bonds before an agency is established where they reside, will communicate direct with this office, from where they can be supplied.

Parties desiring to act as agents or to purchase bonds will address

Pulmocine Cordial.

BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL

is no new discovery. Twenty-three years ago it was used by one of New England's most famous physicians as the best Pulmonary Curative he could prescribe, after a dozen years spent in experimenting with it before he was satisfied that the Materia Medica could add nothing in its favor.

Is the ultima thule of Medical Discovery.

Among its many ingredients are Wild Cherry Bark, Squill Root, Liquorice Root, Blood root, &c. It is a Blood Purifier, gently stimulating. It increases expectoration and is diuretic. It is sudorific and alterative. It is a necessary family medicine. It is a Tonic and a powerful aid to the digestive organs. It is a gentle sedative, and relieves nervousness. It is aromatic and agreeable to the taste.

CLEAR YOUR THROAT!

Relieve Your Lungs.

For the terrible diseases engendered by the lung-trying climate of New England,

PULMOCINE CORDIAL

Is a speedy and reliable Preventive and Remedy. Every Family should have a bottle at hand to check the sudden growth of all Pulmonary Diseases. For the Asthma, Coughs, Croups, Laryngitis, or inflammation of the larynx, Diphtheria, and all kindred Throat Diseases at all times prevalent, it is the ounce of Prevention. Children attacked with Whooping Cough or Croup should be immediately cared for. These painful attacks come with scarcely a moment's warning, when a physician may be out of immediate reach. A dose of PULMOCINE CORDIAL gives speedy relief, and the little ones are spared hours of pain and agony. As "a stitch in time saves nine," so does the possession of this Family Medicine prevent the spread of disease. Parents seeing their children gasping with pain, friends and relatives beholding each other in peril from suffocation by the choking pain in the throat, paralyzed with fear and not knowing the best course to pursue, are liable to apply the wrong remedial agent. There is no safety in delay, no time to waste in such cases. CONSUMPTION, that fearful scourge of the human race, lies at the door of all thus afflicted. BUCHMAN'S PULMOCINE CORDIAL arrests it (unless in its advanced stage at which time there is no local cure) relieves the pressing, suffocating feeling at the lungs, and the patient's danger is past.

For Coughs,

Croup,

Diphtheria,

Asthma, etc.,

USE

Buchman's Pulmocine Cordial.

The Pulmocine Cordial is not a quack medicine, is not an experiment, is not composed of any ingredients "discovered" by "walking in pastures" in South America or anywhere else, nor by one who discovered a weed and thereby cured himself. Most of the ingredients are such as our best educated physicians daily use for the complaints specified in some form or other. The recipe is that perfected by one of New England's most learned and famous physicians, who used it entirely in his daily practice until his death. It is offered to the profession and to the public, absolutely pure and unadulterated.

The Artesian Well.

Max Adeler has the following: "They have been boring an artesian well out at the iron foundery, and for some time the work seemed to go along very nicely. The boring was done with a two-inch auger fixed to the end of an iron rod, which was twisted around by a wheel worked by two men. One day, after they had gone down a good many feet, they tried to pull the rod out, but it would not come. They were afraid to use much force lest the auger should come off and stay in the hole, and so as the boring went along well enough they concluded to keep on turning, and to trust to the force of the water, when they struck it, to drive the loose dirt up from the hole. When they had gone down about 350 feet, they began to think it queer that there were no signs of water; but they bored a hundred feet farther, and one day, just as they were beginning on another hundred, there was an excitement at Mr. Murphy's.

Murphy lived next door to the foundery, and on the day in question his boy came running into the house and told him to come into the garden quick, for there was some kind of an extraordinary animal with a sharp nose burrowing out of the ground. Murphy concluded that it must be either a potato bug or a grasshopper that had been hatched in the spring, and he took out a bottle of bug poison to drop on it when it came up. When Murphy reached the spot, there certainly was some kind of a creature slowly pushing its way up through the sod. Its nose seemed to resemble a sharp point like steel. Murphy dropped some poison on it, but it didn't appear to mind the stuff, but kept slowly creeping up from the ground. Then Murphy felt it, and was astonished to find that it felt exactly like the end of a fork prong. He sent the boy in to call Perkins and the rest of the neighbors. Pretty soon a large crowd collected, and by this time the animal had emerged to the extent of a couple of inches.

Everybody was amazed to see that it looked exactly like the end of a large auger, and two or three timid men were so scared at the idea of such a thing actually growing out of the earth that they suddenly got over the fence and left. Perkins couldn't account for it, but he suggested that maybe somebody might have planted a gimlet there, and it had taken root and blossomed out into an auger; but he admitted that he never heard of such a thing before.

Murphy said if that kind of thing would work, he probably might go into the business regularly, and raise axes by planting hatchets, and guns by sowing pistols. The excitement increased so that the men who were boring the artesian well knocked off and came over to see the phenomenon. It was noticed that as soon as they stopped work the auger ceased to grow, and when they arrived they looked at it a minute, and one of them said:

"Bill, do you recognize that auger?"

"I think I do," said Bill.

"Well, Bill, you go and unbitch that wheel from the other end of the rod."

Bill did so; and then the other man asked the crowd to take hold of the auger and pull. They did and out came four hundred and fifty feet of iron rod. That auger had slid off to the side and turned upward, and came to the surface in Murphy's garden. Then the artesian well was abandoned, and Brown, the foundery man, bought a steam pump and began to get water from the river.

—"No," he said contemptuously "it's easy enough for a man to make money nowadays. Times are different from what they was. Then there was solid work about it. Now all you have to do is to take your surplus and buy things when they're low and sell when they're high, and there it is in a nutshell. A child could do it. By the way," he added, "could you lend me half a dollar for a few days?"—Norwich

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1875.

News and Notes.

Gen. William F. Bartlett, a republican who was placed on the Massachusetts democratic ticket last week as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor, is spoken of as a compromise candidate for the republican nomination for Governor.

Secretary Delano has placed his resignation in the hands of President Grant, and gone West, where it is hoped he will be obliged to remain.

The Philadelphia Press puts the following question: "What is the issue in Pennsylvania?" and answers it by saying, "Simply that of maintaining good Government." Nine years of republican administration in the State have cut down the debt from $35,622,652 to $24,568,628. That is the kind of operation the people would like to see continued.

"Allen or honesty" is now put as the campaign issue in Ohio.

While Stewart L. Woodford was speaking in Ohio recently, a drunken man in the audience rose, and in a thick-toned way said: "See here, mister, I am one of them fellers that wants more money." Woodford dropped the thread of his argument, and pointing to the man said: "Well, my friend, you only serve to point the moral to my tale. Now, if you would resume work and inflate less with whiskey you would soon have more money." The crowd saw the point of the application, and amidst loud cheering the over-stimulated man sat down badly routed.

D. W. Voorhees of Indiana will take the stump in Ohio for rag money, and talk continuously from October 4, until the republican ticket is elected.

The thickness of the corn husks indicates another hard Winter, but there is one poor old man who will be provided for. A good old New Hampshire woman, 101 years old, is knitting a pair of socks for A. T. Stewart. —Courier-Journal.

Col. M. W. Tappan of Concord, has an apple tree in his orchard, which was in full bloom last week. It did not bloom in the Spring.

Fire broke out about 10.30 o'clock Thursday evening, Sept. 23, in the upper part of the store occupied by Richards & Co., druggists, Farmington, Me., on the east side of Main street, and rapidly spread to the adjoining buildings, until four stores on Main street were in flames and two on Broadway. The progress of the fire was only checked by tearing down an adjoining building on Main street and one on Broadway. The loss cannot be estimated at less than $30,000.

The Ohio republicans are still confident of victory, and the democrats are not a bit less so.

A Paris special says it is announced that the Prince Imperial will soon make a tour around the world. The reason alleged for the tour is that it is thought necessary for the completion of his education. It is believed the real purpose is to prevent the Bonapartists from taking any premature action for a restoration of the dynasty in the present unfavorable phase of the popular mind.

The Brooklyn Eagle, a leading democratic organ, actually denounces Gov. Allen and advises the hard money democrats of Ohio to vote for Hayes, the republican candidate.

The solar eclipse of September 29, Wednesday next, it appears, will be visible from no established observatory in the world excepting that of Harvard University. Even here it will not be visible during the whole period of the overshadowing of the sun, as the eclipse begins about half an hour before sunrise. The sun will appear but slightly above the horizon, the annular phase beginning at 6h. 21m. 10s. and continuing 3m. 12s. A. M., the sun's apparent altitude between five and six degrees. At New York (Mr. Rutherford's Observatory) the greatest phase, 0.91, occurs at 6h. 10m. A. M., twenty-five minutes after sunrise, the eclipse ending at 7.25. At Halifax, N. S., the greatest phase, 0.90, is at 6.56, with the sun at an altitude of 11 degrees, and the end of the the eclipse at 8.05. The phenomenon will also be visible in Africa and southwestern Europe. At Cambridge the eclipse ends at 7.32 A. M.

The New York Herald says that Gov. Tilden is already meditating on the course he will pursue if the inflationists should seem likely to get the upper hand in the National democratic convention. Unless he sees a reasonable probability of controlling the convention he and his hard money supporters will break up the democratic organization and attempt to form a new party.

The Cincinnati Enquirer says the ballot-boxes will have to be surmounted with mansard roofs to hold all of the Allen votes; and the Commercial, speaking less generally, gives these reasons for believing Allen will be defeated: "Sixty thousand republicans did not vote for Noyes in 1873. Allen's majority was 817. The 60,000 absentees will be at the polls this time. Now the democrats may bring out their full vote and gain 2,000 or 3,000 'working-men,' wheedled by the paper money delusions and yawping demagogries that are applied to them; and yet Hayes will have a handsome majority. You will have to hang up the shovel and the hoe, Uncle William! and you will not be permitted to hold the country up by the tail any longer! But take care to perish in the arms of the people."

The Salmon Falls mills have been stopped for three months, and the balance sheet shows a loss for the year of $24,000, or four per cent. on the capital of $600,000. The stoppage of the mills has not cleared off the would be glad to dispose of even at a loss of 10 per cent. Notwithstanding this, the directors have concluded to try the hazardous experiment of starting up their largest mill on the 1st of October.

The Cocheco Print Works and Mills of Dover, have real estate and machinery which probably cost a million and a half. This has been marked down to half a million, which leaves so small a dividend surface that very moderate profits suffice to make good dividends. The print works have paid a handsome profit during the past year, but on the gray goods manufactured the profit has been very small. The works run twelve machines, which print about 34,000,000 of yards of calico a year, one-half of the cloth of which is made in the mills of the company, and the other half purchased from other mills. At present about 150 machines in various parts of the country are idle from lack of orders, and the margin of profit, on those at work, is reduced to a very small figure. With the cost of cloth at 5 1-4 cents a yard, and the printing at 2 1-4 cents, after deducting the inevitable trade discount and the cost of selling, which is equal to four tenths of a cent a yard, there remains but little if any more than one-tenth of a cent a yard profit for the printer, which is certainly very close work, too hazardous to allow of any accumulation of goods.

Gen. S. G. Griffin of Keene will be in command of the camp of the Veterans' reunion next month.

Joaquin Miller writes to the Independent about the President at Long Branch, closing his article by saying: "I must say that some weeks of idling about the Branch, where the President was to be seen almost daily, some little intercourse with him, some conversation on knotty subjects, which it seems to me Congress only succeeds in tying up tighter every time it touches them, some close observation in that gentle and happy household, and all that, assures me that the man is not only a very great man, as the world has long since said, but also a very good man, indeed."

Commander Henry Erben has been ordered to duty as senior aid at the navy yard. Commander Charles E. Carpenter is detached from the navy yard and placed on waiting orders.

A despatch from Galveston says everything is in good working order again. The poor people suffered most. The damage to the buildings of the Texas Cotton Press Company is estimated at $1500; injury sustained by the Gulf City Press, $5000; Southern presses lost about $2000; The Winnie Street Horse Car Railroad Company lose $3000 or $4000. The total loss in Galveston is estimated at $200,000; it is also estimated that 50,000 bales of cotton have been destroyed in the interior. The damage to the Galveston and Houston Railroad is estimated at $10,000 to $15,000. Two houses only are standing at Indianola; 200 people were lost. It is said the first reports were exaggerated.

Mr. G. T. Mosher, for several years asistant editor of the Morning Star, in Dover, has been elected editor-in-chief, vice the Rev. Dr. Day, deceased.

A crowded meeting, composed of the principal manufacturers of Paris, has been held for the purpose of inducing participation in the Philadelphia exhibition, and of furthering the interests of the exhibitors. A resolve was unanimously adopted declaring that a representation of French manufactures at Philadelphia is to the interest of France, in a patriotic as well as an economic sense, and the meeting engages itself to do all in its power to attain this object.

Willie Robinson, a three-year old child of Mrs. Rhoda Robinson, who lives on Merrimack street, Manchester, fell into Merrimack Square Pond Thursday while playing on the brink, and was drowned.

Messrs. J. Lewis Mitchell and Warren Hoyt have bought the Haverhill Daily and Weekly Bulletin of Andrew J. Hoyt & Co.

The British Royal Society has "researched" for a period of more than 200 years, and failed to discover a single case of sudden change in the color of human hair. This spoils whole pages of poems, novels and newspaper items.

The Spingler House of New York City has the reputation of being the quietest and coziest hotel in Gotham. It is centrally located, easily reached by street cars or stages from all steam-boat lines and railroad depots, thus saving carriage hire to its guests. It is kept on the European plan. The rates of charges are decidedly lower than at the larger hotels, while the rooms, restaurant, and other accommodations cannot be excelled. Passengers for New York will do well to give the Spingler House—Union Square—a trial.

Olive Logan is incapacitated for literary work for the present by a painful attack of inflammation of the eyes. She is confined to a darkened room, and is forbidden by her medical adviser even to read, much less write.

The Nation says: "It is becoming every day clearer that the two great political parties are likely to go to pieces on the financial question, in spite of the efforts of both to prevent it, pending elections, there will be substantially two new parties—one for inflation and one for resumption."

A man and woman, at Robinson Hall, Brooklyn, fell headforemost to the floor from the ceiling, while attempting trapeze movements. Both are believed to be fatally injured.

John Rogers, the sculptor, was a clerk in the Amoskeag shops at Manchester, twenty years ago, and his old friends there have clubbed together to place all his statuettes in the art rooms of the State House.

The Witness, the cheap religious daily of New York, has succumbed to the inevitable, having sank $100,000 in four years.

intendents of Schools in California fared badly in the late election, only one having been successful, so far as heard from.

How is it that nearly every democratic paper at the South is for inflation? How is it that your peace democrats, who thought the war a failure, and the greenbacks unconstitutional, are now the loudest to demand more of them? Men who wanted the Union to fail, and prophesied that its pledges would be worthless, are striving to make their predictions good.

Ex-Speaker Galusha A. Grow, after many years of retirement, takes the republican stump in Pennsylvania, being drawn out by the money question.

Gov. Allen of Ohio told a correspondent of the New York Tribune that his election would insure the nomination of a Western man for President and the ratification of the financial plank of the Ohio platform by the National convention. He frankly avowed his desire to see the gold bonds paid in greenbacks.

The community at Nottingham was very much excited in regard to the supposed poisoning of Enoch Glover by his wife, and his subsequent death. An inquest was in consequence held by order of the Selectmen. Dr. T. M. Gould, of Raymond, officiated as coroner. The jury consisted of Dr. Downs, Messrs. Bartlett and John H. Cilley. Dr. Gould and Dr. Burnham examined the body and decided that Glover died of apoplexy. A large clot of blood was found in his brain. The jury agreed to such decision and this relieves the wife of the suspicion of poisoning, which suspicion was strengthened by the fact that one or more physicians decided that she poisoned him last year.

To do nothing is to be ruined. We must emancipate labor from this hideous bondage to a varying currency, or universal bankruptcy is near. To the republican party, which has destroyed one cruder form of slavery, let white labor, also enslaved by false money, stretch forth its hands for freedom. Not until we make gold the only money which the poor man need ever see or touch, will labor in this land be free indeed.

The Veteran Soldier's Re-union which was to have been held at the Fair Grounds in Manchester during the first week in October, has been postponed to the 13, 14 and 15 of the same month. It appears that the lessees of the track have made an arrangement for a horse trot on the date first announced for the reunion, with the apparent design of turning an honest penny. The committee of the Veteran's Association are not satisfied with this arrangement and as it cannot be postponed have "changed front," and will probably hold the reunion at Massabesic pond, about four miles from Manchester proper. A new circular giving information on the subject will be issued in a few days. Arrangements have been made with all the railroads whereby a reduction of fare will be made.

Struck by Lightning.

How does it feel to be struck by lightning? The question has been answered by a correspondent of Nature, who writes as follows:

The house in which, with my family, I have passed the winter stands in the centre of Torbay and close to the sea. In the garden, which gives access to the shore is a flagstaff fifty feet high, with a metal vane at the top, and having the mast steadied at about twenty-five feet frym the ground in the usual way with iron wire guys About a foot above ground each wire rope terminates in a half-inch chain which is anchored a few feet in the soil. These chains are much corroded, their original diameter being reduced here and there to an eighth of an inch.

February 25 was a rainy day during the forenoon, with heavy wind from the south-east, but in the afternoon the sky cleared. There had been no sign of thunder all day. At 5 P. M., my wife, my son and myself were standing under the flagstaff and within ten feet of a mooring chain, watching the bay, when the vane was suddenly struck by lightning, which broke the mast short off in two places, tearing and splitting the wood between the vane and the iron guy ropes. Through these the discharge then passed to the ground, but three out of the four mooring chains were broken. Not only one, but many links in each of these chains were snapped, both above and below gsound, and several of the links were broken in two places at once. The fractures were crystalline, and showed no signs of heat. On the garden path, and within a yard of myself, stood an iron roller, toward which the discharge ploughed two shallow furrows in the gravel; one of these is eight feet long and terminates in a splash of gravel upon the roller.

"I must now attempt to describe the effect on ourselves and the impression on our senses, though I am conscious of difficulty in avoiding subjective matter here. Of the three, my wife only was "struck" and fell to the ground, my son and myself remaining erect, and all three retaining consciousness. For more than half an hour my wife lost the use of her lower limbs and left hand, both of which became rigid. From the feet to the knees she was splashed with rose colored tree-like marks branching upwards, while a large tree-like mark, with six principal branches diverging from a common centre, thirteen inches in its largest diameter and bright rose red-covered the body. None of us are certain of having seen the flash, and my wife is sure she saw nothing. As to the noise, my wife heard a "bellowing" sound, a "squish," recalling fireworks; my son also heard a "bellow," while I seemed conscious of a sharp explosion. My wife describes her feeling as that of "dying away gently into darkness," and being roused by a tremendous blow on the body, where the chief mark was afterwards found. My son and myself were conscious vere and distinctly electrical shock in both legs. My left arm, shoulder and throat especially suffered violent disturbance, but I did not think it was electrical. As I turned to help my wife, who was on the ground, I shouted, as I thought, that I was unhurt, and hoped they were also, but it seems I only uttered inarticulate sounds, and my son, in his first attempt to answer, did the same. This, however, was only momentary; in an instant we both spoke plainly.

Neither of us referred the occurrence immediately to its true cause, but the idea of being fired at was present to all our minds; my wife, indeed, remained of the opinion that she was shot through the body, until she heard me speak of lightning. An infinitesimal lapse of time enabled my son and myself to recognize lightning; but I cannot say whether I did so before or after my first glimpse of the wreck on the ground. Neither of us heard or saw the mast fall, though it descended fifty feet, and fell on hard gravel close to us. My son and myself both experienced a momentary feeling of intense anger against some person or persons unknown, further showing that we primarily referred the shock to some conscious agency. I ought, perhaps, to add, that neither of us felt any sensation of fear at the time; but we were all very nervous for several days after.

"I have endeavored to keep to fact throughout, but I venture to add a remark made by my wife as we raised her from the ground, "I feel quite sure that death from lightning must be absolutely painless;" and I offer it as an unconscious corroboration of views on this subject which our experience seems to strengthen. Though no electrician, I conclude from the splash of gravel on the garden roller that the discharge was from cloud to earth, and the oxidized mooring-chains being inadequate to carry it all to the ground, my wife formed a conductor for one of many sprays flying in all directions from the broken links."

A Bewitched Boy.

[Reading Eagle.]

The bewitched Diener boy at Boyertown is the event of the season, and nothing else is talked about in this region. For the purpose of getting the facts in the case, we recently visited Boyertown and interviewed the lad and his parents. The lad said he was nearly ten years old, and that his name was Henry Oscar Diener. He is of stout built, regular features, rosy cheeks, clear, intelligent blue eyes, and prominent forehead.

He converses with ease and appeared to have had some little education. His general appearance indicated health, and no matter what produces the "spells" with which he is afflicted, no bodily ailment was noticeable. Here is what his father, Adam Diener, and his mother, who formerly resided in Reading, had to say about the remarkable affair:

Last March one year ago he had the first spell, and with the exception of several months last Spring he had one, and sometimes two every day. While the fit is on, his eyes become glassy, face contorted, hands cold and skin of a livid hue. He will spring over chairs, sit on their backs squirrel fashion, suspend himself by his hands to nails in the wall, jump out and in windows, and perform a feat which the most expert show actor would not dare to undertake—that is, of walking around the room on the surbase, the width of which is not over one inch. He at times becomes furious, and the family are obliged to keep their distance. He scratches and bites but does not raise an arm to strike. He passes around the floor on all fours like a dog or any other four-footed animal. He imitates to perfection the mewing of a cat, the barking of a dog, the chirping of a bird, neighing of a horse, and the bleating of a lamb. While the spell is on he frequently breaks crockery ware and upsets the furniture, but was never known to sustain any injury to his person therefrom. The fit, or whatever it may be termed, usually lasts about half an hour, and when it leaves him he awakes as though from a dream, seemingly much refreshed. He can tell all that took place while in that state with a clearness and minuteness most remarkable. Now the family really believe that the boy is bewitched, and base their arguments on the following incidents connected with the affair: The first day he had a spell it was brought about, they say, through his falling out with an old woman of seventy, residing with her daughter in Engleville, about one mile distant. The woman is said to be a sort of sorceress, and from some cause not explained she took a deep dislike to the boy. He passed her house daily on his way to school, and upon one occasion he refused to accept a piece of bread from her hands, she went over a long rigmarole of incantations, and remarked that the devil would take possession of his body for a certain time every day of his life. Last April the old hag visited Chester county, and remained away until about two weeks ago. Most remarkable to state, the boy had no spells while she was gone, but on the very day of her return they returned also. The woman on that day was seen by the neighbors in front of the boy's residence making peculiar motions with her arms, and drawing circles in the sand. Last Thursday week Mr. Diener took his son to Reading to a witch doctor, on Neversink street, who now has his case in hand. No medicine was prescribed, the modus operandi of the treatment being purely of the black art kind, and the family are forbidden to divulge the nature of the cabalistic signs and incantations they are obliged to perform.

Yesterday one week ago, while father and son were sitting on a settee in a down stairs room, the boy broke out, and after squirming around the room, suddenly seemed to pick up something from the floor. He closed his hand and refused to open it until he returned to himself, when it was found to contain a twenty-five cent of the witch's house, and enter the window and drop to the floor. He further says that a long red string was attached to it, which disappeared again out of the window. The father says no one in the house is known to have had a single cent of money less than a $1 bill. The scrip was placed under a glass, and by instructions of the doctor (?) it was torn in half last Sunday, the one part being retained while the other was burned in a brimstone fire.

Mr. Diener, the father, is a man of ordinary calibre. His wife seems, mentally, the stronger of the two. Both are firm in their belief that the boy is bewitched. The neighbors to a great extent share in their opinion, and in consequence considerable excitement oxists in that locality. Hundreds visit the boy daily, and the story we have related here is the one repeated by the party to all those who call.

Terrible Encounter with a Bear.

[Salt Lake Tribune.]

Near Lake Town, a small settlement at the south end of Bear lake, Utah, a terrible conflict occurred a few days ago between two young men of Bailey and Burrill's surveying party and a grizzly bear. A bear had been prowling about the camp, and in the morning young Lowe, accompanied by Howland Stevenson, tracked bruin to a thicket of brush, which they had concluded to set fire to and then climb up on a neighboring ledge of rocks from which to shoot at him as he should come out. They stepped a few feet into the brush, when they came upon a huge she grizzly with a cub.

Young Lowe, being near her head, was seized by the leg and fell upon his back. As he fell she caught his head between her ponderous jaws, the teeth of one being deeply embedded near his left ear, while the teeth of the other horribly lacerated the right cheek and broke his lower jaw. Stevenson, who had fallen headlong into the brush over the monster's back, had by this time recovered himself and given bruin a charge of buckshot in the side, but without much effect.

When Lowe fell his gun, with both hammers raised, was lying with the muzzle upon his chin, but he managed to get it turned upon the bear, and pulling the trigger sent a heavy charge of buckshot into her throat. She loosed her grip and rolled over apparently dead. Stevenson assisted Lowe to camp, and, last evening, accompanied by his father, the unfortunate young man reached his home in this city. He is getting on as well as possible under the circumstances.

—A youngster being required to write a composition upon some portion of the human body selected that which unites the head to the body and expounded as follows: ,,A throat is convenient to have, especially to roosters and ministers. The former eats corn and crows with it; the latter preaches through his'n and then ties it up. This is pretty much all I can think of about necks."

—John Henry had a dinner guest recently and during a pause in the conversation the enfant terrible spoke up, "I wish I was you?" "Do you, little boy; and why do you wish you were me?" "Cos you don't get your ear pinched when you eat vittles with your knife.

—Keely wears diamonds. Aha! There's your poor struggling mechanic, is he? Now where's that motor? Bring out that motor, or pay us back that $8,000,000 we gave you for half a share of stock? Bring it out, quick, or—!—Inter-Ocean.

The Lakeside Library

is published semi-monthly, and each issue contains a COMPLETE NOVEL, by one of the great authors of the world, as Charles Reade, Dickens, Scott, Anthony Trollope, Jules Verne, etc., etc. The completion of long and important novels in a single issue, is the most unique and valuable feature yet introduced into the periodical literature of the day, and is peculiar to The Lakeside Library.

Each issue of The Library contains a Complete Novel, that would cost in the book stores, on the average, $1.50 each; yet the price of the same in The Library is only 10 cents if you buy a single copy from your newsdealer, or only 9 cents if you subscribe for a year. The whole series of 24 numbers will contain Twenty-two Complete Novels, worth about $30.00, but cost only $2.15 in The Library!

Occasionally we shall issue double numbers, to contain unusually long and important works, as "The Law and The Lady," by Wilkie Collins, and "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Sea," by Jules Verne. When this is necessary, both numbers of the story will be issued together, so that the complete work will be in the reader's hands at once. In such cases three numbers will be issued in one month. ☞ Hence all subscriptions are received for 24 numbers.

Our next issue, Nos. 14 and 15, will be a splendid Double number complete and unabridged with Eight characteristic illustrations, containing the famous

Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas,"

By JULES VERNE.

This wonderful book is descripture of a voyage of 20,000 leagues under the surface of the sea! No one acquainted with Verne's peculiar and dramatic style need be told that this, his greatest book, is most interesting. It lays bare the mysteries of the mighty deep—its sunken wrecks; submarine forests; the grotesque, hideous and awful creatures who dwell therein; the beautiful coral caves; its treasures of gold, silver and jewels lost in Spanish ships of olden days. Yet so quaintly, and with such an air of candor is the story told, that you can hardly believe you are not reading a transcript from a ship's log-book. Sent by mail by the publishers, post-paid, for 25 cents.

☞ There is only one other edition published, which costs $4.00.

Subscribe now, and get all the back numbers, that your set may be complete. The entire set of 24 numbers gives you a really choice library of Standard and Famous Novels, worth in book form about $40.00, and at a cost of only $2.15, including prepayment of postage—or about the price of one single book in ordinary book form. "The Portent," for instance, costs as a Bound Book, 1.75, and is published in No 12 of The Library for only 10 cents! And "Twenty Thousand Leagues under the Seas" costs as a Bound Book $4.00, and is published in Nos. 14 and 15 of The Library for only 20 cents!

☞ Each of these books is complete and unabridged, and costs in the bookstores from $1.0 to $4.00. Order a few samples.

Price, $2.15 for 24 numbers. Sold by all news dealers. Address,

Jottings.

Mr. David A. Neil, messenger for the U. S. and Canada express, jumped off the Dover train on Saturday morning just before it stopped, and falling broke his leg.

The new fishing Schooner Annie H. Mason, 30 tons new measurement, is a trim and neat craft, built at Kennebunk by Mr. Charles Hamilton, a first clas vessel in all respects. The Annie H. is owned by Capt. John Glynn, Frank Bragdon, Assistant Light Keeper at White Island, Hartley W. Mason, and Plumer D. Norton, of this city, and others. Capt. Glynn speaks in the highest terms of his vessel, and all nautical men are of the same opinion. The cabin is finished in black walnut and with the forecastle has accommodations for twelve men. Her complement will be ten, ususally. She is on her second trip and will land 17,000 pounds of fresh fish. 12,000 being the amount of the first one.

The sloop Z. S. Wallingford arrived in port on Friday from Boston. The Z. S. W. was formerly a Dover packet, but has recently been purchased by Capt. Clark of the Ceres. She is commanded byFred. J. Hanson of Dover, who is only 19 years old. She will be employed in carrying bricks between Dover and Boston.

The man killed at Dover on Friday by the cars was a harness maker named Shaw, who belonged in Springvale, Me.

We are informed that arrangements are being made for public discussions on topics of general interest, to be held weekly or fortnightly, at the hall over Craig's insurance office, occupied jointly by the Mercantile Libraay Association and the Grange—in which debates, members of both societies and any others interested will be invited to take part. The first discussion will probably take place early in October.

The veterans of New Hampshire are to have a re-union at Manchester, on the 12th, 13th and 14th of next month. Meetings are being called throughout the State to perfect arrangements to attend this first muster of our N. H. boys in blue since the war. We do not see or hear of any movement toward this end being made in Portsmouth. Can it be possible that our city is not to be represented?

A Times reporter went on a big feed in a revenue cutter to the Oceanic House a short time ago, the other Portsmouth parties accompanying him being pleased to pay the bills, and nothing but a complimentary notice appeared in the Times. Last week, not a Gup. was invited to join the fishing party accompanying the Board of Naval Constructors on a cruise off Boone island, and the Times snarls over it as an expenditure of the nation's money. When a good, square meal and a sail in a fog will purchase the silence of pure patriots of such high-toned political morals as the Times editor is possessed of, the liberties of the people must indeed be in extreme peril. How willingly (perhaps) would the worthy host of the occasion, last week, have hastened to invite a Gup. to the Eastward had he but known of the existence of such an important and remarkably influential personage, and that the penalty of the unwarranted neglect so to do would have been an indication from his royal Gupness that he resented the loss of a fish chowder, in the shape of a blackmailing insinuation by inference, that next time there must be a Gup. in the party—or the Lyre would again be harshly attuned to grind out its notes of disappointment, chagrin and discontent.

The Wedding Dress of a Lovely Bride of Sixteen.

[Jennie June's Cor. Baltimore American.]

Very handsome wedding trousseaus are more rare than they used to be, but I had a glimpse of one recently, some of the details of which may interest your lady readers. The name of the fortunate owner may not be divulged, but it is said that she is very charming, and not more than sixteen; the bridegroom, to be, is four times her age, and provides the outfit, for which carte blanche has been given to Mme. Rampen, who supplied the dresses for Miss Honore's and Col. Fred. Grant's wedding. To describe each article in detail would be impossible, as there are so many of them, the trousseau comprising not only the underware, but the dresses and other garments to complete an outfit. The quantity of Valenciennes lace (all real) used is enormous; all women know how lovely it is, how becoming to freshness and beauty, and everything was to be "soft, delicate and exquisite as possible."

Most of the chemises and night-dresses are of fine linen cambric, cut square, or trimmed square in the neck, either with insertions and wide Valenciennes lace, or with hand embroidery as fine as lace. The short skirts are, some of them, ruffled with lace, some with hand embroidery, and, long and short, are miracles of stitching and tucking.

There are a couple of short skirts of scarlet flannel bordered with Valenciennes lace, but the most of them are white, or pale blue, embroidered with white floss silk in lovely leaf and vine patterns. But perhaps the prettiest things in the way of underwear are the dainty corsets of white satin, embroidered in feather stitch, or the hoisery, cobwebby-fine of silk, in all the faint shades of colors, some of them covered with embroidery, or thread, equally fine, the clocking executed by hand, in colors to match dresses and suits, seal brown, invisible green, navy blue, and others.

The handkerchiefs alone cost a small fortune, and are the prettiest and flimsiest bits of lawn and lace imaginable. But what will take cold in her head? In her interest I begged for a dozen or two rather more substantial.

The bridal dress is a fancy of the bridegroom's. It is to be of silver brocade, made in rather a quaint fashion, and the veil to be worn with it is an heirloom. A dressing gown of white satin and trimmed with ribbons—white satin on one side, pale blue on the other—struck my fancy, and so also did a Gabrelle morning-dress of white and pale blue silk, the white forming the train and the front, the sides commencing at the armhole, forming pockets outlined with the Valenciennes lace, which was also used for trimming the blue bows upon the front.
